CRITCHLOW OBJECTS.

Editor of The Worker:—We notice in The Worker for June 7 a report of the Ohio state convention which is so errorsous in many particulars that it de absolutely essential that we call the various points to your attention and request that you give them the same publicity as the article in the issue before me. The points are as follows: 1. The convention was held in Fra ternity Hall, not Friendship Hall.

2. The secretaries of the convention were Chan. Feiger of Canton, L. R. McIntire of Mansfield, Chas. F. Weichold of Bucyrus, Harry C. Thompso of Cincinnati and Chas. J. W. Schroder of Cincinnati. This is five, instead of three, as was reported by C. R. M.

8. The report of the State Secretary showed the assets of the state organisation to be $500.78, not $858, as reported by C. R. M.

4. The report of the State Secretary contained no such language as report-ed, and the report was not referred back at all. Instead it was received as a whole after being gone over by a committee; who reported favorably upon the same, and recommended its adoption as a whole. 5. No resolution was adopted pertaining to an officer holding two posi-tions, as reported by C. R. M. Instead there was ordered submitted to a ref-erentum vote an amendment to the Constitution, as follows: "That no member be aligible to hold more than ne office in the state organization. This is entirely different from what you have given publicity to.

6. Frank P. O'Hare did not "happeu" to be in Columbus. He was routed, there for the express purpose of giving the Columbus comrades the advantage of the propaganda resulting from the public meeting which was held. Comrade O'Hare was routed in Ohlo up till May 17. Just previous to this date a letter was received from Comrade James Onesi, the State Sec retary of Indiana, saying that he had been unable to route him from May 20 to June 1, as has been expected, and he hoped that it would not inconvenience us seriously, etc. Comrade O'Hare and myself conferred together over the matter and arranged a quick route across the state with places that had as yet had no agitation this year and made the route so that he could reach Burton City, Ohio, and Mc-Mechen, W. Va., where we had pre-viously arranged positive dates for him. In order to fill these dates he would pass near Columbus, and we arranged for him to put in two days there at his own expense, in order to give him a rest period and allow him to attend the convention and speak once for the Columbus comrades without any charge to them. This program was carried out, and we gladly take the responsibility of his presence in

7. A public meeting was held in the Slayton and Frank P. O'Hare as the speakers. As usual everybody, with possibly one exception, was pleased with the speakers. This is quite different from your report, which pur-possly ignored Comrade O'Hare.

We have re frained thus far from giving the prethe entire proceedings of the convertion, having sent out only a synopsi of the acts of that body, but the min utes having arrived to-day we will pre pare at once a complete copy of the official proceedings and submit them to the papers and party membership of Ohio.

look place among "the best informed delegates" (as you put it), but we do know that if they did any serious criti-cising it was done under cover, and nothing was done on the floor of the convention. No action was taken at all in the matter as could be inferred from every point of view, and the re port which you have published is sucl es misstatement of facts that it does the movement in Ohio a great is-justice, and especially among those comrades who were not able to attend the convention.

Hoping that you will give this mat-ter the same publicity that was given the (mis)report, I remain.

Fraternally yours, W. G. CRITCHLOW,

In Christiania a huge demonstration. 1.000 women took part, was held to protest against the infamous bill pro-posed by the government to reader trade unionism impossible. A petition was handed in to the Lagthing to amend the bill or reject it. The Presi dent, accepting the petition, declared it would receive all attention. We may add. American workers have equal reason to be on their guard.

NEW YORK GLASS WORKERS.

Gustave Theimer of Richmond has succeeded in organizing the glass sign painters of New York and vicinity. They will constitute Local No. 46 of the Amaignmated Glass Workers. This is the third local of the A. G. W. that Comrade Theimer has organized with in the last few months. There are now eight locals in the vicinity, with an aggregate memberahip of about twelve hundred men, held together by a Joint Advisory Board.

ON THE NATURE OF LIBERTY

. I began to ask myself cer- ; tso. If you are free, you are responsi tain questions concerning the natural bie for what yet do with your gifts, of liberty. I had always believed that and for their use in behalf of others. It was something political; that this but if you are not free, it is your mathing which so many had hoped for, died for, was an uffair of annual elecsion of universal suffrage, under a government of their own creation, I still could not imagine them to be as imppy as they expected to be. I could not even imagine them as free as they expected to be, especially the poorest sort. But I consoled myself with thinktrue knowledge of liberty. By and by, of livelihood, and le assured in their I thought, when they had been free long enough, they would conceive of it aright, and would be entished to take it for what it was weeth, as I never doubted all the Americans were. Then | fact, which in its highest effect is saif they liked; to go or come without asking for a passport; and this would be sufficient, although it was not all they expected of liberty. It did not occur to me that the Venetians had a right to me that the venetians are norman and the venetians are not the venetians unconsciously and yet really expected; security from want and from the fear of want. If any such metion had been suggested to me I should have laughed their formless and tacit expectations was so ridiculent.

ideal of liberty, which lords it over the livelihood, they would really have all imagination in politics, as the antique ideal of beauty-lords it over the im-agination in esthetics. The ideal of liberty is the creature of rhetoric very largely; so far aw it ever had reality it was the prepotence of a slaveholder who freed himself from tyranny by violence. In his conception, liberty was narrowed to his city or country; it was a Hellenic or a Roman privilege, and not a human right. It was, to be sure, the condition of things unexamuled and unexcelled... It gave us literform of society which is the vision of the future state. But the liberty which flowered in the culture of Athens, the legality of Rome, and the socialism of Sports, was rooted in slavery crueler In the cruelest oppression of any modern despotism. It was the denial of the aspirution for freedom in those whose capitally it rested upon; and as an ideal it has been the faithful mother of atrocities. Yet still it is in this image that the notion of liberty first presents itself to the mind, just as the thought of beauty first presents itself But liberty is never a good in itself, is well that the Austrians are away and is never final; it is a means to but the mass of the Venetians are sen something good, and a way to the end which its lovers are really seeking. It is provisionally a blessing, but it is purely provisional; it is self-limited. and is forever merging into some sort of subjection. It no sooner establishes itself than it busing to control itself. liberty is the hadiucination of the anarchist, that is, of the individualist hest, not even of the most, but of the So far as we can have any consequences of it; liberty is merely choice.

When a man is not free to choose, he is not free at all. When he is free to not free at all. When he is free to regard himself in that light. Resily, without the means of the limens. self or he ensiaves, some one else. Where there is mainly a choice of wrong there are no longer rights, there are only advantages. In its noblest and simplest terms, this liberty which we can feel only as choice, is the power of self-sacrifice. Self-sacrifice can be the act only of those who are free; others may be sacrificed, but these the rule, not of the wiscet, not of the

alone can sacrifice themselves. self-sacrifice begins with the of the savage's self-assertion. The earliest use that a citizen of a liberated state makes of his freedom is to give up some part of it for the com-non good, to exchange his advantages for rights, to find his own happiness in the well-being of others. It is for this that he pledges his life, his fortune and his sacred honor. He outlaws himself from an unjust order only that himself from an unjust order only that he may inlaw himself with a just order; and he employs that instant of volition which is the whole appreciable existence of liberty, not to secure advantages, but to impart them. Freedom has really no higher function, and it can appear to its possessor only in some moment of evansescence. We are always fameving it something pormanity of the property of the men who shall make his laws, judge them and execute them. He chooses, he elects, he always fameving it something pormanity of the property of the men who shall make his laws, judge them and execute them. it can appear to its possessor only in some moment of evansacence. We are always fancying it something porman-ent that be preserved by a jenious vigilance. But we can enjoy it only in imparting it; we can each of us preserve his own freedom only by guarding the the greatest good of the whole num-ber, nor cease to strive for it.

In fine, liberty, whose supreme expression is self-sacrifice, is only another name for choice; the essence of choice is freedom; and in adverse conditions a man has so choice; he does this or he does that because he must, not because he will. But we shut our eyes to the effect of conditions, and expect people to rise above tasm, to overcome the attraction of gravitation. We obedience, meckness, abuegation, which are virtues, in the free man. The free man has duties, but the slave has noue, and he has no responsibilities. Liberty is not only the power of celf-merifice; knowing whether he can find it or not. It is the responsibility of celf-merifice.

As to what empowers yes to self-sacrifice, renders ...yos ...responsible, makes you free, it is commonly supposed to be the citizenable of a free country. But this is very-questionable; freedom by no masse follows from such citizenable. In the first place there seems to be as yet no free countries in the would others as man, to be tries in the world; there seem to be only freer countries; and not every citi possession; if he is independent of others. But if he is dependent upon some other man for the means of carning his livelihood he is not free. Freedom in would be content with liberty in its sucrifice, and of the skies, is chained true sense, as we were; and even if to the earth in question of necessity, they were not content, they would be as certainly as the soul is chained to free, and that was the great thing. the earth in the body. It is only oc-They would be able to vote for this casionally a political affair, a civic affair, and against that one; to make their own laws, or choose legislators to pecuniary affair, an economic arise, it is constantly a social affair, at make them; to speak or print anything is true that in a tyranny the richest are is no man free without the means of livelihood, but the richer man is al-ways freer than the poorer man, as he > such as have permanently displaced an oppression, has been their failure to recognize this fact. If the Venetians and agreed with Garibaldi when he same (he did not come in person, of course), or with Italy when they were course), or with Italy when they were united to it, that themosforward all should be guaranteed the means of freed themselves. If the French revo-lution had established these conditions the first republic would still be one and indivisible. But the Venetians fancied it was enough to drive out the Austrians; the French thought to end all injustice by behending the aristocrats. Even the Americans believed they had ordained surversal freedom when they had thrown off their old allegiance to Enginud, abolished titles, given every one the suffrage, and made their prince elective. In each case something was gnised, but it was not liberty for all. Italy is now a freer country; or at least a freer government, and I do not suppose there are many Italiams who would wish back the old despotism; but probably most Italians under their crushing bur den of taxation are now less free than they were under their alien most va. The Venetians during their Demonstra-tions believed that if the Austrians were driven out the people would be free, just as the French during their revolution believed that if the aristo-crats were killed the people would govern. But I fancy none of the gay visions of the Venetians have bee quite verified; they have got general progress, but not general prosperity. It is well that the Austrians are away, Venice. We believe that a republic is a freer country than a monarchy; cer-tainly a president is less absurt than a king, as a personification of the popu-lar will; and doubtless such liberty as men now have is safer under den cratic forms and with an elective chief as if the great mass of people in every existing state were sacrificed to others without the power-to merides them hood in his hands, but in the hands of another, he is scarcely the regal shape we figured him. The workingman out of a job can have little joy of his vote; and if he is very poor, if he is not mak-ing both ends meet, he can bardly will good to others, the sovereign act of the freeman, because he has done to will. It is true that he may rebel, that he may renounce his employment when he has one and does not think himself justly paid; but without the means of livelihood he has no choice except to much less a poor devil-who has voted with his party and has nothing to eat. For such a citizen of the freer state. much less a poor devil who has voted with his party and has nothing to eat. For such a citizen of the free state, and our state free so long as there is one oppressed man in it. We are faish to our trust and in danger of losing our treasure if we content ourselves even with the greatest good of the greatest roughler; we must not mean less than the sense that it exists for the more unfortunate. He cannot choose, he cannot sacrificed himself for others, for with the greatest good of the greatest. number; we must not mean less than no advantages, for he has none; and the greatest good of the whole number, nor cease to strive for it.

In fine, liberty, whose supreme expenses the strip of self-assertion, in the savage necessity warfare which manifests itself in strikes, riots, mutinies, murders. The poor man knows, if the rich man does not know, that the poorer man has al-ways less liberty than the richer man, fust as certain as that he has less money. If he has not the means of livelihood in his own hands, he cannot come and go when he will; he cannot choose the kind of work he will do, as thoor and shame from no conditions rise;

Act well your part, there all the bonor lies. But no one who thinks can believe this. If a man is in conditions which hinder him from doing what he will, he can no more have bonor than he can have shama. The vices of a slave are hateful, but we do not blame the slave for them, and we do not praise him from obedience, mechanes, abnegation, which his own attrestly but we way to the could down his hirelingity as when them, and we do not praise him for obedience, mechanes, abnegation, which mane employer, especially in the case of hirelings who have served him long and well, and more than any other it tells with the conscience against the whole relation of "hireling and him that hires." The hireling may have all those rights which are inseparable from the old ideal of liberty and which we valuly suppose are the proofs of we vainly suppose are the proofs of liberty. He may have the right to speak freely, print freely, pray freely, vote freely; but he cannot manfully use his right, though warranted in it by the constitutions and the statutes of all the states, if he is afraid another man may take away his means of live libood for doing so. It is needles sto say that the per onal equation will have much to with the character of the event. Many fine that they would abbor to interfere with the constitutional rights of then hirelings; and there are hirelings so brave that they would starve, and see their wives and little ones starve, before they yielded their rights. But six very was none the less an evil because most slaveholders were kind and good people, or because there was now and then a heroic siave. The man who is in danger of want or even in dread of want of not a free man; and the country which does not guard him against this danger and dread, or does not assure him the means of livelihood, is not a free country though it may be the freest of all the freer countries.

In other words liberty and poverty are incompatible, and if the poverty is extreme, liberty is impossible to it. We pretend otherwise, such of us as are not so directly oppressed by the condiknow better. From time to time they express their dissent in their uncomfortable way, but, tacitly or explicity, they always dissent from our optimistic pre tense. It is possible that the American who earns his bread in the sweat of his brow and votes with his party has known all along that he was not the sort of sovereign we fancied bim.

labor troubles is nothing more nor less than an endeavor for the liberty which the working classes think they see the amploying classes possessed of. It seems to be a question of more wages with them, and primarily it is a question of more wages, but ultimately it is a question of more power, more case, more freedom. It is a question of business, of the means of livelihood; and how to secure every nun in the means of livelihood, and so guarantee equal freedom to all, is the great prob-lem for statesmanship to solve. It has been supposed hitherto by the comfortable sentimentalists that every man would secure himself in them, but the inefficiency of the individual in this direction has been shown so widely that the problem remains and it is still as it has always been, the instinctive expectation of the workingman every-where that society would yet somehow warrant him the means of earning a livelihood, and so constitute him for the time a free man.

His expectation seems more or loss absurd to his employers, for they have come to believe themselves the only fit repositories of his means of carning s livelihood, But his expectation is deeply grounded in human nature, and more than once in history has found pathetic expression. We need not go far back for instances. When the serfs cause they alone had worked the land. In fact, Stepniak tells us that the land owners themselves would scarcely have felt wrouged if they had been expropriated from the acres they had never touched in behalf of the peasants who had tilled them. At the end of our own war, when the slave's dream of freedom came true, he believed that the gift of liberty would be followed with the gift of forty acres and a mule to every head of a family. When his fond delusion became known to the nation which had broken the chains of the oppressed and bidden them go free and see what they could do to keep from starving, a roar of derision went up from all the millions of American humorists. We thought it much less comical to give our acres, not by fortier but by millions, to certain railroad cor-porations. Now that turns out to have been a great joke, too, and we are laughing again, but on the wrong side of our mouths. In the meantime the fact remains that liberty is for those who have the means of livelihood. With them, however, it is always in danger of ceasing to be liberty and of becoming tyranty. In view of this danger some say that those caunot safely be trusted in private hands, for the individual may use the only to assure himself of life, liber and the pursuit of happiness, but may use them to jeopardize another in life, liberty and the pursuit of happi-ness. These philosophers have imagin-ed that all should own the means which form the opportunity and safety of each, and so far no one else has im agined any other way out of the trouble, though few are ready to take

Opportunity is one phase of liberty. safety is another. The safe man is the only free man; and it is not enough not to be in danger, one must not be in fear of danger. Want and the dread of want are the same in moral effect; and when we have liberty in the form of op-portunity we must have it in the form of safety or we have it not at all. If we wished to keep liberty simply as opportunity, we should lose it, for there is nothing vital, nothing lasting in oppor-tunity. We can enjoy liberty only in its ultimate form of safety, and we can- $87.30; balance, $25.75 not any one of us, or any part of us, be safe, unless all the rest are safe, for the insecurity of others is the perpetual manace of our own security. We must somehow be equals in opportunity and in safety or we cannot be free.

This equality is the logic of liberty. and liberty cannot stop short of it without censing to be. It can confer no lasting good, no final blessing, until fice in its supreme manifestation .-William Dean Howells.

fThe following article was contrib tited by Eugene V. Debs to a recent number of the Indianapolis "World," a paper devoted to the interests of the Negro race in America.]

The following letter, under date of May 23, 1903, has been received from Mr. Gurley Brewer, Editor of the Indianapolis "World.":

"The 'World' is investigating industrial conditions among colored people. Booker T. Washington advocates industrial education for the Negro. In the attitude of labor unions toward black labor compatible with the teachings of Washington? The 'World' is a colored newspaper and would like to publish your views, * * **

To this letter there was attached a clipping from the "World" containing an article from Mr. D. M. Parry, Presi-dent of the National Association of Manufacturers, in answer to the same question, the hurden of which was that rganized labor is a trust and that a sajority of its members are opposed to the colored workingman, especially in the teachings of Mr. Washington. His arraignment of organised infor closed with the followremarkable paragraphs: "Mr. "Briven from the opportunity of learning to be artisans in the shops, their only hope is the technical schools such as Washington conducts." A Nyposritissi Plea. The hypocritical plea of the indus trial master for "the education of the poor Negro" while he is living out of his labor, deceives no one except the ignorant and service victims of the wage system. The first requisite, Mr. Parry, in elevating the Negro, is to get off his back. From the tone of Mr. Parry's letter, I assume that he is a great friend to the Negro. Now there are any number of them capable of operating his factory and "bossing" it. How many does be employ, especially in the latter posi-tions? To what extent does be make his professions good by associating with his black brethren and explaining to them, as Christ did, what they must do to be saved? Will Mr. Parry and his class pretend that their practice accords with their preaching? If they actually believe that the Negro is entitled to equal consideration with the white man why do they not set the example by meeting and treating him as

That is my conviction as a "union" man, and I have the consistency and courage to practice it. Until Mr. Parry and his class do the same, no intelligent Negro will be deceived by their professions of friendship. Now as to Mr. Booker T. Washington and the attitude of organized labor toward his scheme of industrial educa-

Your question implies that you look upon Mr. Washington as the Moses of the black race and his educational scheme as the sure means of their entancipation. To answer your question candidly, I feel gratified to be able to say that Mr. Washington's scheme is not at all compatible with organized labor.

Mr. Washington is backed by the plutocrats of the country clear up, or down, to Grover Cleveland. They fur-nish the means that support his Institute, and if it were conducted with a view to opening the Negro's eyes and emancipating him from the system of wage-slavery which robs and debases him while it fattens his master, not another dollar would be subscribed for the Negro's "industrial education."

A few questions may be pertinent

Why is it that the plutocrats, the trust magnates of the country are solidly in favor of Mr. Washington and

What fraction of one thousandth of one per cent. of the eleven million Negroes in the United States are to get the benefit of his industrial education? What are they to do with it when if the answer is that they will com pete with their white brethren, then is it not obvious that it means less wages and still lower depths of degradation for all?

Mookness and Humility.

Does not Mr. Washington advocate the meekness and humility of the Negro race and their respectful obedience to their exploiting masters?

Would Wendell Phillips tolerate this scheme of saving the Negro through the charity of his master? On what occasion did Mr. Washington ever utter one sentiment, one word in favor of emancipation? When did he ever advise his race to stand erect, to act together as one, to assert their united power, to hold up their heads like self-reliant, self-respecting men and hew out their way from the swamps of slavery to the highlands of freedom?

What has he ever done to show the Negro that in the present industrial system he is simply the slave of the capitalist and the prey of the politi-dependence upon charity is degrading, that robust self-reliance is a thousand times better, that he has three million votes to enforce his demand and that he will be a slave as long as he listens to the siren song of his master and votes for capitalist parties that sup-

Mr. Parry likes Mr. Washington and Mr. Washington likes Mr. Parry better far than Mr. Parry likes labor unions.

As between the two Mr. Parry is the lesser enemy of the Negro. Washington lulis him to sleep with charity soothing-evrup while Parry stings him to action by attacking his unions.

I have much respect for Mr. Parry.

He is a consistent capitalist and as such is far preferable to Mr. Hanna who flatters labor unions for the votes of their members.

I have also great consideration for

Mr. Washington, especially as he was born a slave. His motive is doubtless pure, but unfortunately for bimself and race, his blood is still tainted with reverence for and obelsance to the master, and he does not seem to realize that the auction-block and slave-per differ in degree only, from the "labor-

What the Negro wants is not charity but industrial freedom and then be will attend to his own education. Then is no "Negro problem." apart from the general labor problem. The Negro is not one whit worse off than thousands not one wait worse on than thousands of white slaves who throng the same labor market to sell their labor power to the same industrial masters. The workers, white and black, want land and mines and factories and machinery, and they are organizing to put thomselves in possession of these means of production and then they will be their own employers, they will get all they produce and the problem will be solved.

The difference between their trust and Mr. Parry's present-day frust, will be that it will embrace the whole popu-lation, and in the meantime Mr. Parry deserves our thanks for calling atten-tion to it.

Philadelphia's Striking Textile Worker: Eagerly Listen to Socialist Speakers -Progress Throughout the State.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 22.--At last night's meeting of the State Committee, Comrade Rihi presiding, charters were granted to new locals a Monaca in Beaver County and Wilmer Man Allenhous County ding in Allegheny County.

Communications were read from Lo cals Pittsburg, Lehighton, West New ton, Spring Forge, Lausford, Mahanoy City, Royersford, Wilkinsburg, Irwin, York, Sellersville, Rending, Charleroi, and Pottsville. From all over the state come encouraging reports.

At Seliersville Comrade Frost spoke to one of the largest and best meet-ings ever held in that place. Lehighton reports that things look bright in that neighborhood and from present indications they will have a good sized local in the near future. Carlon County is making prepara-

Nowhere in the Keystone State is there a grander field for Socialist work now than in the City of Brotherly Love. Philadelphia, with its hundred thousand textile workers on strike for a shorter work week, offers an ou unity that the local comrades have not been slow to take advantage of On Monday thousands of men, women, and children had gathered on the base ball ground at Kipp street and Indiana avenue to hear Mother Jones. The rain began to fall and it was decided to hold the meeting in the Kensington Labor Lyceum. This was announced to the crowd and a rush was made for the hall. The streets and the railroad were soon thronged with strikers, resembling the charge of a victorious army on a retreating foe. In a few seconds the hall was filled with a crowd massed as close together as hu man beings could possibly crowd and still breathe. Equally as successful meetings were held in Southwark, Fairmount, Falls of Schuylkill, and

Manayunk, On Wednesday, early in the morn ing, the mill workers in all sections of the city assembled at the several head-quarters and marched to Independence Hall, and from there to the North Plaza of the City Hall. No gaudy uniforms decked the textile paraders, the business houses displayed no bunting. The crowd that stood at the edge of the pavement looked on and sympathized. They knew that passing before them were men, women, and children engaged in a fight to save their lives from the greed of mercenary employers. The sight of the tollers whom the osses have threatened with starvation because they have asked for a shorter work week was not one to cause en-thusiasm. The North Plaza of City Hall never saw such an assemblage as gathered there. When the parade reached this point all crowded around the speakers' stand to listen to Mother Isaac Cowen, the Socialist can didate for Governor of Ohio, opened

Organization Promoted by Ex-Clorgyman, Patronized by New York "Sun," Ostensibly to Forward Conciliation and Technical Education, Now Offers to Break Machinists' Strike,

Two or three months ago The Worker gave an account of an organisation known as the Independent Labor League of America, promoted by an Albany man calling himself Rev. E. M. Fairchild and especially patron ized by the New York "Nan. Worker predicted that under its pretences of working for conciliation be-tween employer and employee, for bet-ter industrial education, and other apparently laudable purposes, it would ultimately be found that the essential purpose of this "non-union union" was to serve as a scab agency for the breaking of strikes.

This prediction was indignantly resented, by. Mr. Enirchild, to when space was granted for a letter in these columns. The confirmation of our guess has come sooner than we could Shipyarda. "Bince the strike of the machinists n the shippards for a minimum wage scale of $3 a day started, offers have een made by the Independent Labor League of Ambrica to fill the places of the strikers. The league, which is an incorporated body, has its local head-quarters at 39 Cortland street. Among ts arowed objects are ' the doing away with strikes, boycotts, and blacklists, the protection of workmen in their in-dependence, the obtaining of high wages and better conditions, and the bringing about of harmonions relations between employers and employees."

""The league has been in communication with the New York Metal Track's Association, which employs most of the shippard machinists, but it was stated yesterday that the association had decided not to inke all the men from the league. Secretary Hunter of the association says that its members are not in favor of binding themselves to take all the men from one union."

Organized workingmen hardly need to be warned against this and similar societies formed with the approval or at the instigation of employers for the ostensible purpose of "reforming the ostensible purpose of "reforming the labor movement." Workingmen who are not yet affiliated with the unions but desirous of conducting themselves as bonorable men may, however, profit by the present incident as a warning steer clear of any such hybrid organizations, which in every case turn out, sooner or later, to be mere source for misleading them and using them as ols of the capitalists against their brothers of the working class.

Explaining It Away.

The capitalist newspapers of the United States are showing a curiously the Socialist vote in Germany. the first few days they hesitated and emed at a loss what to say, but by e end of the week they got together. It would almost seem as if a "tip must have been sent out from Wall Street or from Washington to all the Republican and Democratic editorial writers of the land. From Boston to Ran Francisco they broke out simul tancously, explaining that the German Social Democrats are not really Social-ists or Social Democrats at all, as those words are understood in this country, but are actually quite mod-erate "reformers." The dear public should be on its guard against supposanound be on its guard against suppos-ing that the same and steady German people are really taking up any such wild vagaries as are advocated by the Socialists of America, who actually wish to do away with profit and class

Social Democrats used to be "wild visionaries," dreaming of a Co-operative Commonwealth, they have thrown Marx and Engels overboard now, put the essential ideas of Socialism on the shelf, and are merely fighting new for immediate partial reforms under the

The motive of this representation is obvious enough—to neutralize, if pos-sible, the inspiration which this glorious advance is likely to give to the American division of the interna tional Socialist army and, incidentally to tempt those of our people who are impatient for big gains at the polls to alandon the revolutionary and uncom promising attitude and devote them selves to petty reform programs.

It is not difficult to give the lie to these misrepresentations of the capitalist press. We grant, certainly, that our commies have—and quite rightlymade campaign material out of the "hunger tariff," out of the enormous demands of the military and naval sevices, out of the abuses exposed in the army and in the colonial administra-tions, and out of the foolish speeches of the Kniser. Its Tan Year's Labor, Its Sufferings its Foos, and its Achievements.

"There is in Poland one thing of which the Russian government is afraid even more than of the diseatisfaction of the Catholic Church-that is Socialism." However curious it may seem, the comparison of "revolutionary qualities" of the international Catholic Church-which, by itself, never had in Poland any revolutionary tendeucles— with international Socialism, yet in this opinion, expressed by Mr. Georg Brandes in the year 1886, we see that even seventeen years ago the political significance of Polish Socialism was evident to all observers of Polish life. It was so seventeen years ago, when

Socialism, as a popular movement, had but appeared in Poland, when there was no strong organized party cease-lessly spreading the agitation and leading the movement. At last, in the year 1803, different Socialist groups united into one Polish Social t Party. And since that time Polish Socialism, in which hitherto, in spite of its external revolutionism, economic tendencies pre ponderated, acquires the features of the definite political movement. The new united party puts forward as its program the abolition of the Russian invasion and the establishment of the independent Polish Republic.

It is now ten years since the Polish Socialist Party was established, ten years of hard struggle in conditions unheard of in any of the countries of Western Lurope, And the progress which has been accomplished during that time, although perhaps not so brilliant as one would desire, proves that the future of Poland belongs to Social

But as the propagauda by means of literature sur from alread did not satisfy ad did not satisfy all the peeds of the growing movement, the Polish Socialist Party started in 1804 the secretly printed journal "Robotnik" ("The Worker"). Those comrades who were engaged in organizing the secret press estimated that the claudestine press would stand the publication of twelve issues of "Robotnik and would then fall luto the hands of the gendarmes. The reality has out grown these expectations, as the journal went on appearing for years, and only in 1600 our "editorial offices and establishment" have been seized by the police. However, the seizure of this press has not interrupted the continuity of the publication; another press was immediately established and the publishing of "Robotnik" is going on till to-day and, let us hope, will go on secretly up to the time when we shall be able to publish it quite openly. Recently we printed the fiftieth issue of "Robotnik." Fifty issues of a jour-nal in nine years. Such fact may seem entirely insignificant to those who are recustomed to read fresh Socialist ournals every morning at breakfast able. But people acquainted with the secret press know that it is for the first time in history that a clandestine journal has run such a number of edi-tions. What sepectacle does Philadelphia present to the world! We see 100,000 men, women and children pitifully begging for a few hours to be taken off their working week of eleven hours per day-begging as a favor what should be their unquestioned rightthe right to rest when they are weary from excessive toil! The newspapers commend the testile workers with a great show of patronizing condescen-sion because they ask-most of themfor a shortening of hours and not for a higher wage. As if the asking for a tiny raise in wages were in itself a sign of degeneracy or a lack of virtue!

Those weavers and spinners who are willing to have their meagre wage re duced still further as payment for a few hours of rest from prolonged toll need to be reminded that their sacrifice is a very costly one to the race—they are simply building up a class of de-generates to drag down the average of merican manhood and womanbood they are simply making it harder for their children to obtain justice and their children to obtain justice and their children's children to be anything but stunted dwarfs and degraded human beings. They are descending in the human scale, while the negro race with its children in the public schools and its men and women in the open fields

Is this pattern of "virtuous acceptance of their condition in life" to please the mill owners one that our corkers desire to copy?

I know well the false standard that prevails both among the rich and the poor in regard to the "duty" of work-ing for as little as possible and giving their all to their employer—their health, their comfort, their resting hours, their children's education—nay, their own lives, and their children's lives:

The wealthy classes have success fully planted this ideal in the minds of the working poor, until they are almost ashamed—think of it:-they are almost ashamed to ask for better pay and less toil! I am not personally acquainted with many textile workers—certainly not with the women and children—but-I know that this false standard of virtue, this unnatural and monstrous sacrifice of the poor in order that the rich may live in greater luxury, has rich may live in greater luxury, has prevailed until very recently with the majority of the workers who cater to the pleasures and selfish case of their wealthy employers.

Slaves of the Reedle.

I know even to-day a sewing woman broken down in health from giving her all that her patrous might wear fine clothes at small cost to any one but this poor woman. And in spite of her years of experience, her resulting poverty and ill health, my poor friend wields her needle long after 6 o'clock P. M. and strains her dim eyes and her weak, bent back in daily self-sacrifice to the rich-in return for the skilled services.

And what is the immediate result? Why, a family of wealthy ladies, find- | point.

And behold the irony of it ail! One of these ladies called at my house the other day and related with great complacency her experiences in visiting this seedle-woman of $1.25 per day: they found her ill in bed, with no coal

But when I called the Luxurions One's attention to the fact that it was impossible for any one to live com-fortably and save money on $1.25 per day (irregularly employed at that), sho made the usual reply: "Why, it's all she asks-why should I pay her

Yet in spite of all this hard experience my poor, self-sacrificing n woman explains her theory of life as follows:

"When people treat me well I like to treat them well. I always feel as if I wanted to do everything the ladies ask me to do all in one day if I can't I like to finish what I begin; I hate to disappoint the ladies. And I don't mind staying late to finish anything. You know, the ladies always want everything in a hurry when they are going away for the summer!"

This drew from me the following bondly, severely addressed to the toil-ing, beat figure, with its pullid, worn.

"Margaret! Self-sacrifice is noble in a great cause! But you are sacri-ncing yourself for what? That idle women may wear prettily made clothes all summer and save their money for new extravagances! And you pay for it all. You—with your ill nealth, with nothing saved for your old age or for sickness-is such a sacri-

YONKERS, N. - Y., June 19,-Mr Havemeyer, whose questions about the labor movement were answered by chosen representatives of the trade unions of Yonkers in Music Hall on June 0, has followed up the matter with an open letter reflecting upon the address of Benjamin Hanford, one of the speakers. Comrade Bauerberg of Local Yonkers, S. D. P., has accordingly addressed to Mr. Havemeyer the following communication, published in the Yonkers "Herald" of

June 18: "Mr. J. C. Havemeyer.
"Dear Sir:--In your letter to the local newspapers of June 11, 1903, wallecommenting on the Music Hall meet-ing, you remark about the address of Mr. Benjamin Hanford that it was largely made up of 'bluff, bluster and defiance, unsupported assertions, false statements and rank Socialism,' and, further, that 'a man of very moderate abilities would certainly have made him an object of ridicule. You also make misstatements, especially when you say that Hanford expressed his disbellef in law. That part of his address was Socialism, is undoubtedly true, but as to false statements, unsup-ported assertions, etc., I believe that Mr. Hanford's statements cannot be refuted by you, Mr. Havemeyer, nor by any other man, whether of moderate abilities or otherwise. In order that you may state your side (the capitalistic side) of the question; in order that you may refute Mr. Hanford's 'assections, in order that you may refute 'rank Socialism,' I challenge you to de-bate the subject, 'Socialism vs. Capitallam,' under the following conditions. You can have either one man of any kind of abilities to debate the issue with Mr. Hanford or three men against three Socialists; the meecing to take place in Music Hall; all expenses, except for delaters, to be paid by you and me, half and half, and a decision to be rendered by the audience. "If you think that you can find anybody able to refute the arguments of Socialism, yourself included, kindly, notify through the Youkers 'Herald' of your acceptance. Should you not be heard from within this and next week's jame, I shall come to the con-clusion that you have taken back all you said about Mr. He

The trade unions had it in mind to invite Mr. Havemeyer to debate or to answer questions to be put by the unions, but on his declaring that he would do so only as an individual, that he did not represent the Sugar Trust or any other trust and would not speak as a representative of trusts or nil-lionaires, they decided that it would not be worth while. We consider, however, that Mr. Havemeyer has clearly constituted himself de facto a char pion of capitalism by his question his public remarks previous and sub-sequent to the meeting of June 9 and we should be glad to give him an op-portunity to refute our arguments if he can. We want to know the truth. If we are wrong we shall thank Mr Havemeyer or anyone else for setting Here is his chance to do us and the "general public" a service,

We have heard a great deal about breaking agreements and declaring accounthatic strikes. How about the employers' respect for the annetity of agreements, as exhibited in the present building-trades lockout in New York City? GOD'S PROVIDENCE TO BE DE-CLARED BEFORE WORK-INDMER.

Mr. John C. Havemeyer of Yonkers, to whose lauduble desire for informs tion about the aims and methods of the labor movement we owe the oppor tunity for the hest Socialist meeting ever held in Westchester County, is not altogether entiated with the answers he not there. In an open letter published in the Yonkers "Hernid" just mendable and desirable as think labor unions may be, a radical and fatal defect is that they now fall to racognize important facts. One of these facts is the existence and provi-dence of God, and another that He has created men for a purpose and in ac rdance with that purpose has made own the relations He designed and quires between them, and the laws by which their intercourse is to be gov To ignore these facts is allure a certainty."

It is a little unfortunate that Mr Mavemeyer speaks in such loose and general terms. It is easy to say that the labor organizations ignore the laws by which God has designed them to be governed. It would be just as easy for us to say that Mr. Havemeyer ignores the laws by which God has designed him to be governed. But we would not think it either fair or sensible to make such a general statement without being able to specify, for his guidance and instructions, just what those laws are.: Will not Mr. Havemeyer be as

Very likely he is more intimately familiar with the intentions of divine providence than are we poor workingmen. He has had much more leisur mune-with the Almighty while the workingmen were refining sugar or digging coal or weaving cloth or shoveling dirt ten hours a day and coming home too tired in body and mind to rise to high thoughts.

Mr. Baer knows God's wishes as per feetly as the Almighty himself, so far as coal mines and coal-carrying roads are concerned, at least. And Mr. Baer is very frunk and open about it. He doesn't bide his light under a bushel. He tells the miners just what God wants them to do. This is only fair. Now if the miners disobey God and ask for an eight-hour day they cannot plead ignorance of His eternal decrees. Mr. Bger has put the responsibility equarely on their rheumatic but rebellions shoulders.

There is one other man who knows Gud's will perfectly and plainly declares it before men. We refer, of course, to the Kaiser. William is a modest man and a peaceable, who loves his subjects like a father. But he knows better than to let his amiable humility get the better of him. He and holds himself sternly to duty. He goes about the country and even makes weary pilgrimages to Rome and Jeruother holy places, preaching the gospel to his own and to atten peoples. leaves the Germans under no cloud of ignorance or doubt as to what God expects of them. He explains to them the divine will that Reichstag members should always vote army and navy appropriations without opposition, that civilians should always yield the way to army officers or meekly resign themselves to being run through the heart for neglect to do so, that editors should never criticize the Kaiser, cartoonists never make fun of him, and musical critics never fall to praise his opera, that, workingmen should never go on strike, and that nobody should listen to those wicked Social Democrats. The Kaiser has not shirked his duty. He has made plain the whole of the law and the gospel in mundance affairs. As for the stiff-necked people who still disober, their perdition be on their own heads. His hands are clean,

We commend these two illustrated examples to Mr. Havemeyer. , We understand, that the trade unlong of Yonkers have asked him if he will conent, they having answered his sixteen estions three times over, to answer sixteen questions that they will put, and he graciously deigns to do so "strictly in an individual capacity." Now we suggest that the way for him to do his duty as an interpreter of the providence of God will be made greatly smoother if the trade unions of Youkers will boil their "sixteen or more" questions down into two, as follows: 1. Just what are "the regulations and laws by which God has designed and requires" workingmen to be gov erned in their intercourse with employ rs, and vice versa?

2. What are Mr. Havemerer's credentials as an interpreter of the divine providence in this matter?

Come, let us not be kept waiting for the Revelations of Soint John the Saccharine to the Hewers of Wood and Drawers of Water.

THE POSTOPFICE SCANDAL.

Even the editors of capitalist dailles have held intervals. The "Times" of hast Monday says, semi-editorially:

"Those who selvocate the public ownership and operation of pu utilities all ought to be, and most them probably are, worried and chagrined by the daily revelations of new frauds and malfeasances in th estal service. The supposedly excelent work of this department of the gov The supposedly excelernment has long supplied a conveni argument for the public ow people, and they have used it plie, and they have used it by against their opponents. now the turn of the latter, and they are not likely to be more considerate Both sides will do well to remember however, that neither political not financial abuses in the Postoffice really affect the principle in question. are no essential or necessary part of it and under it can be remedied as easily as, perhaps more easily than, in a pri vate corporation conducting a business of the same size and kind. employees, and their operations have sometimes been thought to feel the effect of political influence. Postoffice, tog. it can still be its work has been done, on the whole extremely well, and at a cost extremely low, even when the annual deneit, now shown to be needless at least in part, is taken into considera-

We have something to add, however

type of public or collective ownership and administration of industry, falling far short of the Socialist ideal. In the first place, it is but one isolated and incomplete industry run as a public service and necessarily connected with and dependent on private capitalist (profit-making) enterprises in related industries which exercise a great influence upon its methods and workings. Furthermore, being carried on by a government controlled by and in the interests of the capitalist class at large and especially of the greater capitalists, the Postoffice is not even an near to the Socialist ideal as the limitation of its scope would allow. It is, considered, not as a public service pure and simple, but as a business enterprise run by the government in order to facilitate the workings of other business enterprises in private hands. It is organized upon the capitalist plan and permeated with the bourgeois or business ideal.

It would be wonderful, indeed, if a public institution so organized and so limited did not exhibit to some extent the corrupt tendencies growing out of the fundamentally dishonest principles of capitalist business. What we would emphasize is that, even under these conditions-

First, there is not more, probably much less dishonesty in the public postal service than in such private enterprises as the express, the rallways. or the banks; .

Second, when dishonesty in this service is discovered it causes much grenter indignation, is much more gen erally condemned (in spite of the efforts of powerful interests to concest it, than dishonesty in private business;

Third, that far the greater part of the corruption and malfensance that has from time to time developed in the salem and Kiel and Cronstadt and postal service has arisen just at those points where the public service comes in contact with or merges into private enterprises-in the making of mail contracis with railway and stoamship componies, in the relations of the legal department of the service with private law firms, and the like.

Insofar as the Postoffice is truly and independently a public service, it is both purer and more efficient than most private enterprises. Insofar as it is organized on hourgeots lines, is dependent on capitalist enterprises, or comes in contact with business influences, it is liable to the inefficiency and dishonesty characteristic of a system whose highest rule of conduct is to get something for nothing-that is, to get profit.

A FRACTICAL QUESTION IN SOCIALIST ETHICS.

We are asked to answer the follow ing question from a Socialist stand-

"Is a woman who before marriage entered into an agreement to be equal in all respects with her husband and who, after marriage, helped him is everything, even to the extent of factory work when necessary, and later in lunines,—is such a woman still de-pendent on her husband?"

"With feer and trembling we under take the task.

We presume that the question our orrespondent meant to ask is: From a Socialist standpoint ought such a woman to be regarded as dependent on her husband?" Unfortunately we still live in a bourgeois world and "is" is still for from synonymous with "ought to be." Our marriage lawsand still more, perhaps, the general trend of public opinion-are in many respects and in many cases most unjust to wives and in some respects an In some cases equally unjust to husbands. That is because the existing laws and ctines rules in regard to the relations of the sexes are very largely influenced by economic considerations nd admited to a system of exploits tion. As the marriage laws of every country, together with the teachings of every church and the moral feeling of every people with regard to this subject, have changed very greatly in the past in consequence of (but considerably slower than) the changing of the economic system, so, undoubtedly, the hideous evils that in so many cases are now sanctioned by the marriage laws and at least condoned by public opinion will become unlawful and be recognized as immoral when we have won economic freedom and equality. But that is not the question asked. Ought a Socialist to regard his wife as dependent on him in the sense of being his inferior or his pensioner. bound to vield to his will because he is the "bread-winner" of the family? That is the question and we answer it with a most emphatic No. It is marvellous how great is the power of superficial forms to concen from men the reality of things. We have met Socialists, even, men who were keen enough to understand th theory of surplus value, but who would give the title of productive workers to such women only as do some work for wages outside of their household duties. That it wife should beer and nurse and care for children and cook and sew and wash and scrub'at home, this they did not recognize as equire lent or comparable to the work which by which he gets money to pay the rent and buy food and clothes and We have to point out once again; as fuel. Granting that the husband might find it as hard to keep h the Postoffice is but a very imperfect | properly as the wife to go out and lay brick properly, it would get be urged that housework is the woman's natural field ("Natural," oh, most confusing of words!) and that her performing he duties in this field does not give her an equal and joint right in the money he gets för his work outside er an equa or joint voice in the use of it. It would be granted that he ought to provide well for her and their children, in proportion to his means; but only in the same way that Biship Potter and Young Mr. Rockefeller admit that an employer ought to pay and treat his employees well, according to his

Such a view is as unreasonable as it is commonly accepted—all but universally accepted, we might say, outside the Socialist influence. What, a baker who provides a loaf of bread for the child or a barber who trims its hair or a merchant who supplies it with g toy has rendered an economic service to the father and has a just claim on his purse, but the woman who fed that child with blood and with milk from her own body has no such cinim? A hired girl who scrubs another's 'floor or cooks his steak is a productive worker in the economic sense, but the housewife who does the same thing at home is not? Could anything he more ridiculous? Is no the simple statement of the proposition enough to ensure its rejection?

We do not believe such views thoughtlessly accepted from bourgeois society, are common in the Socialist novement. There are some Socialists who think (or fail to think) in this fashion, but not many. That there are any is an evidence that, as Comrade Spargo suggests in a passage quoted in this paper last week, in emphasizing the political side of our movement, we have a little too much neglected its vital scientific principles and revolutionary traditions.

If we may venture to express what we hold to be the true Socialist view on the question asked us, we would say: The Socialist must hold to almoint equality of rights between men and women just as firmly as to equality among men. The only distinction he has a right to draw among human beings is that of the social service they render as proportioned to their varying powers.

If our conitalist institutions and customs unjustly put the wife in the position of an inferior, a dependent or pensioner upon her husband, all the more reason for the Socialist to take care that he does not fall into that hourgeois way of thinking, that he, by word or deed; carefully -maintains his wife's position as his equal, and not only as his equal, but as his comrade future, to which we should approximate as well as we can in the present, it will not be a question between husland and wife of what you want and what I want, but of what we want. If there does not exist between them such sympathy as to make possible this nuity of interest and will, then they are not truly married, up matter what priest or magistrate may have sanctioned their union. But even in such a cose, where a recognition of separate interests and separate wills is unavoidable, then the true Socialist will cortainly hold himself strictly to a recognition of his wife's count right with himself in economic as well as in other relations.

If there is any one dangerous tendency against which the Socialists of the United States have especially to guard at the present time, it is the tendency to a division between the Socialist forces of the East and those of the West. It is not surprising that such a tendency exists, for differing economic and social conditions have, in the past, Manual line southedown bear ings, which old-party politicians have eciniously kept alive, and which we unavoidably inherit. But we have no room for such divisions in the Socialist movement and if we would avoid arrioga evil consequences we must do all in our power to eliminate them. The one way to accomplish this is for us to get better acquainted with each other. Our national organization has a great opportunity to help in bringing about such mutual knowledge and understanding-and has already made good beginning toward improving itby sending Socialist speakers and organizers un extended tours, Eastern men through the West and Western men through the East, so that the comrades in each region may have a chance to hear representatives of the party trained in other quarters and so that whatever is good in the peculiarities of the movement in the various sections may be diffused and mingled into a harmonious whole. Another means for the promotion of a mainal good understanding is to be found in the party press. While The Worker has never willingily been guilty of injustice toward our comrades of the Wast, we are quite willing to admit that we may sometimes unintentionally misindge and misrepresent them; and we suppose that our colleagues of the Socialist press in those other regions will make the same adulation of the possibility that they may semetime ot in the East. Wa are all of me

PROPERTY SPEAKS ABOUT ITS OWN RIGHTS.

By Horace Traubel.

The plutocrats and the potentates | capitalist don't own you, who does? and their fawners and poor relations have desfened and dumbed the world for many generations by their declarations upon the subject of the "rights-of property. But I have never heard property boasting about its own rights. I wondered how it was that property relied for its defense upon such questionable counsellors. Su in order to clear the matter I made up my mind to go myself and interview property and learn from its own lips what it thought about its own rights. I found property very ready to talk. I said to the money bug: "I concede your point. Property has rights. These rights I. too, incist upon. But what are these rights? I am willing to let property tell ss. And after property has de-livered its brief I will submit no fur-ther alternatives." So we let property talk. And property interpreted itself in a way that was not easily misunderstood.
I am glad to get a chance to say

"Everybody has been saying ever thing for me and about me and I have

perer been allowed to put in a word

I have rights. Of course I have. Or, perhaps, I might say I have one great right which covers all the little rights. I have the right to live where I belong and to serve my creator." But how has it been with me? I am always sept in allen places. I am always separated from my creator. I belong to my creator. Who is my creator? Labor. I am made, head, foot, and middle, by Inim made, nead, toot, and initide. Jahor has pladged its life to me. Labor has pladged its love to me. Yet the sunuggler, the pirate, the bandit, have divorced me from labor. The state has puts its armies and its laws be-tween. The church has put its creed and its anathems between. And of course commerce has not its bouls and stocks between. And labor has been crying a long cry over these larriers to And I have cried my long cry back. But we have not met and mixed. I have never been allowed to do justice to my creator. The men and momen and children who have made me what I am have starved and stunted because of our separation. They wept for me. I have wept for them. But the cruel terrier has remained. What is my right? It is my right to be enjoyed. I have but one ambition. I want to be enjoyed. I do not want to be praised or stolen of fought over. I want to be enjoyed. I want those who produce me to enjoy mm. I do not want to be built into the walls of palaces and be put as food on the tables of the rich. I want to go in equitable plenty all around. I do not want to be too much in one place. For if I am too much in one place I am too little in another place. My only happiness is in provisioning others. I like to coat myself shout someone's body. "Yes, more than begun to see!" interrupted money bug again: "And this necessity of capital constitutes my rights of property."

"There you lug me in again," re-sumed property, colmly: "But you haven't got my equations exactly fixed. You seem to think I am something in You seem to think that I can breathe, feel and dream, all alone, many own strength. would urge, for our part, that every reader of The Worker, most of whom belong to the Eastern region, should, if possible, subscribe for and read some one of the several good Socialist weeklies published in the Western statek. In general, we would advise. and would suggest that our Socialist contemporaries join in advising, that every party member should regularly read two party papers, one belonging to his own part of the country and one to some distant portion. It is a good rule to "hear the other side"-not mersly for the other fellow's sake, but quite as much for your own,

There you have got me. I am not sure that I know who produced me. But I am sure that I know what produced me. Labor produced me. To labor I belong. So I return to the point from which I started. My right is the right to return to my makers. All your rage and rant about the rights of property has fouled because you have started with an unstartable assumption. Certainly, if I am of such value to society as to be disputed and even warred about, I should have some say myself as to where I prefer my endowments to go You speculate about social justice. The venerable Metropolitan of Bel-grade, who has been hanging his old conscience to bleach on the back of the throne for a good many years and has doubtless been kept basy loyally forgiving the sins and blessing the two sinners recently markered, is now, as far as rheumatism will permit, running over himself to bless the successful assassins. So we need not be timid as to setting up a state church, whether we are Democrats or Republicans. She is full of mercy. Indeed, it is in the department of morals alone that a ruling class is able adequately to test the benevolent tolerance of an endowed religion. Had a bishop been at the head of the postoffice department, for instance, this administration would not have been worried by recent disclos-

Now what will an Emperor of Germany do whose people are voting so un-Germanly? Will be resign or try to hold his job by becoming himself, for the tirst time in his life, a German? The ladiot-box is able to work miracles. Kings are not in the labit of resigning. so I think His Majesty will become

A full-blown strenuosity is a finthing to go to bed with, provided it does not keep you awake thinking of numerous duties, which it seldom. The President has been a long unting-for a renomination. The advertising enters the White House when he comes home and leaves it whene'er he takes his walkes abroad. He moves across the continent the head of a panoranic procession of big posters; and the children cry and the women sharles and the officers howl for castoria. This "ad" is free.

Well, why not advertise the head of the administration? Why not make him the business nation's drummer? But, now, is it the enupaign commit tee or the department for experiment ing on wild animals that pays the hunter's bilis? Everybody knows that he is poor. Mrs. R. at the time of his election spoke as if she were on the point of pawning the family smooth-ing-iron. Besides. Theodore is eco-nomical to a fault if dodging one's taxes be a fault in good society, whereall the obligations of patriotism are so gracefully deputed to the workingman. I fear that smoothing-iron will have all the world's common people

A row of buttons makes a wonderful difference in a man's way of looking at the world. I had this nicely illustrated to me by a ratiroad man the other day. The railroad company, said he, in every case is all right. The time-tables are all right, if people were not such hinned fools as to trust time-tables. Why don't they get up early and catch the train before? As for him, he considers the public ought every one of 'em to be taken down on the street and puncked, and he would like to do it. It seems that railroad companion, from presidents down to buttune, get born that war.

I met a radical Democrat the other day, and upon examining the object I found him to be the same old munimy that has been getting periodically gal-vanised since Lot, the radical, choose one-half of the world and left the other haif to his aged conservative relative. Mr. Nosh, and this is what the munny

"My friend, all you've got to do is to strengthen the great middle class." At what degrees of latitude, Mr. Radical, does your middle class begin and end. I know some working people who are muddled on this matter. "Never mind muddied on this matter. "Never the working people, and let the mil that remains is the great middle class. the bulwark of civilization." Against what? "Oh, against Anarchy and So-cialism." So, after all, civilization is the bit on top of America; the workingman is the Atlantic ocean; and the middle class is Mrs. Partington aweep-

The postoffice frauds afford a strong example of the herole virtue of Mr. Payns. He fought the inquiry until it was impossible to prevent the exposure. For if we sacrifice our, Republican officlais, where will we find the supply of virtue required to keep up the perpetual exposure of Democratic sinners which makes up the life of the Republican party? Certainly the vitality of the Postoffice Department is the best arguent that Socialists can urge in favor lord in the political community who does not entertain a religious batred of the success of the Postoffice, which gives the public altogether too much for two cents. If it is ever lawful to steal, they think, it is lawful to steat from an institution whose success sug-gests Socialism. Yet, in spite of a horde of remorseless bloodsuckers, inside and out, the postoffice warries

Englishmen are all jenious of American prosperity. Some fellows from that country who were brought over here and held under contract by the Newcastle Pottery Company sciually declare that they are glad the Bureau of Inunigration is relieving them of their contract and sending them back home to England, because, they say, they can earn better wages over there. Have, sordid wretches! As if any amount of money could compensate them for the misfortune of not living in America.

The capitalist press is busy finding out how to misinterpret the Socialist success in Germany. One declares it all to be a protest against protection with its high-priced dinner-pall. An-other explains it as an effort to emithe German gerrymander laws, which are certainly ciliamous, Another at-tributes it all to Prince Bismarck's anti-Socialist laws, without there would be no Socialism. many other things are said by the blind foxes of the press who know, one and sil, very well that it is the tierunn workman's protest against the capitalist mode of wealth-production which can only end in the slavery of

A handlome reward will be paid to any genius who can show the railroad and mining compunies how not to recognize the gallant scales who leaped into the breach in loyalty to the companies and for the beneft of the pub-lic alone. Is there any way of organ-izing strike-breaking unions without

We have long needed a short and popular and at the same systematic and correct exposition of Socialist comonic and political principles for the use of the average thoughtful but the thinks adverted man. Of several not highly educated man. Of several books and pamphiets, intended to fill this need, none has, to our mirst, bemithafactory. Some which were popular in innguage and method incked or both. Those which were systematic ind correct failed to be really popular in language and especially in method. Within H. Leitingwell's "Essay Lessons in Secialism," just fasned by Charles H. Korr & Co. sprice, 5 cours. seems to us to come a little a sier to the mark, in at least one essential respect, than any previous attempt. Not only does Comrade Leifngwell use hopsiar language, but he avoids a mis-take of mathod that has vitiated sev-cral otherwise good books. Instead of following the form of Marx (which was adapted to his purpose, but not t the purpose of general propagands) and simply trying to abridge "Capital" ten" is a series of sermons by it and put it into familiar words, be makes an independent start and works out the subject in his own way as if no one had written on it before pamphlet does not, an we think, sito-gether dit the bill. It is too short to Charles H. Kerr & Co. of Chicago. complete. But in method it makes to complete, part is demond it makes a distinct advance. There being no much to be said in praise of the pamphigi, it is too bad to have to note that the writer has incorporated the common but extremely inaccurate statement that "the working class receives or the capitalist class." The facts of should be very careful not to exac-gerate them. And this is an exaggeration that will not for a moment the test of criticism.

Herbert N. Casson has demonstrated his devotion to the ident of harmony between Capital and Labor by writing namphlet entitled "Common Some of Labor Question" and offering to give away the whole edition of 100,000 copies. This is very generous of Mr. Casson, as it is written, to use his own ords, thy a basy man who has no copies could hardly have cost him is than a thousand or offeen hundred dollars. The chief point in the para-phlet that which is evidently degrest to Mr Cass of scheart is a victoria attack mon and truly Cassonian misrepresentation of the Socialist move-ment. We like a good hater. It isn't every man with a grudge against the party be could not rule that is willing to spend so puch of his hard cornel cash in gratifying his spite.  The National Secretary sent charters to four new locals last week—McCabe and Phoenix in Arizona and Orange and Macon in Georgia—there being as yet no state or territorial organizations

In view of the spiendid results of the Jerman election, the 21st A. D. at its last meeting instructed its delegates in the General Committee to urge that an earnest attempt be made to induce Au-gust Behel to come to the United States for an agitation tour. It was believed that a visit from Comrade Bebel Would have a great effect in strengthening the hers present as a start toward provid-ing for the expenses.

National Organizer John W. Brown, who was selected to fill Dan A. White's dates in New Hampshire and Vermont, reports successful meetings in the former state, where he closed on June 13. He spoke in Ecchester, Milrord, Nashua, Manchester, Concord (twice), Franklin, Tilton, Claremont, Hinsdale, Keens, and Portsmouth. New locals have resulted in Rochester, Tilton, and Keene, with increase of membership and prospects of new locals where none were organized. Brown began his Vermont trip on June 13. Comrade White of Massachusetts is also filling special dates in Maine upon request of the State Committee.

CRITCHLOW ANSWERED.

Editor of The Worker:—I note that in your issue of June 21 Comrade Critchlow characterises my report of Ohio state convention as a "gross mis-statement of facta." In justice to pun as well as myself I desire a few lines in reply.

1. Yes, it was held in Fraternity Hall imstend of Pricadehip Hall nemorandum shows-a slip of the pon hy a sleepy writer.

2. I reported the names of the three regular secretaries. During the last hours of the session two substitutes were selected to take the places of those having to keave. This was an omission, not a "gross misstatement of facts."

There came before the commitmyself were members, a resolution to myself were immirers, it resolution to amend the constitution, the worlding of which was changed by the committee, and which was adopted by the conven-tion as reported and, with all other shatter, to go to referendular. I took it for great discrete the state of the alond, as all action takes that course. By the way, this proposition was any bles any male to benesigate to benesig by the speakers. I know all I heard talked of was slayton's address. The way- the other speaker solicited dangates from over the state to sing his praises to the local comrades and min princes to the local committee and urged those to have him speak after Slayton, together with what he ad-mitted on the floor of the convention. vertisement, a thing he has the nerve personnly to solicit. Comrade Critchlow's own antement will, I feel, justify my use of the word "impened," to which he takes no much ex-

I think that my action in the convention will prove that no one is more strongly opposed to "these in simutions against the party's best workers" than I, but there is a sharp distinction between open statement of fact and such back-biting insinuations and calling of names as Frank P.
O'Hare was forced on the floor of the convention to admit being guilty of.
I know twenty years' active partici-untion in minority party, politics has demonstrated that falsification of facts always "comes home to roost," and I want to say to Comrade Critchlow in all kindness that he is likely to learn this fact. I believe all fair-minded delegates to the state convention will know that my report was not "a gross misatatement of facta." Those who were not there will learn the truth in due time. I can afford to await the ultimate verdict.

They need beig. Our national organimost have money fo route more speakers through that deld. Hearst is speaking money there for the wort of propagands. We should not be left be-hind.

Several states and territories in the West also want Socialist speakers to educate and organize the intense eco-nomic discontent existing there and must depend on the party at large, for the present, to help pay the expenses. It costs some money now to send out initional organisers. But as they cover their routes they leave behind them a chain of local organisations which will gradually become self-supporting and become a source of new strength to the national party and yield it revenue, in turn, to do yet other needed work. . So now is the time to give.

The National Economic League is sending out tons of leaflets and psimpl-lets against Focialism. We must see that their lies are refuted and exposed. They have moré money than we can hope to collect, indeed. But one dollar spent on Socialist literature or speak-ers will counteract the effect of fen dollars' worth of opposition, because truth is on our side.

Truth is bound to prevail—IF WE WORK FOR IT.

THE PROBLEM OF RAPID TRANSIT.

By Warren Atkinson.

New York City has increased in against it. But, when hopes of profits population 37 per cent. in ten years.
The causes that make it to the interest of large-numbers of people to remove to the cities are in the nature of the business system which offers to them a living in the manufacturing cities which they do not make on the hoort. of large-numbers of people to remove to the cities are in the intuss of the business system which offers to them a living in the manufacturing cities which they do not make on the mortaged farms. There is no doubte that this inconvenient and unnatural congestion of the population in cities is increased by the admitted practice of all transportation companies to "tax the truffic for all it will bear." And this furnishes agreements the problem of this class, calling for the inalional of the population are the problem of this class, calling for the inalional of this class, calling for the inalional of the call it will be a problem of the class, calling for the inalional of the class. further aggravates the problem of street car service. Apparently our sur-face cars could not be run very much face cars could not be run vary inten-faster through crowded streets with-out great danger. This does not apply, however, to the elevated trains. Per-haps on the existing lines hardly enough cars could be saided to comfortably accommodate the people at al That there are engineering as will be admitted. But these engineering problems are created by the present business system. That the nle can be comfortably accommo people can be commodation dated and pay for such accommodation there is no doubt. The fact is that

Investors in the stocks of the stree railway companies will admit that their investments are governed by their purpose to get the largest possi-ble profits, dividends, on their capital. Their profit is the difference between the income and the expenses of the business. They are consequently inter-cated in having this difference as large as possible; and the management that is most acceptable to them will be that which can make the expenses as bw as possible and the income as large as possible. That is to say that the men managing the street-car service are selected for their ability to supply the public with the cheapest possible service and charge them for it the largest possible price. The cost of run-ning crowded.cars is probably very lit-tle greater than the cost of running pty cars or cars only comfortably The motive for building ne lines can only be the hope of more pro-fits. Whatever tends to reduce the crowding on cars tends to reduce the profit per car and the rate of interest on stock. It does not seem that incom-petence in management could make for the public as lad a state of things as this delilierate intention to give them the poorest possible service at the est possible price.

It will be urged that the income doe not permit the necessary changes. The low rate of interest on stock will be cited to prove this. It is perfectly well known that the rate of interest on face value of any stock has no meaning whatever to show the rate of profit on investment unless the capital actually involved in the business is known. Not even the market price of the stock is any guide in determining this, for this market price is in proportion to the anticipated dividends on it, and bears so relation to either previous investment or the capital actually involved in the business. The practice of watering stock is a perfectly commonplace method of concealing large profits and diverting attention from the extortion by weiting attention from the extortion by which they are accumulated. If the profit for every $100 actually involved in the business is $25, the actual rate of interest is 25 per cent. If on this atock of a face value of $500 is solo. there would $5 profit for every hundred of it, and the rate of interest declared would be 5 per cent. Where no dividend on stock is declared at all, it will be found that profits are devoted to payment of interest on bonds which differ not from the stocks except in that interest is guaranteed at fixed

There are people in every community who hover between the hope of profit by the present business system and the fear of being crushed by it into the great mass of the working class. The foundation of this business system is the control of the land, machinery, and joy the products of the labor of the many. Labor power is purchased at the lowest possible price in the market, the in making profits, a surplus over and above its wages. This consumption of human life in unwilling, unpaid service dull to see this, however clearly shown. There is nothing in their expited relighave no moral sense that revolts have no moral sense that revolts

THE SCAR.

There is a vast difference between the "scah" and the mere non unionist. Non-unionists are those workers who drudge along like "dumb driven entile," taking no part in the great industrial struggles that are being waged around them, while "scales" are those who take an active part in the fight against the workers of their own trade. In nearly every case the "scab" is like the horse in a burning stable. who not only refines to come out, but kicks and bites the brave fireman who goes to his rescue. It is for this res-son that the strike breaker has been called a moral criminal. When a body of workers are being treated with gross injustice, when their employer contemptuously refuses even to arbitrate, and when they choose to b strikers rather than slaves, the met who take their places are morally and pocially guilty of a criminal act.

To say that it is legal to be a strike breaker in such a case only proves the moral deficiencies of the law. It is also legal to be a monopolist, to be a Wall street plunger, to be a lobbylat for the trust, to be a promoter of the wheat "corners"; but to class the Our ideas about what is right and what is wrong are changing Morality, like everything else, evolves. We are beginning to understand that the crimes against individuals are not as great as those against large lastles. of men. The social criminal injures all of us, himself included. He tries to scuttle the slip in which he is a passenger. His success means social fail-ure, and his failure means social suc-cess. These facts may not be clearly seen by the ethical teachers and the are, and his failure means social success. These facts may not be clearly seen by the chical factions and the I — The receipt of a sample copy of a professors of political economy, but this paper is an invitation to subscribe.

ownership of coal mines and rattroads. ownership of coal nime and rancass, and for the municipal ownership of public utilities. The business of purchasing later power at the lowest possible market price and consuming it to pay interest on bonds rating than stocks is to be transferred to the state. This is state capitalism, commonly (a.l-ed state socialism or public ownership. This change must extend the oppor-

unities for political corruption as it extends the powers of public officers to control of industries, and without af-feeling the causes of political corrup-tion. We do not want numerical own-er-hip of anything until we first seed as public ownership of the municipe '.i.g., Corruption of public officers is common in all states of society in which the wealth produced by the people is accumulated through various processes always legal, of course, by others con-trolling the industries of the people. There is no substantial difference in their appropriation of profit and interest and rent as the holders of bonds rather than of stocks. Such a wealthowning class always has profits to make out of the people and are certain to use all means in their power to con-trol public affairs in their own interest against the interest of the people. How against the interest of the people. However, purply in public affairs be sustained on a business system that is founded on stealing? The moral and material effects are not changed by the fact that it is not commonly called by that name. How can a political republic be sustained in industrial despotism? The costs of running a successful business are always a part of the in come, the profit being the other part. If this profit is abolished and the price to the public is made the cost of the service or product, the price must be less. If not, the incompetence or dishonesty of the management is proven, conditions being the same. It is only fair to admit that the dishon-esty of capitalist politicians is no worse than their incompetency in such worse than their incompetency in sich affairs. However, the fourteenth annual report of the United States Commissioner of Labor on Water. Gas, and Electric Light Plants shows that the municipally controlled plants do supply the public at lower rates. If it did not, nothing would be established against the contentions of Socialists, as these plants are with very few exceptions burdened with bonded indebt edense, and the interest on these city bonds is charged to the cost of produc-tion. But, if it is pointed out for in-stance that the cost of running the government Bureau of Engraving and Printing is so great that private capi-talists can contract to do the work for less and yet make a profit, this only illustrates that the private capitalist, impelled by his selfish interest, is far more successful in wringing out unmore successful in wringing out un-paid labor from employees than is the capitalist politicisn impelled by his seal for the public economy. This fact is not questioned. As a system for get-ting labor unpaid this present one could hardly be improved by transfer-ring its management to the state.

If the public do not like to be herded like cattle into the cars, why do they persist in offering bonor and great re-wards to men who do this most suecessfully? But what solution is proposed to the problem of rapid transit in cities? It seems safe to say that the service will not be run for the benepletely into the control of the public Are we going to leave the pegotistion of this transfer for us to agents and friends of the present owners of the street railways? And is it to be experted that the representatives of the people will be generally true to their trust, left to shift for themselves agains the capitalist interests they an-tagonize, and while the means of corruption is in the hands of these capi talists who have great incentives to for the profit of a few is the only easen-tial condition of slavery. These people, while as a class the most intelligent in the community, have always been too insufficient opportunities of employ ment are limited by the chances of trade unious, which have again and again been the ploneers of social reform, understand them perfectly, and act accordingly.—Coast Seamen's

AS TO HEADQUARTERS.

Long Controversy Apparently Closed by Convess of Seneral Vote Continuing Headquarters at Omaha and Installing New Querum.

Under date June 20, National Becre try Mailly reports the vote of the Ne donal Committee on three proposition that have recently come before it; 1. Mills' motion to strike out from the anti-fusion resolutions adopted at the meeting of the National Committee in Pebruary the clause: "At the present stage of development of the Socialist movement of this country there is neither necessity nor excuse for such alliances"; 2. The protest of the Ne-braska State Quorum against the counting of the vote of Ghio on the ucadquarters question; 3. Mills motion to set aside the general vote, continue the old Quorum in office, and take an-other general vote on the question in a different form.

The motion to amend the anti-fusion resolutions is carried by a vote of 17 to 5, as follows: Yes—Richardson, Cal.: Berlyn, Ill.; Work, Iows; Mills. Kas.; Dobla, Ky.; Talbott, Minn.; Fox, Mo.; Turner, Mo.; Christenson, Neb.; Claffin, N. H.; Goebel, N. J.; Massey, . D.: Critchlow, Ohio; Halbrooks Oklas: Lovett, R. D.; and Untermain and Roe of the Quorum; No-Mahoney, Ind.; Carey, Mass.; Hiliquit, N. Y.; Barnes, Pa.; Boomer, Wash.; not voling-LaKamp, Colo.; Healey, Fla.; Miller, Ida.; Raebel, Mich.; Fox., Mont.; Masser, Mass. Berger, Wis.

The Nebraska protest (based upon the circumstances attending the sub-mission of the headquarters question by the Ohio State Committee, as at ready reported at length in The Worker) was submitted to the National Committee in the following form:

"First-Was the national referen dum on the question of headquarters properly put by the Ohio State Com-

"Second-Shall the Obio vote on the national referendum on the question o. headquarters be counted?' On the first question the vote stood as follows: Yes-Mills, Critchlow, Gohel, Turner, Fox (Me.), and Untermann; No-Mahoney, Work, Dobbs, Carey, Christenson, Hiliquit, Barnes, Berger, and Roe. By a vote of 9 to 6 the Na tional Committee thus disapproves the action of the Ohio State Committee. But by a vote of 15 to 4 it decides not to refuse to count the Obio vote on ac count of such irregularity, the roll on the second question being: Yes-Mills, Dobbs. Critchiow: Richardson, Hillquit, Goebel, Berger, Lovett, Carey, Mahoney, Claffin, Turner, Halbrooks, Boomer, Untermann; No-Christenson, Work, Barnes, Roc. The third point was the following motion made by Mills immediately upon the announcement of the result of the vote on headquarters (that result being to keep headquarters at Omaha but to change the composition of the Quorum):

"That the vote on the recent refer endum relating to the headquarters and to the election of the new Quorum be declared unintsiligible and that pending further instructions from the membership the beadquarters remain in Omaha, with John M. Work, Sam'l Lovett, J. P. Roe, Geo. H. Turner, and Ernest Untermann remaining the National Quorum until further and more definite instructions from the party membership.

This is defeated by a vote of 16 to 3. as follows: Yes-Richardson, Milisi, Lovett; No-Healey, Berlyn, Mahoney, Work, Dobbs, Fox (Me.), Carey, Turner, Claffin, Hillquit, Critchlow, Halbrooks, Barnes, Boomer, Berger,

The Quorum met at Omaha on June 21, all the members—Lovett, Roe, Work, Untermann, and Turner—being present, with the National Secretary, and canvaraed the general vote of the party on the question of location of headquarters and composition of Quo-rum. The returns as already in-formally announced (see The Worker of May 31) were found to be correct, with some slight changes, not affecting the result. The Quorum accepted the result, which substitutes the National Committeemen for Wisconsin, Iows Illinois, Indiana, and Kentucky for those heretofore serving and adjourned sine die, Comrades Untermann, Turner, and Lovett submitted a brief statement of their position, with a sugges-tion that the constitution be amended in accordance with the result of the general vote.

PARTY WORK IN KENTUCKY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 20.-The Socialist outlook was never brighter in Kentucky, for the new State Com-mittee elected in March last is displaying unusual activity and we are al-ready witnessing substantial evidences of growth in sentiment and in party membership. For the past two weeks F. E. Beecks of Covington has been em ployed by Local Louisville in street work. Comrade Seeds is a plain, blund man who is a most effective speaker and all of his talks are like his personality, plain, houest, and courageous. At nights he has been speaking on the street corners and at the noon hour he has held most successful meetings at the various industrial establishments of the city. Comrade Chase of Massahunetts was with us this week and from here went to Covington, where he will put in a week or ten days in the Kentucky suburbs of Cincinnati. after which he will cover points in the interior of the state, closing at Ash-iand on our extreme eastern border. Under the auspices of the State Com-mittee W. C. Benton has made a tour o. the western end of the state and reports most gratifying success. The Kentucky Socialists are making an especial effort to increase their vote this year to the point necessary to se-cure official standing, which requires two per cent, of the total vote cast. As the present is a state election year when the rote is not so heavy as in the presidential years, we should have no great difficulty in achieving the end

Numerous pamphlets in the Pollsh, Yiddwh; and White Buthenian isnguages help in the great task of the political education of the masses. Statistical data, representing the quantity of all publications, will hardly ever amount to tens of thousands, and by its numbers will certainly not im-press English Socialists, accustomed to see pamphiests printed in hundreds of and economical of thousands. But if you will look upon Socialist Party le these modest thousands of our pam-phlets from other points of view, if you will remember that Polish Social-who support the I sts, in distributing all this literature, with Clericalism cannot make any use at all of the post office, parcel post, etc., but have been compelled to organize something of the era, but kind of their own—a Socialist post service throughout Poland and throughout the Polash western frou-tier; if you will see how our pamphlet goes from hand to hand until, it is completely wreen our and unreadable. completely worn out and unreadable, you will see that the "social efficiency" of thousands of our literature is per-haps greater than that of hundreds of thousands in countries enjoying the freedom of the press, and at least cor-responds to the "social cost" of our propagands.

And this "social cost" of our propaganda is enormous. Prisons and Si-beria take every year a heavy fax from the ranks of the party. I have not in hand the data concerning the number of rictima in the last two years, but the following statistics may give to the reader an idea of what is the "social cost" of working for Bocialism in Poland:

in in Poland:
In the year 1855, forty-two comrades were committed for aggregate sentences of ten years of hard labor, thirteen and one-half years of prison, seventy-seven years of exile to Siberia, forty-one years of Northern Russia, thirteen years of axile from Poland. In the year 1836: One hundred and eleven comrades for forty-eight years of hard labor, fifteen years of prison, one hundred and thirty-two years of exile to Siberia, twenty years of Northern Russia, one hundred and ninetyfour years of common exile

In the year, 1897; Fifty-four com-rades for seven years of prison, eighty-seven years of exile to Siberia, eighteen years of Northern Russia, sixty-six years of common exile.

In the year 1900 nine comrades were condemned to death, which sentence afterwards was com.nuted to hard in Siberia, each individual from ten to twenty years. "In that year denined to various terms of prison and exile to Siberia and Russia.

From among the prisoners but few were able to escape from, or on the way to, Siberia. To this small knot of lucky individuals belong two out of four persons arrested in connection with the claudestine press of "Robot-

The Russian government, seeing the increase of revolutionary propaganda, applies again and again prosecutions, and devises new kinds of administrative machinery for crushing the organ sation. The corps of gendarmes and secret police are increased; in Warsaw, parallel, with, gendarmes, a special force of local political police ("ochrana") has been formed; a special contrivance of Russian administrators "the factory police"—was set to work; in every factory there are a few officials whose only occupation is the supervision of workmen and discouraging them from forming any combi-nation. Every strike of workmen meets with the staunch opposition of the government; this method comes sometimes even to this, that during strikes having any chance of success, Russian governors expressly prohibit factory owners from making any concessions to labor. In such conditions every workman must become a Socialist; we in Poland do not even understand how a distinction can be drawn between a Labor movement and a Socialist movemente a distinction so apparent in England. The policy of Russian government tends only to still into the minds stil into the minds of people the con viction, that first of all they must ge rid of the dominion of the Tear; and everyone understands that in such surcoundings the class war must develop into the struggle for political independ ence. Herein lies the secret why our propagands, in spite of all prosecu-tions, continually goes forward and finds acceptance by the masses.

Since the year 1890 the Polish So-cialist Party determined to celebrate the First of May and called on the workers to make that day a general holiday. The celebration of the First of May, started in that year, was ob-served, in spife of all obstacles and proceedings, by thousands of work-men. In 1896 a new step was taken, and in order to celebrate the interna-tional holiday, a public meeting and a procession organized. To the inhabitants of a country where all public gatherings are quite free, a demonstration does not seem to be anything extraordinary. But the significance of May Day demonstration in Poland, May Day demonstration in round, where all things are prohibited, and the impression of it on the spirit of the people, can only be comprehended when we take into consideration the fact, that such demonstrations have not taken place since those held in the year 1862, on the eve of the last revolu-tion. The May Day demonstration, orig-inated in 1898, takes place now every inated in less, takes parce how every year, and year by year the number of demonstrants increases; neither Cos-sacks' charges nor the arrest of hun-dreds of people can prevent the work-ers from demonstrating their dissatis-faction with the existing order. Anti-semitism, encouraged indirectly and perhaps unconsciously by different sorts of Polish and Jewish Nationalists, and directly by the Russian government, tends to create animosity between two races living together, and in such way to turn the popular dis-content into channels quite harmless to the stability of the government. Against all these unhealthy tendencies the Polish Socialist Party must fight and also against serious dangers threatening the emancipation of the

the Young People's Social Democratic Clubs of Yorkville and of Brooklyn it has been decided to form a similar orannization, to be known as the Down-Town Young People's Social Demo-cratic Club, for the young Socialists of the Sixth, Tenth, and Fourteenth Assembly Districts.

A meeting for this purpose will be held in the Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth street, on Saturday evening, June 27. An excellent program has been arranged and several prominent speakers will explain the reasons for organizing a club of this kind, the aims of the club, and the work that it can accomplish. The Socialist Band has rolunteered its services and will render the musical numbers on the program, and several other artists have volunteered to furnish entertainment. Danc ing will also be a feature of the evening's enjoyment.

The purpose of the club will be threefold—to give an opportunity for social intercourse and recreation, to educate the members in Socialist principies by means of debates, discus-sions, and lectures, and finally to assist in the campaign and propaganda work of the Social Democratic Party.

All young readers of The Worker in the down-town districts are urgently invited to attend the organization meeting on Saturday evening and it is suggested that older comrades may do well to induce their sons and daughters become members of the club

HOSTON SOCIALIST PICKIC

The committee in charge of the Boaton Socialist Club picnic to be held on July 4 has arrangements complete and is confident this will be the best and biggest picule ever held in Boston There will be baseball, tug of war be tween Brockton and Haverhill teams and between the winner and a Bos-ton team, a basket-ball game between the German Workingmen's Club and the People's Institute, and other games. Mayor Flanders of Haverbill and Mayor Coulter of Brockton will speak. A fine souvenir has been prepared, containing portraits of our So-cialist officials in Massachusetts and much other atractive matter. The ouvenir alone, the committee says, is worth the price of admission. Those who caunot attend the picule can get copies by mail, at 10 cents each, from G. G. Hall, Secretary, 250 Westville street. Dorchester.

HORWEGIAN AUTI-STRIKE

The prompt and vigorous protest of the working people of Norway against the proposed law, modeled on that re-cently adopted in Holland and similar to that proposed in Connecticut this year, to penalize strikes, resulted in the defeat of the bill when it came to vote in the Lagthing—the love ouse of the Norwegian parliament.

FOR CITY CONVENTION.

Take notice that a convention of the Rocial Democratic Party of the City of New York, for the purpose of nomi-nating candidates for city officers for the ensuing election and to attend to such other matters as may come be-fore the convention, will be held on Saturday, the fourth day of July, 1903, at 10 a. m., in the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum, 940-965 Willoughby avenue, Bor

The Socialist Enry of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of international socialisms, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of the property of the control of the control of production and distribution into collective ownership of the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed too in production, is owned by the capitalists and not by additional to the control of t ion abroad and cahance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Sectation, which will shallob both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the lighter order of society is the working class. All other crasses, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the uphoiding of the system of private owner solip of the instruments of wealth production. The Jemocratic, Reguliniens, the conflicts which we have been conflicted by the conflict overthern of the capitalist class.

While we declare that the development of evolution conditions tends to the present of the transition to the conditions tends to the present of the time and manner of the transition to Sorialiam also depend upon the sings of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to to positivel officers, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

SOCIALISM AND TRADE UNIONISM

The trade-union movement and independent political action are the chief emanacipations of the wage-working class. REALIZABLE IDEALS.

Ideals are all right, but ideals are only founded on bedrock when grounded on the laws actually at work in human nature and human society. Ideals would be a frail dependence

if their victory depended on the over throw of human nature, but when he man nature is seen to be making straight for the same goal by flat of natural law, confidence is immensura-bly increased both in the worth of the ideals and the certainty of their resti-zation. * * *

I like to feel that the universe is going my way and when you get hold of the forces that are moving men and nations you catch the secret of the universe. A comradeship born of solf-interest has been something worth while in all the world-moulding struggles of the race. I no longer despise it, but joy to be in the thick of the comrade army moving along lines marked out by the nature of things to-ward the sure victory of the approach-ing future.—Mila Tupper Maynard in the Comrade for June.

If there are Democrats of New York City will hold a grand mass meeting in Cooper Union to celebrate the splendid progress made total vote, a second election is held to by our comrades in Germany toward the achievement of the international chrancipation of the working class from the rule of capitalism.

The list of speakers who will speak of doemlism in Germany and Socialism in the United States and the mem-ing of the German elections for us in New York is truly representative of the character of our movement. It includes John W. Slayton, union carpenter and Socialist Councilman of New Castle, Pa.; Benjamin Hanford, union printer and standard bearer of the Social Democratic Party in last fail's spieudid enupsign in this state; Morris Hillquit and John Spargo of New York and Dr. C. L. Furman of Brooklyn, all well known to the working class of the city; and Dr. Howard A. Gibbs of Worcester, Mass., one of the staiwart fighters for economic freedom in New England. Alexander Jonas the well-known veteran, will speak in German. It is hoped also that George D. If necessary, open-air overflow meetings will be arranged.

It is right and proper that the work-ingmen of the United States should join with their brothers oversea in re-joicing over the great progress made there, just as the workingmen of Germany will look eagerly for news of our election in November and heartly re-joice in the good news of the growth of Socialism that we are going to send

We Share the Victory.

The day of national exclusiveness is past. The working classes in all lands recognize their common interests and their common danger. The industrial despotism is essentially the same, whether under the forms of republic in America or in France, of constitu-tional monarchy in Britain or in Germany, or of autocracy in Russia. Mor gan and Rockefeller and the Rothschilds, the powers behind the thrones, and the Kings and Kaisers and Tsars that govern at their will, all recognize to-day that, whatever minor quarrels they may have over the division of the spoils of the world's industry, they are all threatened alike by the revolt of the thinking workers of the world.

It is no longer, as in ages past, a question of nation against nation.
This is the century of international-ism. The one real issue is that of class against class, that of the ruled and exploited and oppressed working class of all lands against the rulers and exploiters and oppressors of all lands. Every means at the disposal of the ruling class in Germany has been used, during the five years since the last general elections, to discredit, to divide, to mislend or in any way to injure the Social Democratic Party. The per-sonal influence of the Kaiser and of the whole official and "noble" body, the influence of the churches with few exceptions, the influence of all the press except the papers owned and exceptions, the influence of all the press except the papers owned and controlled by the postponement of its ultimate triumph. ONLY A SOCIAL-IST PARTY CAN THUS ENDURED AND GROW, BECAUSE IT IS THE AND ACCURATE INDEX OF TRUE AND ACCURATE INDEX OF miniversities so far as it is there possible for them to be so perserted, as well as the direct influence of the capitalists themselves, great and small, has all been directed to an open or a secret statack upon the Social Democratic struck upon the Social Democratic showment of the working class.

THE GRADUAL AWAKENING OF THE WORKING CLASS, NOT TO BENTIMENTAL AND EFFERVES. CENT ENTHUSIASM. BUT TO A CALM AND THOROUGH UNDERSOLUTION OF THE WIGORGS. ITS STANDING OF ITS WIGORGS. ITS

The Socialists of every country, the progressive and thoughtful working-men of the whole world, have looked forward to the German general elections, now just completed, with hopeful interest, as the capitalists of all countries have awaited them with ap-prehension. The election days have come and gone. Our hopes have been more than fulfilled, the apprehension more than busily trying to explain away defeat, it is fitting that we should unite onstration for the interna in a demonstration for the interna-tional solidarity of labor, its growing strength and assurance of speedy

In 180% the Social Democratic Party In the German Empire cast 2.113,000 votes. On June 16 of the present year, according to the latest official reports, we marched to the polls and registered numerical strength at 3,008,000. NINE HUNDRED THOUSAND SOL ADDED TO THE VOTING OF THE INTERNATIONAL PROLETARIAT-nine bundred thou and additional votes, not against the foolish Kaiser alone, not against millturism and bureaucracy and clexical-ism alone, but against the whole sys-tem of economic autocracy, of capitalfat class rule, that maintains arrogant officialdom, that foments were and necessitates armies and navies, that perpetuates ignorance and prejudice—

iem of economic autocracy, of capitalist class rule, that maintains arrogant is class rule, that maintains arrogant old. It is well known that Socialism counts its greatest strength among the connect superior and perpetuates ignorance and prejudice—against the whole capitalist system, with all the crits that it implies.

These are nine hundred thousand idded votes for freedom in the United Kintes and for freedom in Russia, for freedom in Russia, for freedom in South Africa, as well as for the freedom of the German working class.

According to the German system, a second old. It is well known that Socialism counts its greatest strength among the control to be doubted that there are a million more young men devoted to the Socialist ideal, who will be ready to vote af the next election, and who are ready with clear head and brave heart and strong arm to defend the ideal against any abtempt at violent and lawless reaction. The most signal victories were in the industrial kingdom of Sexony. In the last Reichstag we had tweive of the twenty-three representatives from Earony. This jour we carried eighten with all the evils that it implies. added votes for freedom in the United States and for freedom in Russia, for freedom in the Philippines and for for the freedom of the German work-

districts with clear majorities on first

The capital of the Empire also gave us splendid gains. Five years ago we cast 155,000 votes in Berlin, carrying two of the six districts on first ballot and two on second. This year we raised our vote to 220,000, carried five districts on first ballot, and lost the other on second ballot by a margin of only a few hundred votes, with all other parties united against us.

The Lying American Press.

The American capitalist press recognized the world-wide significance of this election. The old-party papers, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, are publishing made-to-order editorials to explain it away. The Republican pa-pers say the German Socialists are not dangerous fellows, like the Socialists of the United States, but are really very like the liberal Republican. Democratic papers say the German So-cialists are not dangerous fellows like the Socialists of the United States, but are really very like the liberal Demo-crats. That they should unite in such misrepresentation sufficiently allows the interest American workingmen should have in the Socialist movement

The fact is that the Social Demo ratic Party of Germany stands on ex-actly the same basis as the Socialist Party of the United States, called in New York the Social Democratic l'arty. It takes advantage, certainly, of every issue that arises. It makes campaign material out of the "hunger tariff." out of the enormous demands of the military and naval services, out of the abuses exposed in the army and in the colonial administrations, and out of the foolish speeches of the Kaiser. But on these and on every other question that arises it takes the strictly revolutionary and uncomprom-ising Socialist position. It can afford to take up all these questions, just be cause it stands on a firm and consist ent lusis of fundamenta; principles. The mere reformer often has to dodge issues, because he goes only on a basis of expediency. The Socialist who treats every question in the light of Socialist principles, need fear no issue. Such is the attitude of our German courades and they have won by it. fust because they are not the prominers and expediency politicians that the American press pretends them

In the principal manifesto issued in the late compaign, the purpose of the Social Democratic Party of Germany is set forth in these plain words:

"Our aim is the establishment of the Socialist state and sucial order based upon collective ownership of the means of production and the duty of all to labor—the establishment of a political and social condition in which truth, justice, equality, and the common welfare shall be the sure rule of conduct

That should be plain enough for even the editor of the New York "Bun" to understand.

The result was greatly to in-crease the Social Democratic vote, so that Camrade Orb swept the field.

In Denmark elections for the na tional parliament were held on June 16. We have not yet received full in-formation, but know that the Socialista gained two seats.

Whatever may be said in criticism of the unions of the building trades whatever mistakes they may have made or may now be making-and doubtiess they make their share of blunders—the one fact overshadows all others is that in this great LOCKOUT -perhaps the largest and most disastrous labor dispute that has ever occurred in this city-the interests of those who are willing to work, whether directly concerned in this industry or in others, are being insolently distegarded and wantonly outraged by an organization of those who live by the sweat of other men's brown.

The Bosses' Real Purpose.

The purpose of the Building Trades Employers' Association is plain to every man who knows anything of the real world of industry, to every man who does not take all his ideas from the employers' spokesmen.

The workingmen of the building trades have learned to organize and act together very, effectively. They have yet much to learn, but they have succeeded at least in offering powerful resistance to the aggressions of the hitherto imperfectly organized capitalists, in materially improving their own conditions and getting a considerably larger share of the product of their own labor, and . in .encouraging the workingmen of other industries to almi-

lar organized action. The employers have come to realize this and have felt that, in the words of President Eidlitz, "there was never a time in the history of the building business Wiren eduditions were as favorable for a united move as they are at present," they have felt that it was necessary to strike now and strike together a decigive blow against these workingmen who are so insolent as to demand a voice in determining the conditions under which they shall work

In a word, under whatever sweet words and pretenses of moderation they may disguise it, the purpose of the Employers' Association is to emasculate the unions of the building trades. TO RENDER THEM HARM-LESS TO THE CAPITALISTS AND USELESS TO THE WORKING and in limiting the rate of exploitation to which they will submit.

CLASS. "Divide and Conquer."

It is the purpose of the employer completely to sever the organisation of the "skilled mechanics" from these of the "common laborers." This is but a part of a general plants create divisions and dissensions and foster prejudices and jeniousies within the ranks of their employees, so that they may in future play off one uni against another, one leader against another, one grade of workmen against another, and make each in turn the ailies of the bosses against thek ACY, & which they are openly guilty, brother tollers.

Social Democratic officials would think of doing that or would dare to do it. Only One Party Dare Do it.

Democratic Judge would dare take that

Only Social Democrats would dare to take this course, because the Rocial Democratic Party stands as the party of the working class against the espitalist class, is composed of workingmen democratically organized, denends upon the working class slope for fine-tal support, chooses its candidates from the ranks of the working class, pledges them to the interests of the workers alone, and appeals solely to the working class for its support at the polis.

A party which recognises the right of one class to make profit by the labor of another class cannot consistently and in fact will not beip the workers ngninst the profit-takers.

A party which claims to see no class divisions or class interests in society, or which pretends to represent the interests of all classes and appeals to all classes for support, exanot in principle defend the interests of the exploited class against the exploiters and in practice must and does always help the exploiters to perpetuate their rule.

Both the Republican and the Demo eratic parties stand in that position Both Tammany and the Reformers pretend to represent all classes and actually represent the capitalist class,

Every vote for either of these old parties is a vote to sanction profit-taking. a vote to sanction the reduction of wages, a vote to sanction the lockout, a vote to sanction every act by which the capitalists seek to further their business interests. Shall we continue to cast such votes?

Make the City Your Dwn.

All that this city is, it has been made by its working people. It is the working class of New York that has paved its streets, that has laid its car-tracks, that operates the cars. It is the working class that has built alice the man slous and the tenements, the factories and the business buildings. It is the working class that feeds the people, that clothes the people, that houses the people, that carries the people, some to their daily toil, some to their daily peaceful and loyal population of Fin- nings, Jr., formerly of New York, is

But this New York that you working en have made and still maintain, de you own it? Do you own any share in it? Do you rule it? Is it ruled with the slightest regard for your interests? You live in the tenements that you have built, and you pay rent for them to the men who live in the palaces that you have built.

And it is they who rule, as it is they who own. Under Reformer Low the city is governed in accordance with the "business interests," regardless of yours. So it was under Democrat Van Wyck before him. So it was under Reformer Strong and under all the Republican and Democratic Mayora before him. So it will be SO LONG AS YOU WORKINGMEN DIVIDE ' YOUR VOTES BETWEEN THE TWO PAR-TIES SUPPORTED BY THE MEN

You can change all this if you but dare to think for yourselves and to trust yourselves.

Workingmen of the building trades, the Social Democratic Party call on you to cease voting into power the class that prospers by your poverty and ours. We call on you to demand more than you have ever demanded-before- to demand the FULL PRODUCT of your labor and INDUSTRIAL FREEDOMto join us in demanding and winning this for the whole working class. We call on you to study the principles of Socialism, the demands of the Social Democratic Party. If you do that with candid minds, we know that you will candid minds, we know that you will be with us, that you will resolve to the election law. Our amblem is the vote together under the Arm and Torch.

Torch and to work increasntly to educate and organize others.

The Social Democratic Party will no be "friends of Labor." They will be workingmen, the chosen and responsible representatives of organised workingmen. We call upon you, not alone to vote for these candidates, not alone to work for their election, but to become members of our party organization and take your full share in choosing and instructing and controlling them. The Social Democratic Party is your party. Join it, support it, and through it MAKE THE CITY YOUR CITY.

Poles In New York Recite the Manifeld Atrocities of the Russian Government and Demand International Astion Against It.

At the protest meeting, held under the auspices of the Polish Socialists in Manhattan Lyceum, June 20, the folto the following facts:

"That the Klehineff affair is not an mexpected or an incidental episode in the Tear's dominions;
"That the Tear's government, based on the acquisition system and on the darkness of its own people, constantly practises the persecution of its con-quered nations, raising religious and national strife, using its own ignorant masses as an instrument for murders

That the Tear's government has fo over twenty years cultivated in the minds of the masses a feeling of hatred towards Jews, backing that

"That the Tear a government has for Polish nation;
"That, but a short while since, in the city of Krose in Lithuania, officers soldiers, and Cossacks committed the same sort of murders and abuses on defenseless women, children, and old men, because the population objected against closing up the Roman Catholic

"That the Tant's government sends every year hundreds of Polish peasant families from the states of Liubiin and Sledice to Siberia, because they object to accepting the Greek Catholic eligion;

"That officers like General von Ranben are not exceptions, but form the general type of Russian officers who are rewarded by the imperial government for nitrders and robberies, as illustrated by the case of the Govern eral of Vilna, von Wahl, who re-ed a medal and a higher military rank for persecuting the laboring classes in the prisons:

That to the haugman and murdere Muravieff the government built a me morial statue on the earth still wet with the blood of his victims; "That General von Raaben was only temporarily deprived of his position, owing to the loud protest of the civilised world, but will certainly soon assume a similar one: "That during the last few years, the imperial government has deprived the and of their constitutional rights; and "Be view of the facts and nothing but the facts, be it "Resolved, That, in order to prevent in future a repetition of similar out-rages in Russia, the civilized nations should place a constant guardinaship on that empire and try to crush its despotism, thus freeing the nations now suffering in that land of blood and Fieldman and Roomer Start on Automobile Agitation Tour This Week-> New Locals in Olean and Deigeville.

Comrades Sol Fieldman and George Roewer contempiate holding the first meeting of their agitation tour in an antomobile on July 3 in Orange County.

Our reference to prospective "collitions and spill-outs" bas precipitated a flood of anxious inquiries regarding the safety of the lives and limbs of Comrades Fieldman and Roewer. The universal query is, Will they scorch? The comrades need have no fear or this score. The automobile is not built for scorching. Besides, the work of the Socialist agitators precludes fast racing. They will have to adorn tele-graph posts and fences on the roadside with posters bearing the Socialist message, paint the red letters of Socialism on convenient rocks, and generally, leave a red trail in their tracks.

Olean comrades organized a local with fifteen members to start. The officers are: Organizer, J. Floyd Johnson; Secratary, W. C. Hess, and Literature Agent, Wm. Flanigan. with them.

The Socialists of Polgeville have joined the Grand Army of Emancipa-tion with a local of twelve members, Welcome to the ranks, comrades of Dolgeville! We are expanding. Watch us grow: Local Ticonderoga ordered one hundred of the state pamphlet No. 2. Long Island City secured 250 of the same. The 10th A. D. of Manhattan ordered 100 ditto. Locals and assembly die tricts should secure a supply of pam-phiet No. 2 while they last. The State Price: 75 cents a hundred, $6 pez thousand.

TEXTILE STRIKE AGITATION. Ninety thousand textile workers are on strike in Philadelphia. The com-rades there are making every effort to bring Socialist principles to the attention of the strikers, and they are being well received. It took the experience of seven years' war to answer the former question and five years' further experience to answer the other. We can say now that private ownership in the mosus of production must and shall be done away with. The exact methods by which it is to be done away with will depend upon many contingencies, but seuse or the folly of the capitalist class in its opposition to this necessary next | National Committeeman Critchlow's step in human progress. It is conceivable that, if the capitalists have the sense to bow to the popular will as expressed at the ballot-box, the working people, more generous in the exercise of power than the capitalists have been, might grant them some their quiet submission to the new social order. That is conceivable. We do not know whether it is probable. Judging from past history, it seems rather more probable that the capitalist class, which takes large about law and order now that it makes law and maintains order to suit itself, will, once the political power is voted out of its hands, throw law and order to the winds and by foolish attempts at reactionary conspiracy and insurrection

But, however that may be, if may mch concessions are made to the dispossessed exploiters, it will assuredly not be as a measure of justice, but as a measure of generosity. They have no claime against us. We have incalculable claims against them. It is not for them to raise the question of compensation. Their fortunes are compacted of the sweat and blood and tears of generation upon generation of suffering tollers of overworked men. of the matter to an extreme, it has been women defrauded of the loys of home and family, of children robbed of their childish innocence and gies. Compensetion? Who are they, the drones of society, to talk to us, the disinberited, of compression when we resolve to cuter into possession of that which is our own? They owe us all that they have, all that they are. It is a bitter debt of wrong that we owe them. Lat them not talk of repayment. Nor will we. We will gladly can

To say nothing of ou emisention of the British King's vested right to govern this country over s century and a quarter age, and the confircation, at the same time, of the property of many colonists who sided with the British government against the releases, let us refer only to the confieration of four millions of sinvesthe confluention, that is, of some bundreds of millions of dollars' worth of property expressly guaranteed to its' owners by the constitution, the statutes, and the highest court decisions. That act of confiscation reduced amour them many who were per sountly in no sense responsible for the rebellion which had led up to it. Yet we suppose there are few if any who sists on calling it so-will reduce no one to poverty. It will deprive many and it will make us all sharers in the wealth of the richest nation on earth. guaranteeing the right to the enjoyment of truly human and civilized Hf to all. THE ADJUDICATAL.

We releice in supposing that at last the questions of national organisation which have agitated the party since any process of piecemeal mending. It the National Committee meeting at the close of January have been brought to umas need no longer be accupied to any considerable extent, at least for sion of internal affairs.

It is high time, indeed, that this should be the case. Yet, while the discussion has been tedious and has not New Hampshire and Korth Dakota, on always been conducted with that franknels and freedom from projudice that could have been desired, we are by no means sorry that it arose. We if for nothing else, it would be worth take it that several points more inpertant than the location of the Mational Secretary's office and the composition of the Quorum have been pretty conclusively decided, and it may be worth while to sum up these ambiguities, or the ommissions of a hastily and considering drawn constitu tion are not to be regarded as effective party's will; that the constitution is intended as an instrument for the ervice of the party, not a fetter upon its power to adapt itself to unforese needs; that the expression of the pres ent will of the rank and file through the general vote is of higher authority than any act of a delegate convention and is competent at any time to re verse previous decisions taken even by general vote. We heartly concur in remuzks an this point.

For another thing, it would seem to be demonstrated that those who, espe cially upon grounds of technical cor stitutionality, oppose the taking of a general vote when it is seriously de sanded are likely to turn the result o special concessions in consideration of that vote against themselves, the more strongly in proportion to the strenu maness of their pleatruction.

Again, after the vote of the Nation Committee reported last weak, it is hardly to be expected that anyone will again propose that that tody arrogate to itself the power istrongly suggestive of the record of our United States St preme Court) to declare the result of a general vote "unintelligible" and to set it saids. It is fortunate that this issue forfeit all chance of ionient treatment. moment

Yet again, quite incidentally but tone the less effectively, that delightfully vague phrase of which we have heard so much in the last two years, "state autonomy." has been given some measure of definition. Although the National Committee, in passing on the Nebruska protest against the counting of the Ohio vote, very wisely, as it seems to us, refrained from pushing -pretty clearly declared that in the future no state committee can with impunity take such liberties in submitting national questions to the mem bership as were taken in the Ohio case National Committeeman Work, decision tribines much to the clearness of our mutuel understanding by pointing out that there are two sides to the raie of state autoposiy—that the state organizatione must no more interfere in national affairs than the national organi nation in state affairs. Finally, the whole affair has one

pacity for self-government. There has been some bitterness, some unfortuaste recrimination and insinuation, some offensive personalities, some appeals to sectional pride and projudice, a good deal of brag and bluster, and site gether too much vague "sweet talk." But in spite of all, an analysis of the vote shows that, in general, the real questions at issue were considered in telligently and dispassionately by the greater part of the rank and file and decided accordingly. We have had a distinct majority and affinority in the National Committee, representing, renectively, a distinct minority and majority in the party membership; but even when the controversy waxed hottest, no one dared to threaten and so one seriously apprehended a schlam in the party. Better still, even while the contest was at its height, the work of propaganda and organization was steadily carried on, not only by the several states, but by the national orgazination theif. The credit for this, so far as it is due to individuals, is very largely due to the sound judgment and undagging energy of our Na tional Secretary, who deserves the tens of thousands of people to poverty, nimest commendation for his conduct in so difficult a position; it is due also to the spirit generally pervading the party which supported him in his determination that the regular work of the party should not suffer through these unavoidable internal conflicts. restitution—or confecution, if one in- their hopes on any dissensions that may arise among us; Secialists can settle their internal differences without forgetting the common enemy and the common purpose.

We heartfly agree with Comrador Lovett, Work, Untermann, and Turner of the outgoing Quorum in desiring that the party constitution should be adapted to the expressed will of the party membership. We have our Soubts whether the present countitytion-which is about as unsatisfactory, both for what it says and for what it fails to eay, as was ever evolved-car be put into really workable shape by to be thoroughly revised or, rather, rewritten, and that will un doubtedly be done next year. Mean while, although a constitution is not to be regarded as a thing of mored or magical authority, it may be very use ful if it is a reasonably good one. It is to hugh, to see how the eppo ente de Sacialism contradict cach other. Hup only a few menths ago, the capitalist aditions were talking us that Socialism in America was not a native movement, but it was imported, ready made, from Germany. Now the German elections have been held and registered ar unprecedented advance for our comrades there, the same saplent molders of public opinion as explaining to us that Socialism in Ger many is something quite harmises and unobjectionable, quite different from the revolutionary sort that is making so much stir in this country.

Oh, what a taugled web we weave Let us hope they keep on lying about ns. He whose rule it is to lie cannot help contradicting-himself and so destroying his own-influence.

"There are three million conscious Socialists in the United States to-day." The purpose of this surprising declaration, the inference which is meant to be drawn from it, is not quite clear. Anyhow, we take like with the state ment. "If there are three; million con scious Socialists in the United States, two million seven bundred thousand of them are conscious hypocrites and trimmers and traitors to their principles, for less than three hundred, thousand of them voted for Socialism at the last election. If a man is a consclous Socialist he knows that a vote against Socialism is a vote to perpetuate poverty and social oppresulo and crime and vice and prostitution and disease and that every vote for Socialism being to bring this reign of misery to an end. We do not think so badly of the people of America as to believe that nine-tentlus of them are so criminally foolish as this statement would imply. We do not ourselves presume to make any accurate estimate, but we would not quarrel with the statement that there are three million unconscious Socialists in the country-men who' more or less vaguely and confusedly hold to the ideals and uninciples that the Socialist Pasty stands-fee, but, who, partly became these ideas are still vague in their_minds and confused with false conception inherited from the past, partly because they as yet know little or nothing of the Socialist Party as an erganization, continue to cast their votes for one or another of the aid parties as a choice among evils. How many there now are in this position we do not know. We know there are very many and that it is our business to make conscious Bocksists of them. to do our best to clear up their conparty represents just those sound principles and that noble ideal that they are vaguely groping after. The task is a big one and we will not make it any easier by understating or miseinting it.

naciousness which does not worry about itself but works out its own interest every day. This is the sort possessed by the intellectuals of upper capitalism, and Andrew D. White, ex-Ambassador to Germany, in common with all our Am-hazandors possesses it. For twenty mil-lion dollars he thinks the universities of America could be induced to turn out professors of public affairs who would succeed in teaching us what our laws should be rather than what they are. Dr. White is not a Socialist, for this is "a patriotic investment," but he is a revolutionist. He desires to give aristocracy interpretation to our democracy laws, and by an unsatisfied and reballious what-they-should-be at-titude he means to stand for ever against any law of America that is pot upper capitalism. Since Brooklyn Bridge fell into the hands of the trolley companies it has become a bridge of sighs and apprehen-sions. The roar, confusion, and con-gestion there presented is awful. The daily dead blocks, the brutal crushing and profaulty with which the panies have separated Brooklyn from New York is a fine example of private capital's incapacity to perform public duties: What a harvest the accident insurance companies must be reaping out of the fears of the people!

America? The sir is clearing. We are getting to know where we stand. The vagaries integers whether of the class or the mins are taking their places. We hear the call and response of the honest yes and no. When we really have peace we will have no yes and no. But we will have no yes and no. But meanwhile the contrasts must work out their dissevered destinies. The capitalist answers against the laborer, The laborer answers against the capi-talist. Good. That defines the issue. America looks on. "Who will answer for me?" asks America.

for me?" asks America. Next year, or year after next, someone will answer for America? Some are answering for America to-day. Pinally, all will answer for America. For America is yet to achieve a more than simply geographical unity. Long has America waited for spiritual answers. Its mines have suswered. The factories and stores have answered. Even its farms have answered. But the spirit has remained muta. When will the spirit answer? America is all enrate listen. America is all eye to ace. America is all soul to know. But the spirit waits. For the spirit will not answer until it can answer right. And things are so to-day that the spirit could not answer right.

The first of a series of open-air meetheld last Friday night in front of the post office, Newark, the speakers being Courndes W. H. Killingbeck and Geo. H. Goebel. The audience at times blocked the street and the newting was one of the best ever held in Essex County, several persons handing in their names as desirons of more information, and one new member being oldnined, heside the sale of twenty-four pamphicss and the distribution of a quantity of literature. The committer in charge ask the aid of all comrades in Essex County in making these meetings a great success. They believe these meetings can be made to equal in results each night any mass meeting that is held indoors, as the audience to be obtained at this spot will be limited only by the strength of the speaker's voice, and the expense is comparatively limited. It is planned to have good speakers from New York, Philadelphia and local points at all of these meetings. The local comrades can aid by being present, by inviting non-Socialists, by helping to circulate literature and all the means generally necessary for indoor meetings. They are particularly requested to urge their shopmates to attend.

A large mass meeting was hald in Newark, N. J., Thursday, June 25, upder the auspices of the Polish branch, the apparers being Geo. H. Gosbel and the editor of "Robotnik," the Polish Socialist paper published in Chicago, The meeting was a decided success, about three bundred being present and much enthusism mani-fested. Quite a quantity of literature was sold.

All Socialists in Deleware who would like to see that state organised or are interested in the work is any way are requested to write to Mrs. Ella Recess Cohen, Grubbe P. Q., Har-yey, Del. Mrs. Cohen, who is an old worker for Socialism, expects to spend the nummer in Delaware, and world like to help in getting Socialism more renched in that state.

The annual convention of the Socialist Party of Luzerne County, Pa., will he held in Central Labor Union Hall, 16 S. Main street, Wilkes Barra, on Sat-urday afternoon, July 4, at 120 o'clock. A full county ticket will be nominated, officers elected, and other important business of interest to the party transacted.

arranging for a circuit of street meet ings in their city with local speakers. The Socialists of Dayton, as well as the state organization, desire it distinctly understood that they have nothing to do with the proposed "Magic City" which is being heralded as a short cut to Socialism. Work is now being started in earnest.—The latest success by the Akron courades was a festival which turned out finely. Caldwell was there and they are taking in new mambers as a result of his two days' visit.— Every speaker on the circuits in Ohlo will in the future distribute free each evening one hundred copies of the "Coming Nation." The Coming Nation Educational League is responsible for this.—Canal Dover comrades have got just four times the membership now that they had when first organised a few weeks ago.—Socialists of Newark are highly elated at the success of the first open-sir meeting there which was addressed by Comrade Kirkpatrick, About 600 were present and a scramble ensued when the literature was announced.-The work in Youngstown is heing pushed and the secretary reports excellent work done by Cakiwell in spite of the rainy weather. One evening he drove the Socialist philosophy home to a crowd of fully 1.500, the largest crowd ever assembled in largest crowd ever assembled in Youngstown to hear a Socialist State Secretary Oncal of Indiana writes that fifty-two towns have been put on the organizing circuit for sum mer work and others will be ealisted as the work develops. Thomas H. Lucas of Minneapolis was arvested in that city one night last week for "blockading the side-walk," while making a Socialist walk," while making a Socialist speech. Lucas acted as his own attormey and subjected the policeman who made the arrest to a rigid examina-tion, much to the officer's discomfiture and the intense ammement of the spectators. The judge was anxious to dismiss the case without trial, but the Bocialists insisted on a hearing, with the result that the judge decided that: under the present ordinance the So-cialists could not be molested. Lucas was followed to the police station by an immense crowd when arrested and next night, thanks to the advertising, there was a great sudience in the same place, and cheers given for the Social-ist speakers. vote of the National Committee on various questions coming before it, as reported last week, the National Secretary gives out the expressions of opinion of various members in explana-tion of their votes. Space allows us to quote only a few that seem most important.

On Mills' motion to amend the anti On Mills' motion to amend the anti-fusion resolutions by striking out the clause: "Whereas, At the present stage of development of the Socialist move-ment of this country there is neither necessity nor excuse for such alliance." which motion was carried, 17 to 5, Ma-boney of Indians, voting No, says: "We can legislate only for the present. We do not know what the future may dedo not know what the future may de do not know what the future may de-velop. It is within the bounds of future possibility that the organized workers of this country would form a Socialist party that would eclipse us completely and force us to fuse or annalgamate, but that is not within the present stage. But as we are not oracles it is best that we speak for our own time, and if we speak with cor-rectness we must admit that the Socialist movement has fused and this clause simply states that we have passed that stage. Comrade Mills gives it a biased construction."

Carey of Massachusetts, voting No. says: "I vote in the negative, not be-cause I believe the clause to be absotutely necessary, not because I believe there will ever be necessity or excuse for fusion, but as a protest against the methods used in presenting the ques-tion, and sgainst the construction placed upon the meaning or intent of this clause by Comrade Mills, lutions upon fusion. Comrade Mills was present at the time and I cannot understand why he should plead ignorance as to the contents of the resolutions, under the circumstances. Ther equivocation upon the matter neither did any member of the commit-tee give reason to believe that he was in favor of fusion. To assume, there-fore, that any member of the National Committee favors fusion because be voted for the resolutions as adopted is not only ridiculous, but becomes almost malicious, when its effect is considered.

"In this connection, I cannot help commenting upon the attempt being made by certain comrades, Comrade Mills in particular, to fasten by implication, if not directly, the stigms of cation, it not arrectly, the sligma of fusionists upon those who acted as a minority at the recent National Som-mittee meeting, because this minority opposed the remoral of the old Local Quorum in an indecent and unfair manper, as well as the summary removal per, as well as the summary removal of the headquarters to Omaha before a referendum of the party was taken upon the question. An examination of the names of those who made up the minority will abow them to be men who have been identified with the So-cialist movement for years and not one of them can be charged with ever having attempted to compromise the Fo-cialist Farty, which they helped to or ganize, or to endanger its principles.

"These comrades have differed over internal party affairs in the past, differences unavoidable in the process of organizing a party like ours, but no organizing a party like ours, our not until this year has their adherence and develon to Socialist principles and the international movement been brought into question. I especially regret that Comrade Hillquit of New York should Courade Hiliquit of New York should have been made a special object of attack. It is not clear to me why be should be subjected to misrepresentation and suspicion at this time, unless it is that ability, fearlegeness, and faithful service are to be derided inside the Socialist Party rather than excurrences.

"Comrade Mills' motion exaggerate a harmless statement but of all propor-tion with the situation. The Socialist movement has reached its present commanding position after many vicinsi-tudes and through many dangers. It is not likely that those who beloed to organize it and steer its course will try, either now or in the future, to wreck it upon the rocks of fusion of

"Nor is it likely that the new com-rudes who are now entering the party in every section of the country will consciously do aught that would undo the work that has already been done. Hillquit of New York, voting No, says: "The clause in question is an organic aid necessary part of the reso-lution. The Socialist parties in this country as well as in all other coun-tries have at the outset of their carefra supported not only other labor parties, but reform parties of the lourparties, but reform parties of the bout reols class as well, and that not as a matter of principle or choice, but as a matter of necessity.

"The first diclaration of modern Socialism was that it would not form a party of its own, but support the most rogressive and radical political move regressive and raurent pointest mover ent in every country, as those who re familiar with the 'Communist innifesto' will remember. "If a union labor party had arisen in this country at the time when So cialism was just in its infancy and had hardly any organization of its own. Socialists would very properly have supported that party. It has supported similar parties when it was in that condition, and our resolution was not intended as a censure of those past acts. We are opposed to fusion with the union labor party to-day, because the Socialist Party is strong enough to wage the political battles of the work-ing class and, being atrong enough, it is the most competent organization to Hillquit, young No. says: "I know of no powers by which the National Committee could override the decision of the membership at large, on the of the membership at larke, on the ground that such decision is 'unintelligible.' The proposition on the head-quarters referendum was submitted in the form approved by the National Committee, and the decision of the members is clear and unequivocal. As the business between the National Secretary and the Local Quorum is transacted abnost exclusively by mail and acted almost exclusively by mail and the meetings of the Local Quorum take place at long intervals. I do not see why the decision of the membership cannot be carried out. The fact that Courade Mille thinks a different arrangement more convenient does not make the contrary decision of the mem-bership unintelligible. I believe that a proceeding of this kind would set a dangerous precedent, and insist that the National Secretary has no power to carry out Comrade Mills propos tion, even if a..majority of the Committee should vote in favor of it." PORTLAND, Men., Jame 29.-Comon Saturday evening, June 27,

Comrade White has covered over six Rumford Falls, Wiscasset, Bath, Free-port, Dresden, Richmond, Bangor, Elleworth and Sanford, The audiences, while not large, owing to the poor weather which prevailed during the entire trip, made up in attentiveness and evident interest for any dis-

At Rangor a permit to use the street was at first denied, the authorities evi dealty being under the delusion that Comrada White was of the variety labeled "liable to explode," but after the Mayor and City Marshal had attended his first meeting and convinced themselves that he carried in his arse-nal no more dangerous weapons than the shot and shell of thought and speech, all objections were withdrawn and a mass meeting was held on the Square on Sunday, June 20, with the Mayor and Chief again in attendance.

ANOTHER RULING ON STATE AUTONOMY.

National Secretary reports the rote of the National Committee on the following motion offered by Critchiow of Ohio and submitted on June 1: "That the National Secretary be bereby instructed to recognize res tions presented to him only when com-ing from the Socialist locals in good standing in unorganized states and state organizations in good standing in the organized states."

The motion is defeated by a vote of 0 to 4, as follows: In favor-Richardson, Critchlow, Berger, and Unter-mann: Against-Mahoney, Work, Ca-rey, Claffin, Goebel, Halbrooks, Barnes, Boomer, and Roe; Not voting-La Kamp, Healey, Miller, Berlyn, Dobbs, Mills, Fox (Me.); Christenson, Hill-quit, Massey, and Lovett.

The purpose of the motion was to prevent locals in organized states from going directly to the national head-quarters over the heads of their state committees. The general opinion seemed to be that, while locals in organized states should, nuder all ordi-nary circumstances, carry on their correspondents with the national headquarters through their state commit-ters, yet, as a safeguard against pos-sible usurpation or suppression by state committees, it is better not to cut off the direct communication. Social Democratic Party; its emblem in New York is the Arm and Torch. The Socialist Labor Party is an entirely separate and hostile organiza-tion, led and controlled by Daniel De Leon. It is important that the distinc-tion be made clear, as a study of the election returns shows that the S. L. The leading question of party policy at issue in the split of 1800 was that of the attitude of the party toward the trade unions. The opponents of De Leonism held that the party, as the political organization of the working political organization of the working class, and the unions, as its economic organization, should work fraternally. though independently, in their sepa-

The "American" Lie.

At a distance of some hundreds of miles, however, and knowing that as yet there was no strong and trained So-cialist movement in the South, but that such a movement was beginning to and to threaten the Democratic in its very stronghold-under circumstances, Presidential Aspirant Hearst, or whoever may have then been acting for him in charge of the New York "American and Jourght it safe and profitable to publish an alleged dispatch from Nor-folk, representing Chase as having said, in the course of his address: "The it friend of Labor in this country to day is the New York 'American.' That paper, through its proprietor, W. R. Hearst, has fought the cause of the laboring man with antiring energy and the title of the people's champlon' has been well carned by that unselfain American. His fortune has not been made by greed and he pays his em-ployees according to their work." The Worker, confident that this re port was utterly infounded, brought it to the attention of Courade Clinso and asked bim for a statement. He replied in the following words: Chase's Denial.

This entire matter, Mr. Editor, is bare-faced lie from start to finish. I only did not say what the Journal and American' claims, but I did not even mention Mr. Hearst or his paper. If I had, it would have been for the purpose of brauding him as the most unscrupulous itar and fakir in Amer-ica. The organ which Mr. Hearst chooses is an alleged labor paper known as the "Labor Compendium," published in St. Lonis by one Steinblas, whose reputation as a disruptionist and misleader in the trade-union movement is as striking as it is unenviable.

What with Parry, Hearst, Mattox, DeLeon, Gompera, and the numerous cheap "matural allies" or malicious renegades from Eteinbias down to Howie, who smear when they take snug, we should have little time for anght size if we mutertook even briefly to notice all their tricks and falsifications. We do not try it. Now and the we take the trouble to expose egregious fakes such as this Henrat Steinhiss one. For the rest, we may take the Douglas motto: "They say -... 'What say they? Let them say!" "What say they? Let them say?" The 'multiplication of falsehoods against Socialism is an acknowledg-ment of its growing strength and the growing alarms of its enemies. And the more loudly they maign us, the more people will think and find out the truth for themselves. Two or three headred thousand men have heard Comrade Chase speak within the last two years. This disgraceful attack upon him will have but one effect on them, and that a good one—to make them reflect the more carefully on what they heard Chase say and to make them distrust capitalist editorpoliticians, especially "friends of la-bor" such as Hearst and friends of the friends of Labor such as his Natural Ally in St. Louis. Let us say at the outset that our campaign is not a mere municipal campaign in the ordinary sense. Whether we go into national, state, or city contests, we have always one and the same purpose. We may say, indeed, that the Socialist movement does not bave successive campaigns, but that we carry on one continuous campaign for the overthrow of competition and the establishment of Socialism in its stead, for the destruction of the political, social, and economic supremacy of the capitalist class and the emancination of the workers from all class rule. City campaigns, state camiwenden in this conflict forced upon paigns, national campaigns are but incidents or phases of this great movement.

We know that Socialism cannot be realized in a single city, while the powers of state and nation remain in the hands of the capitalists and their agents. We know that the powers of city officers are limited-especially their powers for good.

But we know also that, while a city government in the hands of Social We challenge them to meet us in fair Democrats could not do all that it discussion of principles. But if the Men be correct, we should not despise it, however we pity the monomaniac Such happens to be the case with our erstwhile intriguing and backbiting fellow party member (we find it impossible to say "comrade") and now negade, F. G. B. Gordon. For years, his hobby, his "ldfe fize," his obsessing desire, leaving no room in his head for any other, has been to carll at and pick flaws in the organization and policy of the Socialist Party, its official dec lurations, and the utterances of its spokesmen. While he yet called himself a Socialist, he seemed never to give a thought to what was good and wrung-headed Diogenes, with a rushlight lantern in broad day, searching for faults. But even a wrongheaded Diogenes may have his uses. When he is right, let us listen to him, as readily as to others.

Mr. Gordon's latest assault is in the pages of the July "Federationist." in criticism. That were not to be expected of him. He picks out certain erronoous or inaccurate statements made by some Socialists, cites them as representative utterances of the Socialthe erroneous or inaccurate étatements he criffeigns are much too commonly made by more or less credited spokesmen of our party, that his criticism is, in the main, though not altogether, & sound one, and that it is much to be desired that none of our comrades should commit indiscretions of state nent for which the credit of the movement as a whole has to suffer.

Mr. Gordon cites such statements as "The Census for 1900 shows the verage annual wage paid in this country to be $437.50 per capita and the wealth produced per capita to be $2.451 per year. The difference between these two sums represent the extent of robbery committed by the capitalists on working class."

Or this: "The workers receive only 17 per cost, of what they produce and the capitalists get 83 per cent.' Or this: "dtatistics show that the wage-workers produce $10 per day and receive only $1.33."

He then proceeds to show that, while the wage-figures given in these statements are approximately correct, the figure for the product is much exaggerated. Ho says: "The great mistake is made by supposing that the gross value of the product represents the net value. Ac-cording to the above quoted statement, materials cost nothing, freight, furl, superintendence, and office help like wise cost absolutely nothing.

"Volume 7, United States Consus,
1900, shows the gross value of our manufacturing and mechanical cutabschments to be $13.014.287.488. This gross value is arrived at by a constant duplication of value, owing to the fact that the finished products of one plant become the material of some other factory, in which they are changed into some higher form and again innto some higher form and again intotal cost of partly manufactured and | that is not the question. It is not safe original raw material used according to the Census of 1900 was $7,348,-

"This latter sum subtracted from the gross value leaves $5,686,142,743, and this is the net value added to the original raw material. All will underoriginal raw material. Air wise univer-stand at a glance that the tentile workers did not produce the cotton, nor gin it, yet raw cotton cost 37.5 per cent. of the gross total value of the preducts of the cotton mills in 190e. "Dividing this $3.086,1-52,743 by the total wage hands, 5.216,862 and we have $1,065 as the net product per von a little farther, as he shows that after silowing for cost of superintendence, fuel, freight, and one or two other Rems of legitimate cost, the avernge net yearly product per employee in about $349, instead of $2,451.

We are with Mr. Gordon, horrily.

Several times within the last three or four years The Worker has protested against the use by Socialist speakers and writers of the erude misstate ments which he here criticines. It is foolish to exaggerate. And we have no need to exaggerate, even if it were safe or right to do so. The soler statement of fact that remains, which tallies pretty closely with the result of our own auxiysis of the statistics, is striking enough. If, even under the wasteful capitalist system, the wage-worker creates an average value of $020 a year and sets back but $437.50, about 47 per cent., that should be sufficient to convince the wage-worker of the propriety of changing to a system under which he would get the whole $929 he produces—to say nothing of the increase in the product, through the reduction of waste and in other ways.

Mr. Gordon runs on to other remarks that are almost if not quite as far wrong as those he flude fault with. For instance, he argues that a part the does not attempt to guess what part) of the $220 is produced by "plant, power, machinery, and organization"as if plant, power, or anything except labor necessarily performed fixed the value of the product. His most orthodox economists could have taught him better than this.

Agein, he says: "In connection with these facts h may be well to state that the profit to the manufacturers according to the 1900 Census was $1,000,485,004. This, however, was not a net profit, for out of this sum must be taken the cost of selling goods, bad debfs, interest on burrowed capital, taxes, and internsi The Census returns are of such a character that it is impossible to figure the actual profits in the manufacturing industry. They are not near so large, however, as our social intic friends would like the public to believe." Here he is offerly wrong. The cos of selling must not be counted in this connection, because the figures are based on factory price, not on wholesalers', jobbers', or retailers' prices. In the transfer of the goods from the factory to the consumer various new elements of labor, of resultant value, and of division of that value between capitalist and worker enter in. We have no accurate data on this; and it is as well for Mr. Gordon's point of view true in the party, but went about, like profit to wages in the distributive in dustries is probably much higher than ctures. Bud debts have no place 2 such an analysis, unless we are to follow the economies of Dougla Jersold and believe that the He brideass "earn an honest but precarious living by washing each others clothes." Bad debts constitute a loss an article entitled "Labor's Real to individual creditors, a gain to indi-Share." Of course, it is not a fair vidual debtors, but neither a gain nor a loss to the capitalist class as such to its relations to the raiting class. Interest on borrowed capital, as Mr. Gordon must know, is as much a part of the income of the espitalist class as diviist Party, and proceeds to demolish dends on stock. If we are to concede them. Yet it must be admitted that the one item of taxes, we might more than cancel it by some neglected items on the other side; But R is relatively small enough to be passed over at present. It is eafe to say that the figures for total profit as given by the Census are far, very far, below the truth.

> Not in follow him into these wasaries, the essential part of Mr. Gordon's article is correct and the statement which he criticises and which are not infrequently to be met in Socialist papers are, in the form in which they are made (as expressing the direct division of product between employer and employed), utterly indefensible and perniclous.

> . Of course, it is possible to point out that, after the worker has got his wages, he has to give up a portion of it to the capitalist class in forms of capitalist revenue that have not yet been taken into account. For instance, he has to pay rout, which is as hole this would make in his average of $437.50 we have no means of saving would take away a fifth of it. Again, as a retail purchaser (and often buying in the smallest quantities from day to day and under other disadvautages), he has to pay certain monopoly profits and bear the cost of certain wasten Peculiar to such trade, which further reduces the ultimate purchasing power of his income. If then it is a question, not of what ratio wages bear to net product of labor, but of what share of their product the wage-workers are finally able to buy and consume, it is very likely that the true ratio would be as near to 17 per cent. as to 47. But for us to make statements about this question, because we have no adequate data en which to bese even an estiguate.

.Let us stick to this, then: At pres ent, in the manufacturing industries of the United States (which may be taken as fairly typical of all wage industry) the workers get back in wages but 47 per cent, of the net value they create, and the capitalists keep 53 per cent. in the form of profits or interest, open or disguised; and out of this 47 per cent., something more is exploited from the workers by the capitalists claudfords and others, but just how much we cannot say; and as the system developes, the capitalists' share tends to grow larger and the workers' share to grow smaller. This is a strong enough statement, though probably well within the facts; and this much we can awart with positive certitude. More we cannot prove and should not say.

Yes, bombs and cannon-crackers are abourd. But they are one degree less almord time the average Fourth of July patriotic speech. They may be meaningless, but they are not post-

Had he accepted with any accuracy, but very likely it a challenge or an invitation to speak at a meeting arranged by the Repub-Bean or the Democratic city committee or by the Employees' Association, had he spoken there frankly as an opponent of such party or association, none of us would have objected, for there would have been no danger of snyone being misled. What he did was to speak under the anapices of a body protending to be a Socialist organization and an auxiliary of the party, but in fact an active and corrupt enemy of the party. By so doing, he-the more. as he occupies a high official position in the party and has some celebrity as a speaker-dick-sormilis, whether he intended it or not, add to the prestige of that fake organization, hard strangers to believe that it was a genuine Socialist club, and so increase its power to harm the movement. Assuming their statement of facts to be correct tax it is not questioned by their critics, and as we have good reason for believing it), we enrilly endorse the protest of the Omaha comrades. No Socialist-and under whatever pretext, to lend aid agents for old-party politicians, must e exposed and branded for the contempt of all decent men. And any comrade who helps such men to ply their neferious trade, however innocent may be his intentions, does a greater wrung to the party than he could do by openly deserting and opposing it.

newed attack on Socialism is giving great joy to those very capitalist papers which are most virnient in their attacks on the trade-union movemen that Mr. Gomners ostensibly leads. We observe it with satisfaction, for we know that the result will be to make the working-class renders think for themselves. That is all we want.

The deficit of the postotice system is announced to be nearly twice as big this year as has, "Considering recent disclosures of the work of the good business men in charge of it, this i not surprising. And anyhow, why should we grumble? The bigger the postoffice deficit, the bigger the raisway dividends. It all goes to increase "our" national prosperity. But a Nocialist system of public ownershipsue that did hot allow for profit, commissions, graft, rake-off, and loot-that would be terrible indeed.

The New Orleans "Times-Dem crat," in a laudatory, editorial article about Bebel, the German Socialist ender, says: "A radical of the radicals in Ger amny, he would, if he held the same views in this country, be regarded, ex-cept for a few of his tenets, and these the least important, as a conservative and a mossback."

Bebel spoke in this fashion in the Seichstag, not long ago: "We Social Democraft recognitie no national frontions. There are really but two nations in the world to day the nation of the workers of the world and the nation of the capitalists of the works. They are cogaged in a world-wide war, which can be ended only by the victory of the working class through the So-cial Democratic Party." So also say we Socialists of the United States. Door 'for "Times-Democrat" consider comrades objected to Coursile Mills' speaking for the "Socialist Propaganda Club" is that this body is seither a frankly capitalistic nor an honestly 80-cialist organization. There seems to like it!—Coming Nation.

THE RED FLAG OF CAPITALISM.

By Gourge IL Kirkpatrick.

DIVIDE your enemies and CRUSH the supercilieus anobs at Saminga and THEM ONE AT A TIME; or, DIVIDE Nawport; approval from the efforting intellectual prostitutes of a subsidized press; approval from the "leading citiests," approval from the "leading cities". these are military tactics craftily em-ployed from the days of Alexander to the time of Baer, Parry, Hanna, Mor gan, and Rockefeller. These tactics are absolutely reliable. The asplinlists know these tactics; the expitailuts accept these tactics; the cupitalists em-

Regarded from the view-point of engitalism another war is now imperatively necessary. The much plundered working people are beginning to think Thought is revolutionary. Thought is intellectual nitro-giveering for hissing intellectual attro-giveerme for massing the flinty mountains of prejudice. A thought is a file, a sharp saw for a soul in the gloomy dungeon of prejudice. Thought kills. Thought atterly destroys mental rubbish. Thought never alayes promptly become defiant and dare to do for freedom. Thought lifts -kills slavery.

Thought, however, can still be prevented. Nascent thought can still be strangled in a wild delirium called "patriotio" war. Hence, everyone with influence must play his prostitute part in remerceting the ferocious thirst for Stiffe brotheriners. Strangle man's grand, sweet dream of peace. Because a fat life of domineering idieness for Industrial pirates and their pampered pers and shameless hangers on is not much longer possible, unless the mas-ters, as usual, can set the working people clutching at each other's throats draining each other's sweat and blood draining such other's awart and blood in a hateful sparm of national epilepsy called 'patriotic' war. Drug the working people. Rend sgain to the weary multitude the goriest pages of recent history, and declare to them that an act must be soaked in human blood before it is magnificent. The people must be the page of t lust again for another savage sturm of stupid wrath called war.

FELFRHACH: The Roots of the No. cialist Philosophy. By Frederick Engels. Translated, with a Critical Introduction, by Austin Lewis. Chicago, Charles-H. Kerr & Co. 1968. Cloth, 133 pages. Price, 50 cents.

Grant Allen says that no den tion will really convince an Englishof a right-angled triangle is equal to the sum of the squares of the other two sides until he has seen a railway built upon plans involving the use ing dividends. This is putting strong. But it is no doubt ensure that proposition and the company pay-But it is no doubt essentially strong. But it is no doubt essentially true that the English are an unphilo-mophic people, and it is doubly true of an Americans, who add the faults of national youth to those of the commer cial spirit. We take pride in being "practical," and too often that means that we take a perverse and unreasonable pride in being superficial. It is to be feared, therefore, that the circle of readers to whom this translation of ers book on Fenerbach will smesi a small one. However, so will be a small one. However, so much in to be mid—that in the ranks of the Socialist movement is to be found more capacity for the appreciation of such books time in any other circle of the American reading public, not excepting those who talk with the most assurf their own culture. For most of ne-and alor that is should be so-Hegel in a mame and Fenerbach one degree worse, an un-heard-of name. Yet if there lived any man in the pineteenth century who for sheer power of mind and for fluence upon the world's thought deserves a permanent place above Marx. that man was certainly Hegel, Americans at least think that we know something of Darwin and Spencergenerally at second hand-and we talk rather confidently about them. Hegel's direct influence on Darwin was probably very slight; but what Dar-winiam owes to the Hegelian philosophy, what Hegel's influence did to make possible the understanding and the ready acceptance of Darwin's great idea, it would be hard indeed to overstate. As for Spencer, he certainly has never-realized to what an extent he is a Hegelian; but the world will ultimately recognize that a very large part of Spincer's tremendous work consisted in putting into its right form the content of philosophic thought that Hegel embodied in false and confusing

The epoch-making idea of the nine eenth century, the idea of evolution in its largest sense, was enunciated by Hegel with a force that, circumstances sophic thought of the whole world. In England and in Germany the develo ment of the idea took somewhat inde-pendent courses with Darwin and Spencer in England, Marx and Enge's above all others in Germany as its great exponents.

Yet, by the greater number of those

tot, by the greater number of 10000 who have read him from preface to colopbon. Hegel is regarded as the great champion of idealism, as opposed to materialism—most unitarity of wordst—as opposed, let us ear, to the mientific method and "Weltanschup-ing." That is beenuse most studen"s read with their eyes only, not with their brains, because they read words and not the things that

How Hegel is related to Darwin and After-Purwin, to Spancer and After-Spencer, one who cares to know-and all should care to know-may and learn much beside, from the de lightful pages of Pavid G. Rivilia How Hegel is related to Marx, in what relation the "Communist Manifesto" stands to the "Philosophy of History." by what truly Hegelian manner of turning inside-out the Hegelian idenism, welcomed at first by reactionaries ns well as by empty dreamers, transformed liself into what we knew as tory" and became legitimately the philosophy of the social revolution, he who cares to know-and, again, all should care to know-may learn from the not so attractive pages of this little book of Marx' great and modest collaborator and thought-comrade.

Not so attractive. It is all too short and it presumes too much philosophical fraining in the average reader to be always as lucid as might be wished. But let us take the good the gods provide enreasonable to expect that every book should be at once as compact and as clear as "Rocislism, from Utopia to Science."

And one need not care much for Hegel or Feuerbach to find it worth while to read and reread the fifth and losing section, in which the "materialistic conception" is expounded and ilinstrated—especially the exceed-ingly suggestive, though so briefly sketched, application of it to the history of religion.

As for the translation, Austin Lewis as grappied bravely with a difficult task and, on the whole, succeeded as well as we need expect. It may be ungracious to pick flaws, but we canungracions to pick flaws, but we con-not refrain from asking whether "genial" on page 30 and page 68, "alienation" on page 52, "fantastie" and "fantastien" on page 53 and else-where, "delivering" on page 53, "evi-dences" on page 64, really convey to English minds the contextual meaning of the words they are used to trans-late. Near the bettern of mas 57 three. late. Near the bottom of page 87 there is a break in the construction and thesense, evidently due to a printer's "out." Finally, to do no more faulfinding, we could wish for a footnoton page 66 to explain the now so us-familiar wead "phlogistic," and allit more for a footnote on page 54 to tell the unwary reader just what sort of

Joseph Wanhope, formerly editor of the Chicago "Socialist" and now of the Eric "People," contributes to the July number of the "Courade" the fifteenth article in the "How I Became a So-ciniist" series—decidedly the best, we should ony, that has yet appeared under that head. Leonard D. Abbott writes on "The Influence of Emerson and Thoreau," John Spargo on "Keir" (J. Keir Hardie), and William Thur-ston Brown on "A Question from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children." "Love and Labor Krnest Crosby, is a astribut aimed at a certain type of dilatrante reformer; to our judgment, it is not up to Mr. Crosby's mark. The people are already discarding the old-time sarrow ideas induced by their hitt-enclosed savironment and are coming up into the glad sunshine of the broad kless inculcated by the guepal of Socialism. The free, independent, American citizens of Somerville. Coam, are afraid to have a Socialist paper sent to them because the postmenter. Mr. Homer, is brother-in-law of the Keeney brothers who own the principal local manufacturing company. Subscribers to Socialist papers having failed to get their papers regularly, one young fellow had courage enough to go to the post-office and ask why the paper which he had paid for did not come, and he received the reply: "Yes, it comes every week, but we did not think you wanted such a paper, so we put it in the banket." On July 1 Comrade Frederick Krafft spoke to about two hundred people at Five Corners, Jersey City, and sold tweaty-four copies of the "Comrade." Temple, Room 7. All who are interested in Socialism are invited to attend and join the organization.

The mosting hald by the Social Democratic Party in Cooper Union last Friday to celebrate the fremendous gains of the German Socialists was well at who presided, in opening the meeting, denounced the lying of our public press, and declared that the Secial press, said tonarou that the secial Democratic Party of dermany was as revolutionary as any assembly district branch of the S. D. P. of New York. He compared the editor of the New York "Times" to Dickens' Mr. Pod-snap, who put all annoying facts be-hind him with a wave of the hand, and pointed out that the "Pitues" spoke of Liebknecht as if he were living, no knowing that the great German was dead, aithough he had the largest funeral ever seen in Europe. This side of twins, said Hanford, there were of twins, said Hanford, there were never two people more allies than the Kaiser and our own Reseaveit, and we will do with Kaises Rossaveit and the class he represents, what the Social Democrate of Germany will do with Kaiser William—thêt is get along without him. George D. Herron, who had just returned from Europe, follow-ed with a sharmeteristic address, dealed with a characteristic address, dealond, Va., and ing with the difference between reform and revolution and declaring that the also see being victory of the German Social Democracy was due to the fact of its having been a consistent movement. He pointed out that the German Socialist move ment had succeeded in preventing the precipitation of an abortive revolution at arms which would be just what the Kaiser desires, and warned the American workers that the same danger should be avoided here. Comrade Her-ron spoke vioquently against the temptation to compromise with the old prejudices of the people in order to make temporary gains and declared that Socialism stood for a complete break with the whole existing society. Herron was followed by Dr. H. A. Glibs of Worcester, Mass., and John W. Slayton, the Socialist councilman of Newcastie, Pa. Dr. Gibbs said the the door of opportunity was closed to the workingman when the individual tool of preduction became a machine and would never again be opened ex-cept by a Socialist ballot in the hands of class-conscious workingmen. The elequence an d wit of our Massachu setts comrade made a most favorable impression upon the Socialists of New York who heard him for the first time.

According to this statement, which The Worker, from other sources, has The Worker, from other sources, has reason to believe correct, the name of the Socialist Farty was seized upon in 1900 by corrupt agents of the Republican party, for the purpose of dividing the opposition and securing Republican rictory. Very little Socialist agitation had at that the been done in the state, there was virtually no organization there, and the field was thus still open for political fakirs to use the lit-tle unicratood word "Socialist" as a tle understood word "Socialist" as a phrase to juggle with, to attract senti-

THE "C. R. M." REPORT.

Frank P. O'Hare writes us to desp that, as stated by our Ohio correspon dent. C. R. M., he took advantage of "boom" Comrade Mills for the presidential nomination, saying that what he did do was to recommend Mills as a speaker. He also denies having spoken as reported about the New York coursiles and organisation.

On the same matter Comrade Thos. C. Devine of Toledo writes us, pointing out that State Secretary Critchlow's reply to C. R. M. dealt hegely with ridiculously unimportant details, and declaring that the statement of C. R. M. in regard to the State Secretary's report was virtually correct; the report did contain the objectionable language sileged by C. R. M. and the only resson it was not referred back was that, on a motion to that effect being made, the Secretary himself caucified the passage, so that Comrade Critchlow's phrase to juggle with, to attract sent-mental radicals away from the atready declining Populist and Bryanite move-ment. Theo. Kharaz, T. A. Edwards, G. E. Baird, Alexander, Chambers, and Randolph are named as having been active in this move.

After the election of 1000 this group dishitsegrated and began to quarret, probably about the division of the spotia. Baird and Edwards charged speakers wanted for the patty.

The change is a change of name only not of the identity or character of the before the House, several of our op ponents spoke in enlogy of MacCart-ney's noble personal character... Rep-tesentative Schofield said in past:

"As one of those who, during the past two years have had the opportunity of knowing the late Frederick O. MacCartney. I have learned during that time to respect and honor him as an earnest, honest, and enthusiastic advocate of the rights of the masse sistently opposed to special privi-leges to classes. I also learned to know Mr. MacCartney in his every day life and to find in him the kind, courteeus, and lovable man, who, in spite of the fact that in debate be was always firm. determined, and intensely in earnest in the advocacy of the principles in which he believed, could, when the fray was over and the battle fought, meet his most determined opponents with the courtly grace and the pleasing smile of a warm hearted Christian gentleman. That his belief in the principles he advocated was sincere and honest, no one who knows him can doubt. Whether victory perched upon his banner, or whether the cause he loved was engulfed in defeat, he stood firm as a rock for that cause, and never sacrideed principle for policy."

Representative Everett said:
"In our political and in some of our theological views we were wide apart as the poles, but that did not bluder me

"Let us briefly analyze his character. In the first place, he was honest and sincere in the advocacy of what he thought was right. The press of New England has given him credit for that, and every man on this floor believes it.

hate, his unfailing courtesy to his fel-low men, his undying friendship for his Intimate associates, formed a cluster of recklessness. On the battle plain amid charging squadrons, the air full of the missiles of death, and the dead and dying all around, he would have been in the front ranks, and one of the first to scale the parapets of the enemy and plant the dag of his country thereon. Brave as he was in life, he was equally brave in death. Hour after hour, and day after day, he kept the grim monlast enemy until compelled to yield by sheer exhaustion. In his hours of de-lirium, he imagined himself once more standing upon this floor, and he hurled ousness far beyond his natural strength."

the legislative policy of the state. It is to be supposed that in the heat of de-late and argument statements would be made that would have strained and wounded feelings between us. Such, however, was not the case. MacCart-ney, while fighting incesssantly for the principles which he so, fondly wished to see realized, at no time forgut intensely for a radical change of con ditions as applied to the people and the government, he at all times accorded to his opponents the same courtesy and respectful hearing that he wished to receive. He was certainly a man whom the people of Massachusetts may be proud to claim as a citizen and .tb Legislature proud to claim as a mem ber. Honest, upright, incorruptible, MacCartney was a shining honor to the Massachusetts House, and, although of an opposing party, I can here will ever be questioned in least degree. Representing as he did the smallest of the political parties of the state, nevertheless, his ability from the commencement of his membership conneiled the admiration and atten-

The instery of that struggle is now complete and the story of the moral victory achieved has been written in the memory of the people. As the party of the working class we seek no credit for our activity on behalf of the miners' cause in the industrial rebellion of 1902. We desire, however, to point out to all workingmen that the influence which cuerted itself at the last moment be-fore the battle of the ballots and brought about the settlement of the strike, was a political influence, and that that influence was spurred to ac-tion by the class-conscious political war made by the Socialist Party upon capitalistic politicians. COVINGTON CAMPAIGN.

COVINGTON, Ky., July 1,-The Bocialist Party of Covington has adopted the following platform and nominated candidates for the municipal election

Ky., again calls upon the voters of the city to intelligently consider the follow-ing self-evident facts:

"I. The present system of the pri-vate ownership of industry produces;

upon the one hand, monopolized wealth (trusts), which controls the political powers of antion, state and city, as well as the press; and on the other hand, poverty, crime and disease.

"2. A small percentage of the people practically own and control all of the means of production and distribution, and by reason of this ownership are enabled to exploit labor; this is the capi talist class. The larger percentage of the people are compelled to sell their labor power (mental or physical) to this class in order to live; this is the working class. This class produces all wealth and receives for its share less than one-fifth of that which it creates. "3. The Republican and Democratic parties are owned and controlled by the capitalist class, and therefore rap-resent the interests of that class. The Socialist Party alone represents the interests of the working class.

"4. A people to be free and independent must possess and exercise the right to select their officers. To-day we elect our political officers, but our industrial officers are forced upon us through the alternative between working and starving. Socialists demand in dustrial democracy as well as political democracy through the collective ownership of the means of production and distribution, operated and controlled in a co-operative system by the workers, under which system each and every worker will receive the full pro-duct of his labor.

'We wish to emphasize the fact that city governments as well as state and national are to-day controlled by Capi-tal and used to benefit Capital's interests (note the valuable franchises practically given away by city counells, both Republican and Democratic.) At At-lantic City the course who had the meeting in charge was called out of town by the demands of business for several days coinciding with the time of my visit, leaving nothing arranged in advance. Not knowing another soul in the city I found it impossible to get up a meeting in the abort time at my disposal. Friday I went to Newfield and there found a gratifying state of affairs. Comrade Weiss is the pioneer in this region, and he has done his work most efficiently. The branch is small, but the material composing it is all of the right sort—earnest class-conscious workers. We had a large openair meeting in this town, and sold a number of pamphlets. At Point Pleas-ant I was disappointed to find that no meeting had been planned. The place is a great sea-side symmer resort, and from June to September the visitors have no thought but pleasure and the residents to make a harvest while the sun shines. "TILL HUNGER SHALL COMPEL CAPITULATION."

PROBLEM UNTIL HUNGER COM- THE COUNTRY," says Baer. PELS CAPITULATION.". These are the words of Charles L. Eidlitz, President of the Building Trades Employers' Association of New York, when asked as to the prospects of a settlement being reached in the great lockout.

"TILL HUNGER COMPELS CAPI-TULATION." Are those the words of a citizen to free fellow citizens? . Are they the words of a man to his equals? Are they the words of a useful memher of society to other useful members | prejudice, to break with inherited traco-operating with him in the world's work?

The very question raises a smile. They are the words of a master to his rebellious slaves.

They are the words of a superior, conscious of power and careless about right or the public welfare.

They are the words of a social parasite, who feels that he is able to dictate the terms upon which other men shall be allowed to exist and is determined to use his power ruthlessly for his own interest, regardless of the sufferings-even to the extreme of hunger ... that it will implies mon, those who have created his wenith.

They are the words of an enemy of Labor, an enemy of Civilization, and an enemy of Mankind.

And remember, they are not the words of Charles L. Eldlitz alone. He Is a capitalist, indeed. But he speaks here, not only for himself, but as the chosen agent and representative of the organized capitalist chass. It is THE RECTAL GREED AND LUST FOR POWER INHERENT IN THE CAPI-TALIST SYSTEM that he thus puts

Mr. Eidlitz and his class have it is their power to-day to make the work ers go hungry. They have that power because the workers have been too careless too disunited, too timid, too humble-because the workers have voted the agencies of government local and national, into the hands of the capitalist class. The workers can vote that power of hunger out of the capitalists' hands whenever they will, AND THEY WILL DO IT SOON-alt the sconer for the inscient talk of Eidlitz and his lik.

Law passed by the New Jersey Légis-lature in its last session and approved on April 14 shows that the old parties in control at Tranton have noted the progress of the Socialist Party and wish to put every obstacle in our way. POLICE AND PROPERTY. All private ownership of public re-sources rests back upon fraud and injustice, and depends upon force. The more the wealth of a nation becomes centralised, the more standing armies become necessary. The more the re-sources of a municipality become pri-vately centralised, the stronger and more necessary becomes the police force. Policemen and police systems exist, not to protect men, but to protect property. The legions of the Onesars were not for the protection of men. but for the protection of the plunder-ers—the Roman patricians. The Roman Cassar finally came to be a more chief of police for the plutocracy. Murder and intimidation of Working men by Domecratic Administration -Socialist Prepaganda Among the

Very little about the strike of street car workers in Richmond, Va., is being said in the outside world, so it is not generally known that martial law is practically in force. Since the strike commenced and the milital has been on the ground numerous outrages against the strikers and outrages against the strikers and their sympathisers have occurred, one of the outrages being the shooting of a small boy. As the state and city are controlled by the Democratic party, a report of the strike situation in Bichmond, under date of July 6, from Comrade John Catrell, a member of the Bricklavers' Union of Bichof the Bricklayers' Union of Rich mond, is exceedingly interesting Comrade Catroll's report is a graphic description of the methods being employed to defeat the strike and the nanner in .which the local Socialist are improving the opportunity to put the strikers in the right political track which leads to Socialism. He says:

Frank Gould of New York owns the controlling interest in the consolidation. There are 627 street car men now on strike, and when the struggle began, the company failed to very poor. The company has im ported strike-breakers from a de tective agency in New York-Drum-moud's. The leader of the strike-breakers is the notorious Farley, who makes strike-breaking a business and who claims to have a force of 2,000 men throughout the country ready to act on demand. Farley receives $2,500 a year and expenses, and his 'profes-sionals' get $2.50 per day and all they are permitted to 'knock down.' heard one scab say, 'Dis was a bun trip for knocking down, didn't bave

The local papers immediately roared and ranted for protection for the 'sacred rights of private property.' The militia called out, and although martial law has not been declared, yet the police powers are being exercised and if man makes a derogatory remark is the presence of a scab the soldiers jump off the cars, arrest the offender, and the police justice (?) soaks him for ten dollars and sixty days.

These people tried to have me shut out but the union men knew me, as I had belped to get relief for the striking miners and for the street car men of Norfolk during their strike, so the leaders' efforts were unavailing. I have visited the union a dozen times, and each time have been called upon to speak, despite the efforts of the newspapers to scar the strikers by misrepresenting us and of the leaders to create prejudice against the Socialists.

It is safe to may that its only real effect will be to examperate the feelings of the Can-adian workingmen against their capitalist misrulers and actually to draw closer the bonds of international fra-

The Berlin Decision.

It will be remembered that, as its orted in The Worker of June 21, h beginning has been made in Causda in following the judicial precedent against trade unions established by the Taff Vale and Denaby decisions in England and by the Rutland decision in the United States—Judge Meredith of Berlin. Out., having awarded to the Krug irniture Company damages against a local woodworkers' organization for having carried on a strike, although no question was raised of the use of violence, threats, or other unlawful methods by the strikers.

Canada has in the past someticonsidered a backward country. apitalism is now developing rap idly in the Dominion and the Canadian workers may evidently expect to enjoy all the "blessings of modern civilisa-tion-lockouts, blacklists, adverse laws police and militia to break strikes-in which the toilers of Europe and of the United States already rejoice.

And Socialism is growing in Canada, too-In Ontario, in British Commida, in every part of the country—and such re-actionary laws as this just passed in-dicate the alarm which the exploiters of the north begin to feel.

of the new law is most pointedly shown by the last section, which out-rages the universal rule of common law and common sense by throwing the burden of proof upon the accused We can best find a historic parallel for this tyrannous provision in the Fugitive Blave Law enacted in this country some fifty years ago.

Let this be remembered: The Fugitive Slave Law made more Abolitionists than did all of Phillips' or Garrison's speeches. That and the Ured Scott Decision made possible the Emancipation Proclamation and the Turee Amendments. Well may the thoughtful and prudent co ists to-day cry to their frantic fellow exploiters: "Beware! Be moderate, greed and your ambition." FORTU-NATELY A RULING CLASS NEVER CAN RESTRAIN ITSELF. DO NOT DEPEND ON THOSE ABOVE. There is one thing the working class tearn, and that is not to d on leaders or those "higher up" to de the heavy work, or any great part e the work in the struggle for emancips tion from wage-slavery. Man's ma terial interests determine his cities and the material interests of the capi talist are in conserving his fortuse at the expense of all who are in the way is in securing his farm to himself no metter what happens to anybody sine; and the interest of the leader is in keeping these that follow billed to their own reason, and strong only in blind obedience, to his will. The workers can never hope for anything from these. 6 The farmer makes a good fighter when he loses his farm, and the capitalist is often times useful when he loses his capital, but not until they are members of the working class, with material interests identical with that class, will they fight for and with that class and come to victory in the end as an inherent part of that class. LAW IS USED.

State of Texas Prosecutes Trade Unions.

lemogratic Law That Was to Grush "Criminal Trusts" and Not Hurl "Logitimate Susiness Interests" Turns Out to Se Aimed at Labor Organizations.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. July 0,-The boasted anti-trust law of this good old Democratic state, which was to strike terror to hearts and pocketbooks of Rockefeller and Morgan and forever to paralyze the "crimital trusts"—as dis-tinguished by the Democratic states nen'from "legitimate combinations of capital"-is now to be enforced with capital"—is now to be enforced with a vengeance. It is to be enforced, that is, not against the trasts, but against the trade unions—which is, exactly what anyone familiar with the principles of the Demogratic party and the influences which control its organization should have expected.

Presecuted for Boyostting.

A suit for penalties aggregating $0,000 has been filed in the name of the state against the San Antonic Crades Conneil and the local Electrica Workers' Union in the Fifty-seventh District Court. The suit is based on an alleged violation of the Anti-Trus Law passed at the last session of the Legislature. This law, while ostensibly simed at trusts and combinations of capital, also seriously restricts the right of laborers to strike and to with draw their patronage from unfriendly employers and buriness men. The authors and advocates of the law vehenently protested, while it was pending in the Legislature, that it was not in tended to apply to labor unions at all.

While the suit is filed in the name of the state, the real plaintiff is the owner of the Herff Building, at the of Alamo and Commerce corner of Alano and Commerce streets. In the exercise of what they have heretofore believed to be their inalienable right to trade where they pleaned, the union men of San Autonio decided not to trade in this building because one of their bitterest enemies had been given the contract for constructing a portion of it. The purpose of this suit is to punish them for this and to enjoin them from carrying out this agreement.

The courts are about to suspen their sittings for the summer, so the use will not come up for hearing be-for October, and possibly later.

in the attack on trade unionism through the courts. Following the precedent set in England last year, we have already had in Vermont and in Ontario decisions favorable to the em ployers in civil suita against trade unions for damages on account of strikes or boycotts, and suits of the same sort are pending in Connecticut, lillinois and Wisconsin. We have also in several cases within the last few years seen injunctions issued at the suit of employers to forbid working-men's organizations to declare a strike or a boycott. But this is, we believe the first time that a state has initiated

The only question is: How many more aggressions of this sort on the part of the capitalists, how much further perversion of the law to the service of social parasites will it take to convince the working class of the resity of taking control of the legis lature, judicial, and executive powers of government in order to make and enforce laws in the interest of humanity, as they have so long been made and enforced for the protection of

THOUSANDS OF CHILD SLAVES.

Capitalist Horrors in New Jersey.

Eight Thousand Children Working in Manufacturing Industries, Alone-Farcinal Pratonse of Restriction by

Mrs. Florence Kelley, well-known for cient factory inspector in lilinois and Secretary of the National Conimers' League, gave an address fore the Summer School of Philanthropic Work last faturday in which, she spoke in part as follows:

"I select New Jersey to illustrate the results of the default of philauthropy lu this important deld because it is one of the great manufacturing states of the Union; a northeastern state, a near neighbor of New York and New Enghand, where the most enlightened measures have been adopted for the children of the working class; but briefly be-cause it is the classic example of the result of the endeavor of the trades unions to protect the children, without the aid of enlightened philanthropic experience in securing legislation and the enforcement thereof.

"The history of child labor legislation covers a period of twenty six years, from 1877 to 1003, New Jersey having been the next state after Massachusetts to enact a child-labor law. At the end of that time New Jersey has according to the 1902 counts, 8,042 children under the age of sixteen years en-gaged in manufacture, and ranks in this respect between South Carolina and Georgia.

High Rate of Illitoracy.

"New Jersey has 2,040 children be-tween the ages of ten and fourteen years who cannot read and write, thus ranking next to Arizona with its Iudians and Mexicans in the number of illiterate children of these ages. When measured by the percentage of children who can read and write, New Jersey ranks twenty-one in the scale of th states, having failen from the fifteenth to the twenty-first position in the de-"When ranked according to the actual umber of illiterate children, not the per cent., New-Jersey ranks thirty-first in the scale of fifty-two states and territories. But this is only a part of the story; 8,042 children are at work in factories and workshops; it makes a great difference to them whether they work work eight hours, according to the laws of Utah Montana, and Arisons, ap the admirable new statute of Lil-nois; or nine bours according to the new law of New York; or twelve hours according to the infamous law of Pennsylvania; or without any limit what-ever as long as they can keep awake and refrain from fainting where they "Now, in 1802 New Jersey enacted a law limiting the hours of work for women and minors under eighter years of age to the period between seven A. M. and no noon, to six P. M. five days in the week; and between setter A. M. and noon on Saturday. This ap plies to all factories and workshops. It prescribes a working day, of not mor than ten hours on five days in the week and makes the Saturday half-holiday compulsory for all women and minor under the age of eighteen years, all the year around. It has never been repealed or pronounced unconstitutional.

"This statute placed New Jersey in the forsfront of the states as having the most enlightened of all the laws governing the bours of labor of women and children. But there fell upon this law the same blight which has vitiated all the New Jersey child-labor legisla tion; namely, WHOLESALE EX-EMPTION followed by NON-EN-

"What liberty can a nation give where the state dominates the individuals who make the state; where every village has its exar; where personal ambition is mullified by the state's seizure of and exploitation of the results of work, thought and discovery; where men are seeigned to tasks, as soon as they come of age, as they are assigned to classes in the schools; where savings are useless and impossible; where the shirk and dullard thrive disproportionately, and the wise, economical and painstaking are not rewarded for their merit; where government not only fixes the employment and the wage, and controls utilities and output, but settles for It-self who shall marry and how far the child shall be educated?

It is proverbinily good American fashion. Yankee fashion, to answer question with question. Let us be American:

What liberty DOES a nation enjoy few individuals who own the nation's means of production, its means of life? THAT IS AMERICA TO-DAY.

What liberty does a nation enjoy where every factory, every mine, every railroad, every lumber-camp, every bonausa farm or plantation has its czar, who holds the knout of discharge and blacklist over the shoulders of the tollers, who can work and live only by his permission? That is America today.

That is America to-day.

What liberty does a nation enjoy where thousands upon thousands of children are assigned to tasks, before their little bodies are half developed, and must stand all day or all night, week in and week out, year in and year out, coining their childhood into fat profits for the mill owner and miserable wages for themselves, to help keep the wolf from the door of

Every comrade or sympathizer with the Social Democratic Party in New York City should make it a point to be present at the party piculc in Sulzer's Westchester Park on Sunday, July 10. The whole net proceeds of the plenic go to the party organization of the city and state, the Volkmeltung Conference, which has actively co-operated in arranging the affair, having generously having generously oted to give up its share of the profits to that a good sum may be raised to start the campaign

An interesting feature of the picnic will be the presence of Mother Jones and a delegation of textile strikers from Philadelphia.

The park is a large and pleasant one and every preparation has been made o assure a good time to all who attend. There will be prize bowling and other games, good music, dancing, and other forms of amusement. Admission is 10 cents, payable at the gate.

The park may be reached direct by the West Farms or Southern Roulevard cars from One Hundred and Twenty. ninth street and Third avenue the clevated to One Hundred and Seventy-seventh street and the Tremont

THE SOCIALIST VOTE.

The Socialist Party (the Social Democratic Party of New York) has passed through its pectual general election. Its growing power is indicated and its speedy victory fee-phaleuved by the great increase of its vote as shown in these digures:

There is really nothing surprising in the revelations of the continuance of cluttel slavery in the South. With the possible exception of the emancipation of the Russian serfs, the emancipation was probably the greatest farce in history Without land or tools or other censed being chattel slaves. With a neither industrial nor other education. and with race prejudice added to their other handleaps and carefully perpetrated by the economic masters of soclety, it could not but come to pass that evils of chattel slavery with those of the wage system in the worst conceivable form. The condition of the prolethrist is always worst in those regions enough to break down old feudal or testriarchal relations, but not yet for cough to waken class-consciousness and define class antagonisms. But as the darkest hour is said to be that last preceding dawn, so at this worst mocapitalist development one must not look back with regret to the old days of slavery, more tolerable though they were, but forward with hope and resolution to the class move mont that is to bring real freedom into the lives of the tollers of every nation and of every race.

One of the most luteresting recent de that concerning the Mexican Sugar Reet and Farm Laborers' Union of Oxmard, in Southern California, Both Inpanere and Mexican laborers ar dargely employed on the sugar beet forms and in other agricultural work In that region as well as in railway struction and other forms of labor In the past their competition-they be ing accustomed to a lower standard of life than that of the native white workingmen-has had the effect of lowering Wages and impeding organization, and sunch race antipathy has resulted.

Of late, however, as shown by sev eral incidents reported in The Worker. light the Mexicans and the Japanes have come to recognize the identity of their interests with those of their us. tive brother toilers and have organized ennported the struggles of the olderunions of white workers. This was notably true in the Los Angeles trolley strike and in the trouble at the beet sugar works at Oxnard. It seems, too, that the local white workingmen have behaved admirably, throwing their old prejudice aside and readily fraternising with the Mexicans and Japanese.

Unfortunately, the administration the American Federation of Labor has not shown the same good feeling or good sense. The Mexican unions named, having applied to the Federa tion for a charter, President Compers' reply, in sending the charter, included this declaration:

"It is further understood that in issuing this charter to your union it will under no circumstances accept membership of any Chinese or Japanese. The laws of our country prohibit Chinese workmen or laborers from enering the United States and -proposi tions for the extension of the exclusion laws to the Japanese have been made on several occasions,"

The Maxican union replied by returning the charter, pointing out that the condition imposed was a violation of the expressed principles of the A. F. of L. which state that neither race, color, religion, nor nationality shall be a har to fellowship in the Federation, and declaring that under no circumstances would they desert their Japanese fellow workers. Secretary Lazarraras wrote to President Compers:

"Our Japanese brothers here were the first to recognize the importance of co-operating and uniting in demanding a fair wage scale.

"They are composed mostly of men without families, unlike the Mexicans in this respect.

They were not only just with us, but they were generous. When one of our men was murdered by hired assausins of the oppressors of labor they gave expression to their sympa-thy in a very substantial form.

"In the past we have counselled, fought and lived on very short rations with our Japanese brothers, and toiled with them in the fields, and they have been uniformly kind and considerate. been uniformly kind and considerate. We would be false to them and to oprseives and to the cause of unionism if we now accepted privileges for our-selves which are not accorded to them. We are going to stand by men who stood by us in the long, hard fight which ended in a victory over the enemy. We therefore respectfully pe-tition the A. F. of L. to grant us a charter under which we can unite al the sugar beet and field laborers of Oxnard without regard to their color or race. We will refuse any other kind of a charter except one which will whe out race prejudices and recognize our fellow workers as being as good as ourselves.

It is to be hoped that the white mion men of Southern California will vigorously uphold the Mexicans and Japanese in this position and that unions affiliated with the Federation in all narts of the country will expres to the administration their disapproval of the policy of uphelding race divi-

It is one thing to oppose the intro duction of Mongolian laborers into this ountry under conditions that inevita bly make them a force in lowering the general standard of living of the working class. That is, under present conditions, clearly justifiable and neces sary, however repugnant it may seen to purely theoretical and abstract jus of the American slaves forty years ago tice. But it is quite another thing to shut the doers of the labor organiza tions to Japanese or Mexicans of means of production, they must needs | workingmen of any other race who are ecome wage slaves as soon as they already here, who are willing an eager to join, and who have proven servile tradition behind them, with their intelligence and courage and idelity to the international cause of Labor. To do that would be to justify these men in acting as scabs and strike-breakers, in becoming conscion tools of the capitalists, as in the pass some of them have been unconsciou and apwilling tools. The raton that shuts out men who are willing to join it in good faith deserves to suffer from their opposition; and if it persists in

tich a pullry, assuredly it will suffer

It is not only in the editorial col mnns, last equally in the news articles that the capitalist press serves the interest of the expitatiot class at the expense of the workers from day to day. One of the disgrant instances o this is the regular sensational "featur ing" of the reports about the great de mand for workers in the Western burvest fields and the high wayse be ing paid to them. The object of ther articles—aside from the general purone of demonstration the existence of "prosperity"—is to bring about an overupply of labor in the wheat region and so keep down the wages of farm shorers, and -- what is in one sense i ridental, but perhaps more directly the motive of the vensi press-to fill the roffers of the employment agencies and he rallway companies. Every year this game is worked. We are told that there is an enor nous demand for labor in the when felds, that every comer has a chance of employment, and that unusually high wages are being paid-most which is true, for a little while. We are not told of the killing intensity of the labor, from before dawn, all through the broiling summer day, till long after sunset. Nor are we rewinded of the fact that this rush of work lasts only a faw weeks, that then the inbores who has spent his previous savings in order to rush to the harvest their own conditions, but have lovely big admittedly high warse no mon than enough to reimburne him for this expense, finds himself turned off with out the slightest consideration to find another job if he can or turn "hobo" if he cannot. Nor, what is still meet important, are we told that, every summer, after the first few days of harvest, the roads are covered with idle men, tramping from farm to farm in search of employment, finding the jobs everywhere filled by those who have been first in this artificially stimulated rush. Nevertheless, with some local exceptions, this is the case.

In spite of all the glowing stories in the daily press, the worker who has a job at a dollar a day, with a chance that it will hold out for a few months at least, will do better to stick to it than to be lured to the prairies by the reports of three, four, or five dollars a day being paid to harvest hands.

American Independence Day was fitly celebrated at Travemunde, in the Baltic. Cornelius Vanderbilt entertained the Kaiser and Prince Henry on board his yacht. The dispatches may: "When the banquet began the Emperor's yacht Hohenzollern fired a salute of twenty-one guns by order of the Emperor. The music included a number of American airs and also, at Mr. Vandérblit's request, the 'Song to Aegir,' composed by the Emperor." So say the dispatches. This "Song to Aegir," by the way, is the one that brought several German musical critics to grief. They said the music was no good-which was the truth-and were prosecuted for lese-majesty. It is said the Prince, Cornelius, and the Kaiser gut to talking about the growth of Socialism on loth sides of the water, though, and that this spoiled their appetite for dessert.

A writer in the Scattle "Socialist" points out that the defenders of chattel-slavery in 1836 declared the Republican party, then in its first campaign, to be the party of "atheism and free love," just as the defenders of capitalism now accuse the Socialist Party. It may be added that the Christians of the first three centuries, the revolutionists of the time, were subjected by the pagen ruling powers to exactly the same accusations of "ritual murder" and secret, laservious rites that are now brought against the Jews of Austria and Russia by the Christian clergy for the purpose of stirring up reactionary Antisemitism. Shander is one of the arts in which every ruling class is adept, and no not of rulers have practised it with more skill or less sense of shame than our modern dollar aristocracy and their parasites. But "Truth is mighty and will pre vail," in spite of sil.

To the true Socialist obstacles are never sources of discouragement, but only of inspiration. Let our comrudes in New Jersey bear this in mind-as we are sure they will. The arbitrary art of the Legislature, by which they are deprived of official standing, should and doubtless will only stir them up to nore vigorous and general activity and lumire them with an indomitable resolution to win back, by trebling their vote, the recognition that has been denied them. Let us see if the politicians will dare, to that case, to raise the limit to ten per cent, pext year. To work, comrades of New Jersey, and rebuke these misrepresentatives.

The effort to create sporadic labor cutive of the fact that such partle came of the fact than such parties have been merely local in character and without any well defined program to give them prepetuity. To attempt to rare the unions into a political or ganization would hardly be advantageous, if, ludeed, not suicidal. Therefore it appears that the only sa-tional line for the exercise of political action by trade-unionists would be to join hands with the international labor party—known as the Sazialist Party— and work with R. or even $6, see car.

The cause of Socialism has advanced in the Enited States principally of "Innominate," has correspondent in Rama There is perhaps not one other foreign correspondent to the American prems who is better informed or who has, on the whole, as been an insight into current history. That his judgment-or, at least, the expression of it —is sometimes colored by policy, is not to be dothred; but allowance is easily to be made for that. "Innominate," if not himself a prelate high in the Roman church, certainly has account to both cierical and diniomatic, that center at the Eternal City.

The letter of June 24, published in the "Sna" of July II, deals with "The Portalists" Triumph" (that is the head-line) in Germany and the relation of Socialism and Clericalism there in a post interesting manners. We reproreminding the reader that Bismarck's two great struggles during his ascend-ancy of a quarter of a century, were against the Catholic church and against Social Democracy. In both, he fulled. The "Rulturkampf" will probably be set down in the final judgment of history as the Iron Chanceltor's greates ler. He boastfully said, recalling the humiliation of the Emperor Henry IV. before Pope Gregory VIL in the year 1076, "We will never go to Canosa." He did go to Canosa. nevertheless. The "Falk laws," designed to break the industries of the Church, had to be repealed, just as the "May laws," designed to crush Social Democracy, had to be abandoned. Just as the May laws strengthesed the Social Demo-No socialisa nguator, educated or characterie, has any right to expect more than existence wage for the work. He should be willing to break even with the rank and file who dig ap their dimer and dollars to carry on he work of agrication.

On every coin that goes into the second control of the many continued powerful long after those laws were revoked. In the days of the walturkampf and the May laws the two pursecuted parties how far infufar by policy it is not necessary to in-quire—to a certain extent stood together. The Social Democrats, then as by the state, opposed the Falk laws. The Cicricals of that day ejustituted a really democratic party and, under the really statesmanlike leadership of such men as Windhorst and Kutteler, opposed the reactionary "blood and iren" policy by which Bismarck sought to suppress Socialism. Too late, the government abandoned or modified its reactionary attirade toward both op-poments. The Social Democratic Party, disciplined by presecution, was not to be misled or divided by the subsequen policy of concession. The Center, hold-ing the balance of power, made full use of it: but its character changed; from some corner will be too sharp and sudden for you. After that you will dodge hide behind. They never man you.

What have you got to say to this mob. America? Thus caste America? Tou have got to the surface of the government. To where the content of the government is and comes to you for food do you say:

It is man is starving closs as such allies always are. Willia and comes to you for food do you say:

It, too, has had to "go to Canosas." I have got to the government and the government and the results and to "go to Canosas." I have got to the government and the government are the government and the government and the government are cions as such atties always are. William II., too, has had to "go to Canossa." In the Reichstag of 1804-1903, the government could carry its favorite projects military, paval, colonial, etc.—over Social Democratic and Radical opposi-tion, only by making every time a cost ly bargain for the support of the ter, and the Center, in these later days, has not hesitated to support the most reactionary measures, provided only it got its price. "Innominate" points out that the election held last month, eno morracy at the expense of the govern-ment parties and without weakening the Center, not only continues, but even accontinues. The dependence of the Knizer on Cierical support. He hopes, or affects to hope, that the Center will return to its old radical policy. We do not share the hope or belief, but we, commend his letter to our readors' attention. He says:

"The Vatienn has received several reports on the character and the sign denuce of the German elections. When a Cardinal was asked some time ago why. Withelm R. was paying such assidness court to the Pope and to the Catholics, and especially why the Kaiser paid so pompous a visit to the Vatican, against the wishes of the Quirinal," (that is, the Italian govern ment), " and finally, why he subordin-ated every policy to keeping good relutions and close collaboration with the church, he answered: This arder and this policy are attributed generally to the great idea of the re-establishment of the Empire of the West and to dreams of Par-Germanism; that is true. dreams of Pan-Germanism; that is true, but it is not the whole truth. In a few years the German Empire will enter into an organic crisis. Intherankan la dying out; faith has become a rare jewel; from the ruins of Luther; Reformation the triumph of Socialism will arise. Without the Catholics the Kaiser will be unable to rule. He will have to become either Catholic or Sochalist.

"The German elections instifu this prophetic view. Blamarck, with his wide-reaching and piercing glance, had seen the flood riving, and his natriotic agrit to another for his creation. He proposed to Windhorst" (then the Cleri-cal leader) "to abolish the May hive in exchange for the restriction of univer-sal suffrage; he wished for a coup-dient. The leader of the Center party refused; he declared that the Center. founded on the proper, would never agree to a policy of political inequality and of bateful reaction. Bismarck did not dare to take action alone, but he said to Windhorst; 'You are wrong; la twenty years the Socialists will have the majority in the Reichstag."

"Twenty-three years have gone by.
If the socialists are not yet the rolling power in the Parliament, they form the uniority is the Protestant provinces. Soon here will be only Sociafists and Catholics in the Federal Parliament. From personal and trustworthy sources I learned last winter that Prussin, in consideration of the radical successes was opening again the discussion of Bismarck's audacious plan and was considering the means of suppressi with the help of the Center, it will keep on living from day to day. This tem-porary arrangement will last probably until the Socialists work their way into the Catholic districts. Will that ever come to pane? Will the Center be able to rotain the loyalty of the people? That question will be answered by the No cielist policy which the German Catho

New York "Commercial Advertiser" editorially says:

"A significant fact is found in the which the Radicals have sustained. The Radicals in Germany represent what would be called in any other Western country the party of moderate constitutionalism. They wish to bring about quietly and without violent antagonisms a régime in which the Emperor would assume a rôle like that, stance, of the King of Italy. They himself so completely as does the English King in purely political matters; but they would, on the other hand, have him hold the balance even be tween parties and abstrict from perpetual meddling with legislation. To the Hadical party belong some of the most enlightened men in Germany. smong whom are numbered such men rvatives on the one hand and the ialists on the other, as was occuthe Bell and Everett party toward the Republicans und the Southern Demo-

Discussing the German elections, the moderation and the party which repre-few York "Commercial Advertises" sents them are only means for staving off the life-and-death battle which sooner or later has to be fought out to the bitter end. Hence, in the future, we must expect to see little by little an elimination from German politics of the smaller factions such as the Na-tional Liberals, the Aleations, the Free Conservatives, the Independents, the Poles and the Panes. These must ultimately drift into one or the other of the two great hostile camps. To paraphrase Napoleon's famous psephecy, Germany must some day be all Imper-ialist or all Socialist."

In the United States, too, 'The issu must finally be fought out by those who represent absolute conflict." The German Radicals stand, not only in the position of the Hell and Everett party in 1800, but in the poistion of the Democratic party in this year of grace 1903 -between the devil and the deep sea.

DUORUM MEETING.

The Local Querum of the Matiena Committee Considers Matters of Importance to the Socialist Party.

OMAHA, Neb., July 11 .- The Nation. Quorum of the Socialist Party met national headquarters on July B and G. with Victor L. Berger, B. Ber lyn, John M. Work, and R. M. Reynolds present. The National Secretary gave verbal report of his work, which will included in the semi-sunual report, ered by the Quorum.

tional Committee, was brought before the Quorum. After a thorough discussion, Reynolds moved that the National Recretary notify the State Secretary of Utak that if dues to the national organi ration were not paid within sixty days from date, the state charter of Utah would be revoked, and the present Nociulist state organization

In connection with the above, Berger moved that the question of recognizing either W. H. Tawney or Murray E. King as National Committeeman from Utah be deferred until the question of the standing of Utah in the national organization has been decided. Carried. Under the head of organization, the National Secretary reported as follows: John C. Chase would conclude his tout in New York this month: John M. Ray would be in Alabama for the next two weeks; M. W. Wilkins was in Wash ington; John W. Siayton had completed ington; John W. Stayton had completed his tour; John W. Brown was in Maine; and Jehn Spargo was in Philadelphia for a week agitating among the strik-ing textile workers. The proposition made by Ben Hanford regarding terms for a western tour was endorsed and the National Secretary empowered to make arrangements accordingly. Applications to act as organizers were read from Geo. H. Goebel, Jms. A. Slanker, and others. Pending action on these applications, requests for assist-ance were reported from Connecticut, Florida, Delaware, New Orleans, Illi-

The question of appointing an organ-iser for the district of Wyoming, Ne-vada, and Arisona could not be settled definitely on account of a letter from Walter Thomas Mills, flied with the National Secretary, objecting to the ap-pointment of Harry M. McKee, who had made application for that work. After discussion, Reynolds moved, that the National Secretary notify Mills of the desire of the Quorum to appoint Harry M. McKee as organizer in Wyo-ming, Nevada, and Arizona, and that 'he state his objections to McKee before any further arrangements be made

M. W. Wilkins was assigned to the forthwestern states, including Montana, Idaho, and the Dakotas.

Applications for assistance from the various states were then considered. On motion of Reynolds, a donation of $10 a month for three months was made to Florida. PENNSYLVANIA NEWS.

PHILADELPHIA, Pn., July 13.-Nowhere in the Union is there a more fertile field for Socialism than in the Keystone State. Pennsylvania with its cont mines, coke furnaces, railroad shops, steel works, and textile industrice, with its Quoya Carbigles, and Baers, and with the himselves of Homestead and Lattine's all fresh in the minds of the people, offers the greatest opportunity for prohinguida in the country. From all over the state come tidings of a general awakening. Towns and villages that have never had a Socialist speaker of organizer are sending applications for charters. Requests for information how to organize and for speakers are constantly being received at hendquarters.

At the meeting of the State, Committable has been formated from the constant of the state.

MINNEAPOLIS, Mina:, July 12 .- Socialist agitation is not being neglected in the North Star state? Though we have no general election till the fall of 1904, we are working bard to prepare the ground and sow the seed for a big harvest of Socialist votes at that time. To return to agitation in the state: Comrade Thompson worked under the auspices of the State Committee, but took the financial responsibility of his tour on himself; he turned in $35 to the funds of the state committee.

The State Committee's lecture van, in charge of Comrades G. E. Etherton and G. I. Martin, has been in the field since May 23, and is greeted everywhere by large audiences, and great interest is shown in the cause. The expense of minimaling the wagon for five weeks, from May 23 to June 26, was $125, with receipts of $32.76 from collections and sale of literature. The commudes are urged to contribute as liberally as pos-sible, in order that we may be able to keep up this work.

But now it is suddenly claimed that the Socialists are getting ashamed of their platform. The only political movement which does not wander about aimlessly, but is proceeding attaight toward a really great and mighty goal, is suddenly said to be veiling its aim. The men who frankly confessed and announced a new world who paid for their honest convictions, during the last five years alone, the penaity of three hundred years of imprisonment, are now suddenly charged with tramping through the country in the guise of mysterious heroes of detective stories and with having no other care but to concent their dark plans behind a spotiess shirt front. Every bourgeois campaign meeting, every capitalist campaign leadet, loudly proclaims: The Borialists are concealing their real program.

Our capitalist antagonists are not aware how bitterly they are mocking themselves. Our program, our aim, that is the standard which we have arried through all election campaigns from victory to victory. Their lack of a program, their clumsy demagoguery swhich covers the milf-interest of their class with the phantastic costume of the alleged commonweal, their well-fed self-satisfaction, have received their just dues at every election. But now we are said to have learned from them how to lose battles by diligently Initating their methods. Well, we are not Christians enough to love our ene-mics, but we are human enough to be unics, but we are human enough to be paid love, and our opponents claim ashamed of the pitiful meanness in that we wish to introduce public brlich those images of God are sunk.

Official science, though it is wedde to the doctrines of the state, has long ago been forced to renounce the idea of the eternity and immutability of the present social order. And the human mind cannot conceive of any other reorganization of society than that prearing in the sign of Socialism. The secutial theory of capitalism, that of the Manchester men-which at least represented a logical aystem-has no longer any room in the life of this world. Socialist Papers Withheld from Subscribers and Destroyed.

Evidence Received from Connecticut and New Jersey that Postmasters Deliberately Hold Back Copies of The Worker-Subscribers Must Aid Us in Stopping the Abuse.

When the National Economic Lengt ntered the field, a few months ago with the ostensible purpose of check-ing the progress of Socialism by a "campaign of education," we had reason to say that Postmaster General l'ayne would give it active assistance the scononic organizations of the working classes are defending with stubborn seal. Why in the world, Our readers know how the power of the government has been abused, through Third Assistant Madden, to deprive Socialist newspapers of the second-class mail privilege—"Wilshire's Magasiae," the Seattle "Socialist," the "Coming Nation," and several other papers having been put to great in convenience and expense by his criminal partiality. It now appears that the postoffice authorities are playing another trick, a smaller and quieter one, with the same purpose in view. Two weeks ago The Worker printed the following com-

A Second Instance.

Although this letter suggested an exchanation of rather frequent complaints from subscribers as to the non receipt of the paper in cases where we knew the papers had been malled in right order, we waited for further evi-dence. We did not have long to wait. This week we have received the following statement from John G. Sincisir of East Orange, N. J.:

"This is to certify that I have not received the newspaper called The Worker for weeks at a time. The automobile with its decorations attracted a great deal of attention, and brought out such re-marks as "I tell you, the Socialists are growing," and "The Social Democratic Party is the coming party."

As they proceeded along one of the main streets, two horses hitched to a stage took fright at the noise of the machine. Two men jumped to the horses' heads, another raised his hand signaling Fieldman to stop the auto-mobile, which he instantly did. The Automobile Law merely requires an operator, in a case of this kind, to stop the motion of the vehicle. Field—to testify to anything that would tend man not only did that, but stopped the motor, which is the chief factor in making a noise, and naturally the idea that Peckskill was turned into a

At this point a man in uniform, who turned out to be the Chief of Police, approached the automobile, and very colentiv depunded to know "Who gave you the right to go through this town with those namers and flags?" Fickiman answered: "The right did not have to he given. Everyone has that right." But the man in blue, in a manner rougher than ever, shouled, "take them off or I will haul you in."

At this juncture a trolley car coming up, Fieldman had to move the ma-chine to give room, and did so without frightening the horses. While he was so engaged, the Chief kept on insulting and threatening Fieldman with arrest, if the signs were not removed at once. Comrade Simmonds, to avoid cuce. Comrade Simfionds, to avoid trouble, had by that time loosened the braces which held the banner in place; and the signs complained of were practically out of the way, rest-ing on the dash board.

An "Order-Loving" Citizen.

A large crowd had now gathered, and one man, pointing to the Ameri-can flag, remarked: "That's all right, but that red fing don't belong there." Fieldman replied, "It woes, and it will stay there." Thereupon, the individual aprapg to the automobile, grabbed the red flag, broke off the staff and threw the emblem on the ground. Fieldman, in a firm but quiet manner, informed the intruder that he had absolutely no right to touch anything absolutely no right to touch anything on the auto, no matter how much he disapproved of what is displayed there,. At this point the officer of the law, instead of protecting our property from this lawless citizen, grabbed Fieldman by the arm and said: "(50 on, set that size off, and said; "Go on, get that sign off, and be anick about it!" Fieldman replied that the signs were down, practically out of everyone's way but his own, and it should make no difference to him how long it took to pack them up. But the officer grew more insolent, which brought forth the remark from Fieldman: "Who are you, a man or Jesus Christ?' Thereupon the officer vio-lently simpled Fieldman's face, grabbed him by the throat, and though no resistance was offered, called another officer and took him to jail, choking him with the right hand, and almost twisting his arm out of its socket with his left. As he went, the Chief indulged in a running mono-logue such as this: "The gall of you! Eugene V. Debs has made a forcible reply to these faintiers through the columns of a local paper, bringing out the real facts of the case. He said,

"If Captain Dudley is correlly quoted, he is an ass. As a mater of fact, not a single Socialist was ecunected, directly or indirectly, with the Evansville outrages. The Socialists are the only ones who recognize not merely the political and economic equality of the negro, but his social equality as well. Among Socialists there is not the slightest trace of race prejudice and to charge that they in stigated the riotous crusade against the negroes in Evansville is an infamous question, said that as he reached to lay his hand on Fieldman's shoulder Fieldman moved quickly so that his calumny.

tical party to which Dudley belongs is responsible for these crimes. In the late municipal election at Evansville hundreds of negroes were imported from Kentucky to help elect the present Republican Mayor of that city. The negro whose murder of the policeman precipitated the conflict, was one of these. He was a Republican, the po-liceman he murdered was a Republican and the city officers for whom he acted as political plugger were also Republicans. After the election this negro felt that as one of the main props of the administration he could strut and and has been so much overworked that swagger at will. This was the starting point of the present trouble which since then has been brewing and required only some spark to set it off. The whole trouble is the culmination of the negro as a factor in politics and, as is notoriously true, a corrupting fac-tor, since he finds ready sale for his votes in the political market of Evansreased to explain his riotous conduct, this eminently truthful gentleman said he threw the rel fing in the

THE RED FLAG OF LABOR.

When that exceedingly respectable | the red flag stands for conflict, uncom Peekskill said on the witness stand | against all forms of class rule, whether that his reason for tearing down the red flag and casting it in the dust was by the meaner race of money lords. that he regarded it with hatred and Only through that conflict which is contempt as an emblem of Labor, he being bravely and patiently waged all inadvertently - perhaps half unconsciously-told the exact truth.

That is exactly what the red flag is ; ushered in, -an emblem of Labor. It is an emblem | Those who now rule and live in case of Socialism, of Social Democracy, and luxury by the toll and privation which is the same thing, because the Social Democratic Party is the party of the working class.

Just what does the red flag meau? Why does the organizer sent out by the Social Democratic Party carry it side by side with the Stars and Stripes? Why does it rightly stir the "eminent citizens" to wrath, and why does it rightly rouse the enthusiasm of the workers?

The red flag stands for internationalism. In every country of the civilized world it is known. It is the symbol of the identity of the interests of the tollers of all lands and the emblem of the ideal of universal human brotherhood which it is the historic mission of the tollers to realize.

But it is more than that. If it is the emblem of peace and fraternity between nations, it is also the emblem of conflict between classes in every nation where class rule exists. The red flag stands for revolt, for revolution, for the intelligent revolt of the workers of the world against the world-wide system that keeps them in poverty, that condemns them to an inferior position, that makes traffic in their brain and muscle for the profit of a non-producing class, It stands for the determination of the subject class, the exploited class, the socially useful class, that they will cease to be subject and exploited.

As the symbol of an ideal, of a future for which we strive, the red flag stands for peace. As such it deserves the respect of all who put the general good above sordid personal gain. As the emblem of a fact of to-day, and cruelty has disgraced.

of others, who have been trained from the cradle to regard the dollar an the highest ideal, who use their national fing as a veil behind which to hide confuse the minds of the workers and keep them divided and subdued-they have no reason to love the red flag.

They despise the working class that has so long bowed down to them. Why should they not treat its emblem with contempt?

They hate and fear the working class that is slowly but stendily learning to think and act unitedly in its own interest. Why should they not be moved to anger by its flag?

They will go on with their outrages outrages even upon the forms of law they have decreed. They will go to any extreme-of lawlessness, of disorder, of brutal violence or of cowardly treachery, by which they think they can maintain their economic privilege and keep the workers under the yoke,

But by every such act they will help to destroy the respect which many of the more thoughtless workers still feel for them, will help to rouse the workers to independent thought and selfrespect and self-reliance, will help to break the yoke and to destroy their own power,

Tear down the red flag with insolent hands and trample it on the earth, gentlemen. We will reply with votes that will put that banner of the world's tolling humanity over your court houses, over your city halis, over your capitols, side by side with the national flag your greed and cunning

An Overworked Phrase. Debs replied in a further interview

n Monday's "Gagette," saying: "In what I had to say to the 'Gazette' was specific. I quoted Captain Dudley and commented on his charge that Socialists were responsible for the Evansville riots. What had this to do with the soldiers? Is Captain Dudley the whole company? As a matter of fact, I did not even mention the soldiers and the charge that I made an attack upon them is not only untrus but foolish. The phrase 'soldier boys' is often made to do duty in such cases it had better be given a rest. It is getting to be here almost like in Ger many, where one cannot even criticis an army officer. In these later days any criticism of an individual who wears brass buttons is at once resented as an outrage upon the 'soldier boys,' an 'attack on the army,' etc. "I don't believe there is any indigna-

This paper relterates the charge of Captain Dudley that the ringlenders of the mob at Evans-ville were Socialists. Let this paper and Captain Dudley name them or even one of them. The Socialists of even one of them. The Socialists of Evansville are well known by the pullic officials and the newspapers of that city. If even a single ringleader had been a Socialist is it not only probable but certain that he would have been named and pilloried by the press?

"The silly subterfuge that some hysteric woman has claimed that she has heard from some other woman that her cousin had told her that her brother, who was shot in the riot, was a Socialist is hardly the kind of testimony upon a body of peaceable citizens and

"The indictment of Captain Dudley was no less than that of riot, bloodshed, and insurection; he exonerated all others and placed the entire responsibility upon the 'Socialists and the Anarchists.' As there are no Anarchists in Evansville, the Socialists came in for the brunt of the charge, and as alience would with many mean confession of guilt, I entered denial and called for proof. And until this is furnished the author stands convicted and no amount of 'indignation' will alter the case. If the Socialists of Evansville are rioters and murderers, as charged, let them be not only named but sought out and punished according to their

were the ringleaders of the mob. This would be a still sadder commentary, on the municipal mismanagement of that city. I am quite sure that if there had been a Socialist among them he would have been known and his name exploited as a horrible example

The whole incident, will, in the end, have no other effect than to pillory some of the leading old-party politicians as conscienceless simulerers and to lead a considerable number of honest people to a better knowledge of what Social-ism really stands for.

the "Appeal"-emphasizes the distin

the mass of Sorialist voters. He is willing, perhaps, that the party itself should be coherent-that it should be at least American (if not international on a large scale; but he thinks it "the height of folly" for us to take such as ideal into consideration in our political propagands. This point of view is indicated in another paragraph, which we quote exactly, emphasis and all: "There are two things to keep in mind always. "lst. The party member ship, which is the school for drilling party workers, both in the work of propaganda, and in the matter of democratic government. No effort should be spared to increase this membership to the highest possible point. 2nd WE WANT VOTES. The votes will always vastly exceed the membership of the party, and this need give us no concern whatever, and the vote must be cultivated constantly whether classonscious or sentimental. IT IS IN-THE ORGANIZED MEMBERSHIP. THE GOVERNING BODY, THAT WE MUST GUARD OUB CLASS

CONSCIOUSNESS."

Against this more general proposi tion we must protest still more strongly. Doubtless it is true that in the future, as now, many Socialist voters will remain outside the party. That is to be regretted. Every voter should be a party member. But, even though this he unavoidable, we have no right to make it, as is here proposed, a rule of action. The minute we do so, the minute we of the organized party be gin to think of ourselves as a "governing body" whose business is to "get votes" regardless of whether or not that minute we become disloyal to our ideal and begin to som the mode of dissension, of compromise, and even of corruption.

We want votes, ves-if they are intelligent votes for the class-conscious Socialism that the organized party stands for. We have no right to destre or to try to get votes on any other

The organized party must not think of itself as a "governing body," a select set of leaders, in distinction from the governed and led body of unorganized roters. It must think of itself as a fighting body, a working body, a body of volunteers, whose sole purpose in organizing is to make equally good class-conscious Socialists of others and to enlist them in the work, in their turn, to the full extent of their willingces and their ability.

We need not expect to bring in the tocalist Commonwealth by becuspoens, by "practical politics," by mere ly "getting votes" regardless of th roters' understanding, or by any other ceans than that of making real Sociallats.

for the adoption of what he calls "American methods," tells us that "the conservatism of the old-world movement and its military form of organiantion will not be accepted by the American," The mildest thing we can say of this is that it is cheap sophistry. The "old-world movement" is not conservative, except in the sense that it is neither a freak nor a fad. it has no "military form of organization." Its form of organization is everywhere democratic. Just because it is truly iemocratic and not anarchic, it has very little use for the type of leadership which this editor predicts for us when he says: "There will come men on the field of action with the sweet of the meteor, who from their very impetuosity will become leaders of thought and action, and who can m more be chained than the lightning." ment are those who win their position not the "metroric" type, so disastrously common in the futile history of leaders, doubtless. NEGROE PRONAGE IS CLASS. SLAVERY.

.fn a recent number of the "Inde pendent" appears a remarkable article upon "Peonage in the South." The name of the author is not given, the following editorial note being prefixed:

"The writer of the following article resident of the South, thorough-miller with what is known as poonage, and to some extent personally interested in the peonage prosecutions. For reasons in no way discreditable to himself, he prefers that his name shall not be published."

The well established reputation of the magazine justifies us in taking the assurance at face value and giving full crodit to the unnamed writer.

Our purpose in referring to the article is not to recite the facts in regard to negroe seemage as it exists in the South today, for they have been very fully presented in the daily press, "not even to express the horror and indignation which every right-minded man must feel at such revelations, for the expression of such sentiments seems hardly necessary. We refer to the art.cle in order to quote one passage which throws a vivid light on the whole subject by bringing out a phase of the situation that is not generally known. The passage is as follows:

"The writer has seen a whole family of white persons, including young gun to leave their home and return to the awamp labor camp of the father's former employer some miles dis tant, there to remain until a small in debtedness due the employer was worked out by the father at wages worked out by the inter at wages which the employer arbitrarily fixed. This case is now pending in a Federal court, but it is not likely to be tried, as the Employers' Association has spent money liberally to place witnesses out of reach of the court. To say that personner is only sportally and say that personne is only sporadic and temporary is incorrect; it is here in the South to stay permanently unless a strict enforcement of the law is had."

The point we wish to emphasize by citing this statement, is that the aystem of peonage-or let us call it by its right name, disguised chattel slavery-is not applied exclusively to negroes, that it does not rest solely nor chiefly upon race projudice, terribly strong as that prejudice is, that, instend of being simply a race question, it is actually a class question.

The colored workers are more gen erally made victims of this shameful atrocity only because their general ignorance and habit of timblity and obedience, inherited from the past, makes it easier to bring them under the lash. But the masters do not care whether their slaves are black or white. They will as readily chain and flog men of their own race as of any other, if they have the opportunity and nee their profit in doing so. Profit is the prime motive, to which race feel ing is only accessory. The expitalist cares neither for the race nor the culor, the faith nor the hationality, the sex por the age of his victim, so only he gets his something-for-nothing, his profit

To the colored people: It is not only, it is not chiefly because your skins are dark that you are oppressed. It is because you are ware-workers, and the capitalist can make profit by oppress ing you. Have prejudice being then to keep you down, therefore they cultivate race prejudice. For you the way to freedom is to think and feel and act and vote as workingmen, side by side with your white brothers. And If those white brothers in tall often you, remember that they too are sinves, wage-slaves, misled and perverted by your common enemy, the capitalist class.

To the white workers: If you fail to stand by your more unfortunate colored brothers, if you allow your minds to be poisoned by race hatred, you will be playing directly into the hands of the men who exploit and op nesses buth black workers and white and you may expect the same fate for yourselves or your children. If your cojored fellow workingmen often fail short of their duty, remember the handlesp under which they labor, remember that you have had greater advantages and that it is therefore your duty as well as your interest to bein them and educate them, by example ns well as by precept. "This mation cannot andure half slaves and half fron," said Lincoln. That is as true now as it was in 1800. Ho long as any section of the working class is ensiaved, no workingman is sure of his freedom. If we are to have freedom for any, we must have

The editor of the Boston "Pilot" is poved to offer "A Solution of the Negro Problem:" It is clearly pointed out that the blind adherence of the colored voters to the Republican party has resulted in that party treating them with the utmost contempt-now and then giving a picayune office to some "leader" and sever lifting a fuger to protect the mannes of negro tollers from the most outrageous opthou between the organized party and must weep," says the post; and busi- pression and abuse. So far, so good.

But the "Pilot" editor ismely con

"Northern workingmen should come an affiliation of negroes with any political party that is not dominated by Capital; for the contest between money and muscle is mevitable, soor later; and Labor must not or larer; and Labor must be allow Capital to employ muscle of any color against it. Mr. Shaw suggests, in the affiliation of nagro voters with the Democratic party, a remedy which promises well for the workingness of ooth races, whether the industrial con test be waged under the present or any other party names."

The Democratic party which has deprived the negroes in every Southern state of the right of suffrage, either by constitutional amendalists or by shotgun and halter; the Democratic party which rules in Virginia and sends troops to shoot striking street-car workers, white or black; the Democratic party which rules in Texas, which passes "anti-trast" laws and form of pehal regulations—the colored workingmen will hardly be simple enough to join the party that white workingmon are learning to desert.

A PARTY OUESTION

IN GERMANY

A certain discussion has arisen in the ranks of the party because of the ques-tion of the Vice-Presidency of the Rechatag to which 'we have by all the rules of session, an undisputed right as the second strongest pairty in the House. Now the question arises, whether our representatives would be willing to take on the Court coremonies which have been associated with the which have been associated with that post. Singer, when the question was mosted in the lift Reichstag, baving been set up as our candidate, roundly refused to attend at Court and the bourgeois parties made that an excuse then for not electing him, though av then we had a righte Since then, to his "Weitpolitie" blamed our party and pointed out that attending Court was little more than belonging to Par-lianient, and that it had a purely ceresion, of the vice-chair would have put us in a position to prevent the majority breaking through the laws of procedure as they did last winter. Parvus's views did not meet srith any echo in class, whether in monacchy or repulover and our party is so strong, Herasteln inprovinced the idea in an article where he pleads that the oath of shellty to the constitution demanded, in sincest all tiermap States, an oath which has never presented any hindrands to Section 1. in the "Sozialistische Monatshefte" where he pleads that the oath of fidelity to the constitution demanded, drante to Social-Democrata, is in reality a more serious obstacle than at occasional visit to the chief of the German Empire. The question will no doubt be discussed, but it may well be ushed if the Vice-Presidency is of such yast importance, that representatives of our party should attend at tives of our party should attend at the Court of a man who has distinguished himself by his outrageous atincks on the party. The Vice-President has, I take it, only very limited powers, and in the case of a Socialist. the President "would" probably take care that they, were still more limited. and then as often ocurs in the case of a Socialist Minister in Switzerland, be is powerless and his party have to be careful in their criticism so as not to embarrass him; so that both are more or less paralyxed. In general, it will be found that our party is so much the stronges, the more we keep our hands free from official positious till

dent of the Universal Peace Union at capital and labor, which offers no remedy for existing conditions except arbitration and conciliation.]

I trust that you will receive the following communication regarding the methods and principles of the Peace Union in the same spirit that it has been written. I have studied the peace movement with deep interest. I have nothing but the kindest feelings to-wards it. It has seemed to me, how-over, that there is a profound mis-understanding to say the least, on the uses them only to prosecute trade-unions; the Democratic party which maintains actual slavery under the understanding and clearness of vision are a necessity to harmonious action mit the following cor alderation of your position, not so much for the purpose of antagonlaing, as to make the Nocialist position clear. believe that a frank and friendly

It seems to me that the first and foremost weakness of your position is that of superficiality. I have studied your platform, also your "cardinal principles," but nowhere in them do I find any recognition of the fact that there is a fundamental cause for war as well for the struggle between Capi-tal and Labor. Nowhere do I find evidence of a clear understanding of that cause. Nowhere do I find any intima tion but that the strife most go on in-terminably, and the most you can do is to act as a buffer between the contending parties. It is true you say that one of your objects is to respove the cause of war, but what is that the cause of war, but what is that cause? and how do you propose to re-move it? These are the viral questions to a sociologist, and we search in several grave faitheles in your premises which invalidate your epiclipsions. Recognizing the fact that two classes, the employers and employees, exist, you assume that they can deal with each other on equal terms; that they have the same rights and privileges before the law. This is far from cor-rect. The employing class is the ruling ment. It enacts and enforces law in its own interest. Robbery and even murder are winked at, if done in a tive halls. These facts are patent to anyone who will take the pains to in-form himself. I refer to Lloyd's "Wealth vs. Commonwealth" and the current number of "McClure's Magn-zine." By virtue of such means as these it has gained its franchise and its vested property rights, which it pow claims as sacred and even divine by means of these rights and fran-chises it now robs the very people from whom they have been stolen, and this plundering process is perfectly legal. Robbery is robbery and all the more

The owners of cost mines and ratiroads by means of similar "divine" rights obtained in a similar devilish way have taken advantage of the peo-ple's necessities to advance the price of conl, while old men froze and bables nerlahed upon their mothers breasts. This slaughter of the innocents, which would make Herod blush for shame. become so calloused to this legal robbers and murder that we accept it as a matter of fact, but if some poor miner under the greatest provocation counsits an overt act if is herither far and wite as mob violence, and all the forces of the government. In the capital and the forces of the government.

It is equally fallacious to assume equal terms. The employing class owns the means upon which the working but its labor to well. They must sell it to those who own the means or size started. Under such conditions remaining ones will show a great in-Under such conditions there can be no equality of terms. It means co-operation and neace. is only the equality that exists between be highway robber and his victim.

Another fundamental fallacy lies is are both therefore entitled to the same moral consideration; that it is the daty therefore of the Peace Union to stand half-way between these two parties and attempt to harmonize their purely selfish claims. This is an exceedingly narrow view of the situation. Pifty years ago people reasoned in the same way regarding chattel slavery. They said that the trouble lay with the indi-viduals. The masters were selfish and the slaves were discontented, therefore the remedy was to make the masters more humans and the slaves more contented. We see the fallacy of such reasoning fo-day. The fault could be charged neither to the marker nor the slave. Each was as good as the system which made one man a master and another man his slave. Just so the blame to-day cannot be charged to individuals but to the aystem. It compels the employee are spatem, it compels the employee to self himself to the highest bidder. The conflict between them is inherent in the system, the expression, is all wrong. It compels the employee to self himself to the highest bidder. The conflict between them is inherent in the system, the expression of irresistible economic forces. The employer master by his labor in the labor masket at the lewist. enning in-day. The fault could be charged neither to the master nor the

[The following article was addressed | market price. If he does not do this as a letter to Mr. Alfred Love, Presi-dent of the Universal Peace Union at thus being able to undersell him will Philadelphia. This union, which is made up largely of Quakers, has a platform concerning the relations of to sell his labor to the highest bidder, to seil his labor to the highest bloder, always handicapped by the fact that owing to the displacement of labor by the machine be must sell in an overstocked market. The interests of these two classes then are diametrically opposed to each other. As long as the competitive system exists so long must the slave sevente exists so long. must this class struggle exist. As long as the class struggle exists no arbitration scheme that can be devised will be anything more than a poultice upon the surface of a festering sore. As a socialist and a physician I protest against this method of dealing with the sore. We should go to the source. We should remove the cause and heal the sore from the bottom by destroying the competitive system.

Both the employer and employed are actuated by self-interest, which by the way, is quite a different thing from selfishness. There is this difference, however: The self-interest of the employer demands the perpetuation of the competitive system. In no other way can his profits be assured. The self-interest of the employee demands its destruction. In no other way can his freedom be gained. The amployer, therefore, stands with his face to the past and a decaying social order: The employee stands with his face to the future and a nobler civilization. While each is impelled by the same motive force, self-interest, their ultimate goals and discord. Labor stands for co-operation and peace. How can the Peace Union consistently assume even a neutral position between the two?

And just here comes in another fundamental fallacy of your position; That the non-union man is entitled to the same moral consideration and support as the union man. There is no dispute as to his legal rigues, but under the conditions I have outlined, a struggle for a higher social order, the workingman who refuses to take his stand with his fellows, who allows himself to be used against his comrades, contrary to his own interests as well as theirs, must be placed in the same entegory with the Torics of the Revolution or the "Couper-Heads" of Capital and Labor has a world-wide aspect, which has a vital connection with international war and universal peace. The employers of America produce every year two billion dollars worth of goods more than the wages given to their employees will enable them to buy back. For this surplus they must seek a foreign market. The German employer must do the same. The English employer is in the same predicament. The hunt for foreign markets becomes international. Weak-er nations must be subjugated, and as the foreign market narrows the strugflict with each other. The great industrial nations have learned that war is an expensive way of settling their differences, so we find evidences multiplying that they will pool their issues and do away with the conflict among themselves. The wars of subjugation against weaker nations, however, still go oil. The international trust reveals this tendency. The Hague Tribunal is another evidence. The Tribunal is a purely capitalistic institution. The than an international poultice upon an international sore.

we have an international capitalist inovement opposed to an international socialist movement. The objectives of these two movements are identical the that they can deal with each other on world over. The capitalist movement ers live. The working class has noth ment seeks its overthrow. The success of the capitalistic movement can mean nothing but competition and discord. The success of the Socialist movement The capitalists may settle their own differconflicting interests between capitalthe assumption that they are both actuated by more selfishness, as repre-bensible in one as the others-that they posed to each other. We would tolernie arbitration exactly as we would a truce in battle, or anything that would mitigate the horrors of warfare. It can never remove the economic cause of the class struggle. It can never be anything more than a temporary palliative. Diseases are cured not by palliating symptoms, but by removing causes. I think that every member of the Peace Union will agree with me that to remove the cause of war is au infinitely higher object than to mitigate its consequences. If we accept arbitration as a finality we fritter away our efforts on the lesser object and loss sight altogether of the infin-

We waste our workmen in slavery. We waste the talent of the average man. We do not offer him that opportunity of freedom which alone can afford him life. The suffers death in life. Our civilization is full of round pegs in square holes. We do not say to our boys and girls: "Stay at school: Fill out the full circle of youth. There is time enough for work. You will be all the better for work by this delay." We meet them with knit brow and a threat:

"Hurry. Do not wait upon your talent. Make your talent wait upon you. Do not look about until you find the spot upon which you can most favorably transact business with the universe. Drop into the first tail that opens. The jail will not honor you. But it will feed you. Do not expect to be awarded any choice. You will never be invited to make better and best of a good thing. The best you can do will be to make the best you can of a worst thing." That is the message civilisation brings to every

With the labor of the world overtaxed. With the children worked too early and the parents worked too late. With an upper class that does too little and a lower class that does too much. With these things as they are you have turned your civilization into a desert. Men are not adjusted in the relation proper to their normal inheritance. Civilisation first puts us under debt. Then civilization makes it impossible for us to pay that debt. it impossible for us to pay that debt. It transforms the potentially tropical man into a desert. Our civilisation is not order. It is chaos. Therefore, it is not civiliza-tion. For civilization is first of all and forever order. Not a superficial order benegoombed with injustice. But a real order founded upon the equities of social service. Now, civilization is chads. It has not established itself canon. It has not established specification justifies. That is, it has not offered men the enfranchising implements of cooperation. Men do not work as if of one flowh and soul. They do not pull all one way and with one object. They work as if they were consecrated to conflicting idents. They work pulling search place as if work pulling against each other, as if their aims were insvitably antagon-istic. They do not work like friends and lovers. They work like enemies and haters. You could not put the waste of this process into a scale and weigh it. But you can put it into your mind's eye. And if you have imagination its revelations will appail you.

A great part of each life you have to charge up to waste. Man is reck-loss of man. You find men wasted everywhere you look.

Our civilization does a good deal, t child in wasted everywhere in the man. We produce everything by the most wasteful process. I do not refer to the waste of goods. I refer to the waste of men. You might for me waste all the goods on the earth if you would but save your men. The best of your goods are infinitely useless. The worst of your men are infinitely The worst or your men are inantely precious. You are always calling upon men to honor their work. But why do you not first of all honer your men? Any piece of property lest can be recovered. But the men you waste are for this earth wasted forever. I acquiesce in your biggest claims. Then I make a claim haughtler than all the rest. Miss Caroline Pemberton of Phila delphia, an able member of the Social-ist Party who is lending much assist-ance to the textile strikers, has deeply displeased her aristocratic relatives by her devotion to the cause of labor. Miss Pemberton is descended from an old Quater family, members of which have won distinction in various ways, says the Philadelphia "North American," is a sketch of this young woman who renounces "society" and her class interests to fight the battles of the human under was Gen. John C. poor. An uncle was Gen. John C. Pemberton, of the Confederate Army, the defender of Vicksburg. She is the elder daughter of Henry Pemberton scholar and scientist, whose most recent work is called "The Path of Evo-intion." Miss Frances Pemberton, a member of Joseph Jefferson's com-pany, is a cousin of Miss Caroline Pemberton. Mr. Pemberton, and, in-ticed, all the members of her family, are strongly opposed to her active in-serest in Socialism.

National Organizer Geo. H. Goebel will begin his work for the national office at Wilmington, Del., July 22, 23, and 24, going thence to Washington, D. C., for July 25, 26, and 27. Goebel will work through Virginia, Maryland, and West Virginia on his way to the "All Socialist papers are good, but The Worker is par excellence as a party paper," writes Comrade F. L. binson of Louisville, Kr.

An enthusiastic meeting was held at Newcomb, Tenn., on July 12 and a local organized with twelve members. Comrade & P. Faucher was elected secretary.

Local charters were granted to Gatewood, W. Va., and Marksville, La., this week.

The National Secretary has initiated a referendum of the locals in Louisiann for a state convention to form a state organization.

"St. Louis Labor" the local Socialist and trade-union paper of St. Louis, Mo., is to be enlarged next month. Its work is becoming so important that the present size is insufficient for the the present sine is insufficient for the matters it has to treat. Success to it.

There seems to be a systematic opposition from the police at Atlanta, but succeeded in overcoming it and now the meetings are going forward uninterrupted. National Organizer Ray has been having a tunsle with the police at Birmingham, Ain. He was arrested on Saturday evening, July 11, while addressing a meeting from a soap bax. He gave bond and then a rote was taken of the crowd as to whether he abould continue and the crowd yelied "Yea." The officer said Ray could not speak on that street corner any more. Ray thereupon moved to the next corner, where the crowd grew larger until an audience of 1.200 people gathered. Bay spoke for over two bours and many working-men declared their sympathy after the meeting. On Monday, the court room was crowded with people to hear the trial. The judge told Bay that if he wanted he (the judge) would place a fine against him so that an appeal could be taken and a test case made. thay said he was not a judge looking fer trouble and not imposing fines upon himself. If he had violated any constitutional law he should be fined or placed in Jail where he belonged. The judge turned Ray loose and the latter will continue to do business at the old stand in Birmingham and elsewhere. The Teath Ward Branch of Local County elections are held in Ohio this full. Socialists will place trickets in the field in all the organized counties. The regular business shorting on the order of the day and a lively fight is anticipated from many points.—

Dayton has held eighteen agitation meetings during the past week with excellent results. Howard Caldwell, Jos. Jasin, John Glickert, and several local securades have spoken. The work has started in earnest in Day-ion and things will move faster than ever from this on.

These are now eight agitators at work in Hickigan speaking at the 198 stations on the "soap-box circuit" at ready described in The Worker. About seventy-five meetings per week are being held.

At the recent annual meeting of the State Gammittee of the Socialist Party of Montana, P. J. Cooney was elected state secretary and, organizer. The following local quorum was elected, with headquarters in Butte: J. F. Smith, Botte: Gustav Frankel, Butte: J. H. Schwent, Anaconda; Barney Outes, Ameconda; Harry Johnson, Clancy. The anti-fusion rules were re-indomed and the following clans: edded to the state constitution: one is eligible to a nomination by a ing for one year. The Central Branch of Local Seattle Wanh, has adopted resolutions de claring that, after hearing Comrade branch expresses its entire approval of his presentation of Socialist principles and disapproves of the attitude of the Scattle "Socialist" toward him.

A territorial organization has be ormed in Arizona, with Albert Rya of Jerome as secretary, and the sp-plication for a state charter, signed by eight locals, is now before the National Committee.

John J. Chase, after two weeks of much meeded rest at home, will fill dates in New York state, beginning July 20, and begin his tows of Maine

New locals have been chartered in New York state at Jamestown, Olean and Dolgoville.

Local Troy will hold a picule at Albia on Sunday, July 26, beginning at 10 a.m. All comrades and friends are invited. Every pains will be taken to provide for the entertainment of the crowd. There will be a reception committee at Albia to direct strangers to the place. In case of rain the plo nic will be postponed to August 2.

'We have polled eleven votes: the union-smashers have some." were aleven votes unconsciously given to the very party it was intended i defeat. I attribute this, first, to a lace of organization; second, to the reading of out-of-the-state Socialist papers and a lack of sufficient, circulation of The Worker. Despite all this, the movement is growing at a surprising rat and the growth is in no way spasmodi and there is no danger whatever of a reaction in the future. We held a socint on the evening of July 16 that was attended by more than a thousand persons, which proved an occasion for propaganda. All is all, there is much to be proud of here. It is the impentive duty of every member to attend the mext meeting, which will be held on July 24, in Junean's Hab, 146th street and Third avenue.

There have been two meetings of the Harism Agitation Committee since its imaguration. The first meeting, June 29, was devoted to the Gacumton of a plan of procedure, and the election of the committee's member to the City Executive Committee in the person of Commide R. S. Egerton. At the second meeting, July 15, Committee Florence Lee was elected secretary for the en-suing six months, and strangements were completed for the distribution of Ht-rature, and the holding of outdoor meetings in the 21st, 23d, and 31st Assoubly Districts. To enable the Countitive to keep in clear touch with the branches composing the Harism Agitation District, it was decided to meet at the same piness and on the sam dates with the respective branches, by prior to or after the branch meeting whichever may be the more convenient at the time. To assist in financing the Harlem Agitation Committee, the Zist A. D. will take up a special collection at each meeting, one-third of which it will give to the Committee.

At the last meeting of the 12th A. D. branch of Brooklyn Comrade V. Sar-ramo was elected literature agent. The agitation committee and the committee elected to arrange a festival ross. It was decided to stop the cir culation of the Kings County Commit tee campaign fund thats already out in this district-and to call on the new Campaign Committee of Greater New York to supply the assembly district branches as soon as possible with the regular lists as provided for by the city convention. Comrades Peters, Greygier and Pisk were elected as a committee on printing and instructed to have pasters printed to be used for propagands in the district. The ques tion to be discussed at the next meet-ing will be: What line of voting action should a Socialist adopt if elected to office? Comrades are requested to attend more regularly.

At the last meeting of the Kings County Committee, held on Saturday, July 9, fifteen new applications for erably were received. Organizer Atkinson reported that street meetings were being held in the different parts of the borough with great success; the audiences readily stop and listen to our speakers and eagerly sock our litera-ture. All that is needed is more speak-ers. All comrades who can render their services to the cause in this capacity are requested to notify the organizer at once. The campaign is now on and every, available speaker should gindly enlist in the service of the cause. Comrades Janders, Gerber, and Atkinson were elected to repre-sent the borough on the City Executive Committee. Comrade Gerber was elected to act as campaign secretary for the County Committee. The necessity for a comprehensive explana-tion of the new militia law, together with Socialist comments thereon, wa made apparent to the County Commit tee, and the secretary was instructed to communicate with the National Secretary requesting him to get up a lenflet on this subject. Are you not, then, a slave?

From this condition of things then is no secape, while the whole of the people do not, either individually or collectively, own the means of production. Nothing but the abolition of the class ownership of the means of life, and the substitution of either the in-dividual or collective ownership by the whole people will abolish this form of Socialists recognize that we cannot go back to individual owner-ship; the idea of a man owning his own railway, his own shipping lines and so on, is so abourd as to only need to be stated to show the impos sibility of individual ownership by the whole people, as users, of the means of production. All these things are to day owned collectively and used so-cially. But it is the collective ownerto those who do all the work obtain so little for themselves they produce, while those who nothing should edge so much result of their enquiries is to ized. The working people work to-gether in an organized manner; the mere slave.

What? You are a free man and not a later? There are no slaves in this being devoted to the production of a single article. But, although the work of production is socialised, the things produced are not the property of those who produce them, but of the class which owns the means of production. But this collectivization of the means of production, although it be at present but collectivization in the hands of a class, shows us the way we have to go, the line of the social development. This socialization of production shows us that the next step must be in the direction of socializing the product—making it social common property. If the means of production, the land, the mines, the railways, the factories, can be collectively owned by a class, managed for that class and worked for its profit by agents, it is quite clear that they could be col-lectively owned by the whole people. nunnaged in the interest of the whole recode, and the work of production be. carried on for the benefit of the whole people and not for the profit of any class and the ensiavement of others. But this collective ownership and use of the means of production by and for the whole people, is Socialism. Don't you think, fellow workman. that your interest lies in the direction of Socialism; that you ought to be a decisist and to help us in our efforts to achieve the realization of Socialism and the abolition of wage-slavery?-

The author is evidently a master of Hebrew-Yiddish and signs himself Itshok (Issae in Feiling). Hebrew) Isaac (Itsbok in Englis Jewish), the son of --- etc. The author of the article and name will not take amiss my referring to him as merely

Issac. Issac has culled the election return out of various almanacs and has done some good work on them. For Issac is a statistician of no mean order. Un-der his command the figures march in hattalions and squadrons and con-found the simple reader with most startling evolutions. It is evident the Isaac has taken great pains to prove his contention, but, evidently handi capped by a preconceived notion, he proves a great deal without, however, convincing.

Isaac undertakes a painstaking in-quiry into the origin, source and derivation of the new Socialist vote, and en-deavors to prove that it is a Populist bequest, He also sets out roaming over our wide and broad land in quest of all sorts of districts where the So-cinlists are in control of the balance of power between the Republican and the Democratic parties. He notes carefully each such district and announces to the Socialists what they could do if they were not such "immaculate souls."

Let us dear reader, follow the pere grinations of Isaac from state to state and add observation to observation and comment to comment. We find Isaac in the state of Colo rado musing over the loss of the stat by the Democrats and that the Repul licans elected two congressmen owing to the growth of the Socialist vote. Suppose this to be so. Does this fact distress Isanc? If it does, I berewith charitably offer some consoling sug

if Isasc will consult his authority, the World Almanac, he will find tha the Republicans carried Colorado every election from 1876 till 1890 and no Socialist vote to belp them. For Isaac firmly believes that the 7,360 Socialist votes would have been cast for the Democratic party. Why? Is it be-cause the Democratic platform is more Rocialistic than the Republican platform? Issac does not say ss. "Be-cause," he says, "the Populists fused with the Democrats, and in this state. least, the Socialist vote came from the Populists," Did it, really? haps it did; perhaps it did not. Ter Republican party was in the mit Republican party was in the minority in Colorado during the last ten years, and every Socialist worker will tell isaac that a minority party will, other things being squal, yield a richer harvest to Socialist propaganda than the party in power. Hence Isaac's contention stands in need of more proof.

In Montana the Socialist Party received, 3000 poice, and the Independent

ceived 3,000 votes, and the Indepen dent Labor Party 6,000 votes—together about 16 per cent. of the total vote. The Populists received in 1802 7,334 and the state went Republican After this the Populist party fused with the Democratic party. Issue re-marks in another place that if the parties do not fuse, the voters make fus-ion on their own account. But here was a case where the parties fused at right, but the rebellious voters deci right, but the rebellious voters declined to come up and be counted. They did not fuse worth a cent. The Populat party was betrayed by politicians. There was no Socialist Party. The rebels were floundering about with-all norts of independent tickets, and while they did not make much headway they reconcided in kerning away from the succeeded in keeping away from th Democrats the vote which they had bought from the Populist party. Here is a striking and practical limstration of the result of fusion and of the caus of the anti-fusion sentiment and policy.

The lesson is obvious, but not to issac. He complains: "Until 1892 Montana was a Demo cratic state. In 1892 the Populists received over 7,000 vates, with the ng in Wagner's liall result that the Democratic candidate for governor was defeated. Since then the Democrats made fusion with the Popullats. This year they were benten through the Socialist movement.

> Here is hard luck for you. of Delaware tried to pass a law compelling the bribed voters to vote as they were paid for. Some such law should be passed for the benefit of parties that buy and sell votes in goo faith, in due course of trade, and in open market. There should be some legal process to compel the voter, who has been sold by his party, to "stay nold."

Having found the Montana at mosphere uncongenial to the theory of mixed politics, we follow Issae to Pennsylvania. A melancholy sight meets our view. In Luzerne County the Socialist candidate for congress received 3,911 votes, in Schuyikili Coun-ty 1,758 votes, "In these two districts," Issac continues his reflections, "the 80 cialists have now the say who should go to congress, a Republican or a Democrat." and who should shoot strikers, a Republican or a Democratic sheriff. Here is a free choice in a free country—to be shot by a Republican sheriff or slaughtered by a Democratic sheriff. What more could the workingman demand? Why throw away votes on a Socialist sheriff? The answer of the "impractical" Socialist workingman re-minds us of a similar character in Volto mirate tecool of New Jersey will speak in Spring Church on July 30. In Freeport on July 31, and in Pittsburg on August 1 and 2.

limic to prove either that the Populist party was a proletarian party or that the Socialist Party is an agrarian party and that Socialism is easier propagated among farmers than among working-men—if he proves that, his statistics are superfluous. If he falls to prove are superfluous. If he fails to that, his statistics have no sense.

Issac achieved indifferent success in what he set out to prove—that the Socialist vote was gained from the Popu lists. The pertinent question arises. What object had lease in view in en deavoring to prove this? Isaac fail to state his motive or object and leave it to inference. However, the infer ence is made plain by the general trend of the article, namely, that there must be a rapprochiment between the Socialist Party and whatever is still extant of the Populistic elementa.

This trend of Isaac's argument becomes illuminating when we consider it in the light of a deduced tendency. that makes itself noticeable in certain quarters of the Socialist movement. tendency to trace a direct connection between the Socialist and Populist movements, to view and treat the So-cialist movement as a direct des-cendant of and legitimate beir to the Papulist movement. This, what may be termed Populist tendency in the So-cialist movement is as of great concern to the Socialist as it is of interest 40 the student.
It is not our purpose to analyze or crticise this tendency at this time. What is to be noted here is merely the concerted endeavor to underline and emphasize the alleged identity of Poputist elements and the 'Socialist ele ments, of Populist principles and Socialist principles. The fact that the Populist party was a party of, by and for farmers and the Socialist Party is makes an interesting inference as to the character of the Socialist vote in a party of, by and for the proletarinus could not be gainsaid. Our friends were not discomfited. Nothing daunted, they turn the farmer about and exclaim in tones, betraying a sudden but pleasant discovery. "Why, he is a pro-letarian." And then another turn of the farmer and another joyful exdently issae knows much more about clamation. "Why, be also class-conscious!" And again a turn, "Why, be be pin in mind issae's opinion about the source of the vote in Chicago as we follow him through class-conscious, proletarian, but of friends wax angry if you deny it Tork. He observes only casually that "the Socialists of New York state have in their hands who should be governor"—the Republican Tweedledee or for intermediate the firm of the definition has become for annea. Socialists—may necessary for some Bocialists)-may prove not revolutionary enough. We are yet to hear from the farmers themneives on the subject. But comrades who are not farmers dub the farmers into revolutionary, class-conscious pro letarians. For instance, a prominen Socialist, who is not a farmer, made in a speech delivered recently in Cooper Union substantially the follow-ing statement: "There are out in the West five hundred thousand Populista who turned from the Democratic party and are no more Democrata, who turned from the Republican party and are no more Republicana. All that is necessary is to explain to tham what Socialism is and THEY WOULD NOT HAVE TO CHANGE ONE THOUGHT, ONE IDEA, TO BE SO-CIALISTS."

Here again the identity of Pop and Socialism is emphasized. If Bo cialism and Populism are identical we should be indebted to the comrades for pointing out this fact. If they are not, then the comrades in question cannot learn this fact too soon:

Only a few words about the agrarian problem. Socialists are wont to speak in terms of contempt of the small shopkeepers, tradesmen, etc. This tone would not do at all in speaking of the again assuming that the Socialist voters would consent to "stay sold." farmers of our country. Their mere numbers, not to mention the sturdy in-Isanc arrives at the conclusion that the Socialist Party holds the balance of endence of their character; constipower and may decide who shall be president of the United States—a Reforce that must be reckoned with as a great factor in all theories of econo and political revolutions. The focialist Party will some day face the problem and, I believe, will be able to conclusion is erroneous. The states in which the Socialist Party held the bal-ance of power in 1802 are Colorado, with it. But I 'also think that th problem is not before it at the presen moment. Among the 300,000 Social ist votes, among the 20,000 party memchunetts, and Oregon. But in 1900 Colorado went. Democratic by 30,000; bers, how many farmers are there Why then this premature and imuse ture claim that the farmer is a class conscious, revolutionary projectarian; that the Socialist Party should receive the farmer with open arms? Where are the farmers that clamor for admis-sion to the Socialist Party? about 12,000; New York went Republican by over 148,000; Oregon went Republican by over 13,000; and Massachusetts went Republican by $1,969. Elec-

Another feature of the temency in initiative in changing the question may be pointed out. The meme people who emphasize the iden-tity of Bocialism with Populism usually enlarge on the affeged incomsition that the Socialist vote could turn the scales of a presidential election. If we are to sell out either to Republi-cans or to Democrats, let us be honest patibility and irreconcilability of the Eastern and Western-what may one call it? they are very vague about it— temperament, method, etc. The Soabout it and not attempt to sell a gold temperament, method, etc. The So-cialist principle of the identity of the Isaac, has written a long article to interests of the working class of the whole country, of all countries, is rele-gated to the rear, but instead there is prove:
First: That the Socialist Party holds the balance of power in presidential elections.
We saw that Issac commits the error holds the balance of power in presidential elections.

We saw that Isnac commits the error of taking the vote of 1902, an off year, as the basis for his calculations.

Second: That the Socialist Party can elect many a Democrat, if it were so minded. Not that Isnac advises it to do so, but he just sicks a pin on the map whenever he discovers a promising spot.

Year the state of th ing spot.

Inanc is too timid. He should come out into the open and say what he wants. Fusion with the Democrates' The party has dealt too harshly with the fusionists. They are all scared and speak and write in a censored style. This leads to worse confusion than open advocacy of fusion. Isaac should insist on his right to express his views. He peed not fear. We promise him our support.

This is to introduce the increased Socialist.

It must be stated that in referring to East they usually meant the Eastern capitalists to improve on the Populists and, in speaking disparagingly of the East. Fefer not to the capitalistic of the East but to Eastern proletarians and even to their courades in arms—the to turn Populism into Socialism, the farmer into a proletarian, they become proposed. The Rocialists will ever be ready to our support.

Third: That the increased Socialist vote was gained from the Populists.

There were elements in the Populists movement which the Socialists set out to gain and did gain. These were protearians who were carried away in the Populist current: But they were not the determining factor in the Populist party and they parted company on one of the Populist reactionary insues—the money issue. These groletarian trade-unionists are the only Populists that the Socialist Party can, for a long time to come, expect to callst, and those are our support.
Third: That the increased Socialist

The Social Democratic Party had nearly and they parted company on a set of the Populist reactionary issues—the york in 1900. In 1900 we policed over money issue. These groletarian trade-missing are the only Populists that the Socialist Party can, for a long time to come, expect to callist, and those are the only Populists that the Socialist Party can, for a long time to come, expect to callist, and those are the only Populists that the Socialist literature from house to bouse, in the shops, in the union halls, on the street cars, is public meetings, everywhere, people are in the mood to read and leaf the shops, in the union halls, on the street cars, is public meetings, everywhere, people are in the mood to read and leaf the shops, in the union halls, on the street cars, is public meetings, everywhere. KEEP RELIGION AND POLITICS SEPARATE.

Editor of The Worker:-I wish to protest in the name of the Socialist Party and the class it represents against the use of the party press to attack religious dogmas and Institutions. In order that my position may not be inisunderstood, I wish to state that I never have been and probably never will be an adherent of any sys tem of theology or any religious creed.

One comrade who recently left the church has committed a serious tactical blunder in using the party press n an attack on the Catholic and its representatives and were his name not attached to the articles in question, they might well pass as the words of the bourgeois Ingersol.

The question is not whether the charges of Comrade McGrady are correct or not, but whether the Socialist press is the proper medium for the ex-pression of these views. I hold these attacks have no place in our party press and those who consent to print them are as guilty of a serious blunder as the comrade that writes them. If capitalism and its defepders can switch our indictment of the capitalist system from the domain of econ-omics to the field of theology and omics to the field of theology and church history, they will have accomplished the very thing for which they strive, and the Socialist who takes the has contributed arms to the enemy. Capitalism will welcome any change in our tactical position that will create a division on race, sectional, or religious lines and if we welcome that change or contribute in the least to ward march.

that division, we have done the only thing that can check our victorious on-The central feature of the Socialist Party that determines our line of battle is the proclamation of the class struggle. We proclaim to the world that the only real division that exists in capitalist society is that between the oppressor and his victim, regardless of whether they be Jews, Catholics, or materialists. The Catholic capitalist materialists. The Catholic capitalist will exploit one of his own faith as readily as he will one who does not agree with him. The Jew, the Protestant, and the "free thinker" will do likewise. All of them use the powers of government to advance the interests of their class and keep the working class in subjugation. They know that the class struggle is the only line of division that prevails in capitalist society, son that prevais in Engianax society, even though some Socialists forget it. This being true, would some one kindly tell us what the Socialist move-ment would gain if some zealous Catholic should accept Comrade Mctrady's challenge?
The only question for a Socialist to debate on the Socialist platform or in the party press is Capitalism vs. So-cialism and he who uses the Socialist platform or press for any other pur-puse is involving the party in a quarrel which we have every reason to avoid and is committing a serious blunder, however slucere he may be. If churchmen, whatever creed he holds, attacks our program and chal-lenges our analysis of capitalist so-

STATE SECRETARY WHITE'S APPRECIATION.

Here is what Dan A. White, State Secretary of the Socialist Party of Massachusetts, says of the usefulness of this paper:

Spor Comrede:--- I feel it my duty to say a word in appreciation your valuable paper. I realize that each of the Socialist popers is doing a grand work in its way for the cause, but I feel that The Worker should be in the hands of every member of the Socialist Party. As a medius of party news it is, in my mind, indispensable, and the clear-out able ulitarials in defense of Socialism should be rood by everyone intereste in the sause. I feel that the circulation of The Worker among the com rades of the state of Massachusetts will help our movement beyond power Fraternally yours,

It is the ideal of The Worker to be at once the heat namer for Socialist propaganda and the best paper for the education of party members—that these two functions are not inconsistent but inseparably connected. If The Worker deserves the warm commendation given by Secretary White, it is but just to say that the credit belong to our army of counsellors and correspondents in the rank and file of the party as to the publishers and editors.

We sak the courades everywhere to co-operate in extending the field of usefulness of The Worker and can safely promise them that the quality of its service will be improved in proportion.

SOCIALISM AND TRADE TIMONISM. The following receiption was adopted, long with the foregoing platform, by the fational Convention at Indianapolis, July,

National Convention at Indianapolis, July, 1901:

The trade-union merement and independent political action are the chief emancing factors of the wage-working class. The trade-union rootement is the natural result of capitalitat penduction, and represents the economic side of the working-class merement. We consider it the duty of Socialists to loin the unions of their respective trades and assist in beliding up and unifying the fiftee that trade organizations. We recognize the state of the secondary organization and the secondary organization and the secondary organization are concerned.

We call the attention of trade-unionists to the fact that the clean struggle so nobity waged by the trade-union forces to-day, while it may result in lessening the origination of labor, can sever abotish that exploitation of labor, can sever abotish that exploitation of all the means of speciacion for the benefit of all the people. It is the duty of every trade-unionist to realize the necessity of independent political action on Sectionist flows, to join the benefit of all the people.

RELATIONS OF PARTY AND UNIONS.

We consider the trade-union movement and the Socialist movement as Inseparable parts of the general labor movement, produced by the same ecunomic forces and tending towards the same goal, and we deem fit the duty of each of the two movements to extend its bearty co-peration and support to the other in its special sphere of activity.

THE LOCKOUT IN SWEDEN

Employers Bent on Destroying the Unions.

Machinists' Union No. 325 States th Case and Butlines its Mistery-Part of an International Attack-Calls for International Resistance.

Local Union No. 323 of the Intere tional Association of Machinists-s local composed largely of Swedish-born amehinists in Brooklyn-has taken the lead in calling for support from this country for the victims of the general lockout of the trade in Sweden. It should be remembered that this situck upon the labor movement in that cou try is not an isolated one. It is part an international attack organized the capitalist class, which has own itself within the last few months, as reported from time to time in The Worker, in lockouts and adverse legislation and court decisions in England, in Holland, in Norway, in Adstralia, in Canada, and, last but not least, in the United States. The workers of all lands may well bear in mind the motto: "United we stand, divided we fall."

To Be or Not to No.

We reproduce entire the circular is sued by Local 323, which gives a clear account of the trouble and of the events leading up to it:

"To the International Association of

Muchinists and Each and Every Member Thereof, Greeting

" To be or not to be, that is the question'-for the organizations of the Iron and Metal Workers of Sweden. ddenly and without Suddenly and without warning, or without leaving proper time for any kind of negotiations, the Manufacturers' Association of Sweden has thrown out between 15,000 and 20,000 of the organized Iron and Metal Workers there -the first blow being dealt to all the organized Metal and Iron Workers in the Province of Scania June 29, and the second savage blow being dealt to all the associations over the whole itry July 6, at 12 o'clock-this ingram from the union's headquarters at Btockholm to Swedish and American ers of the International Associa

From the freshest issue of the Swedish labor press, from letters re-ceived from the organised Iron Work-ers' hendquarters in Sweden, and from three cablegrams so far, we have it plain that there is to be a life and death struggle between organized labor and organized capital in Sweden just The brutal, greedy and bloodbesmirched hand of organized capital is on the throat of organized labor, and it is to be a fight to the finish.

Never before in the history of organized labor in Sweden has any of the labor unions there taken recourse to the desperate move of cabling across the waters an appeal for help or financlai aid from their comrades in Amer-ica. This in itself is a plain-speaking sign as to the magnitude and the importance of, as well as the outlook in,

Third-That the Metal and Iron Workers Union has been and is the backhone of organized labor in Sweden, and that this is the very reseon why the lately well-organised Manufactur pre' Association (with the aid of manufacturers in other branches) have de-termined to break this backbone to pieces in order to prevent the laboring class from coming forward in any man-per whatever. Thus it will be seen that although the present struggle is in name a struggle over the right of latterers to organize, there also is an class struggle in the larger sense at

"There has been of late an unusually large number of conflicts in the vari-ous branches, and in all cases the employers have shown a determination to ignore and do away with the organ-izations. As a consequence of these many smaller conflicts the funds are in a bad shape all around. And it is after this preparatory work that the Manu-facturers Association has deemed the time just fit and ripe for aiming the Workers' Union, and in this move the manufacturers also have the revolting meanness to calculate an advantage from the deplorable fact that the larger art of Northern Sweden is a famin stricken country, where surely no one funds needed by the thrown-out labor-ers, and where the manufacturers fur-therm are expect to mee some race have manufacturers begging for employment

Fieldman's Tour.

Comrades Fieldman and Roewer left Peekskill in the automobile on Monday. July 20, and held their next meeting in Highland rails on Tuesday. The red fing of Socialism again affected the hearts of some of the politicians of the village, and as the meeting proceeded several glant fire-crackers were exploded near the machine. When one was placed between Fleidman's feet, he told his tormentors: "There are five gallons of gasoline in this machine, and if you want to take a quick trip to the moon, just keep on with your explosives." Upon this interesting in-formation, he was allowed to continue speaking unmolested.

The next stop was at Middletown where two very enthusiastic meetings were held, much literature being sold and subscriptions taken. On the way out of Middletown the tires on the "Torch-Bearer" gave out, and so the two automobiling agitators will have to stay in Middletown until they get tired. Meetings will be held every evening until new tires arrive from New York. When the machine is re paired the next stop will be Port Jervis; then probably Newburgh.

GOVERNMENT BY INJUNCTION.

Syracuse Molders Get a Taste of Capitalist Law.

Three Strikers Fined and Imprisoned for "Gentampt of Court"-Tho Besses and Prosecutors Did Not Dare Try Them Sefore a Jury.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 27 .- Con

iderable excitement has been can here, and some people brought to think seriously about the labor ques-tion by the application of injunction law this week against the striking molders. Hiram Powers, John Lills, and Otto Benz, striking mobilers from the Stearns sloop, were found guilty of contempt of court last Friday by Justice William S. Andrews by his confirmation of the report of William G. Tracy, who heard the motion for contempt of court in reference. Powers was fined $75, and sentenced to serve thirty days; Lillia, $50 and thirty days, and Henz was fined $50. It is not necessary to take up the question whether, as alleged by the enployers, these men were guilty of using "terror and violence" in their efforts to keep scales out of the strike slop. or whether they actually confined themselves to persuasion and moral influence. The question of the guitt or innocence of these particular man on this particular charge loses itself in the vasily more important point that they have been convicted and sen-tenced to fine and imprisonment with-out jury trial. This is the explanation of the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes and the prosecution of strikers for "contempt of court" instead of for ordinary offenses under the common or statute law.

This is the way it works: A strike or lockout is declared. The men, of course, use every effort to deter other corkers from scabbing in the strike or lockout shep. By simply stating the facts in the case to seekers for employ-ment and showing them that if they en to work in this shop they would be doing a wrong to their brothers, the "pickets" succeed in preventing the "unfair" employer from manning his shop with strike-breakers. The boss then raises a cry, which the capitalist papers readily support, about "violence and intimidation," "murder and areon running riot," and the like. He gets an injunction from a servile judge against the strikers. Then, even though the pickets observe the law and the injunction to the letter, he accuses them of having violated the order by the use of violence. They are arrested and instead of being tried by a "jury of their poets," according to the guar-antee in the United States Constitution, they are hauled up before the judge himself or, worse yet, before a referre appointed by him, who renders his arbitrary and irresponsible deci sion on the question of fact as well as of law, and earns the favor of the eminently respectable boss by sending the accused men "over the road."

If these three men were guilty of using violence or intimidation, the ordi-nary processes of the law furnish means of proving it before a jury and bringing them to punishment. The fact that the ordinary processes of the law are put aside in order to prevent their having the beneat of trial by jury fully justifies us in assuming that the men were innocent that the horses and the prosecuting authorities did not dare to attempt to prove their guilt before a trial jury. If this port of thing is to continu justice becomes a mock and a by-word. Let the workingmen of Syracuse pro-test against this abrogation of their dearest rights by voting for the candidates of the Social Democratic Party, the only party that frankly and consistently stands as the champion of the working class and can therefore be trusted to sweep away such abuses. LABOR-DISPLACING MACHINERY

No sooner are the window glass orkers displaced by a machine when nother branch of the trade is hard hit. After many mouths of ceaseless experimenting, Ball Bros., of Muncie, Ind., have completed an automatic machine which, it is claimed, will soon be the means of throwing every white liper glass presser in the country out of emmatic cutter and presser, and does away entirely with the presser and leaves but one man to operate the en-tire machine. About one hundred men will be thrown out of work in Ball Broa.' plant, and four other concerns have already applied for the new de-vice. Boys will run the new machines.

An experiment that may also revolu tionise the iron and steel industry of the country and displace thousands of miners and metal workers was successful in the plant of the Valley Iron Company, in St. Paul. Titanic which there are billions of t northern Minnesota, was smelted in an ordinary cupola and turned out pig iron which polished up like steel, and which, according to those interested in the experiment, is better than the finest Bessemer steel. It is thought that if the new discovery is entirely successful many ore mines will be abandoned and millions of dollars will be saved to the mill tarons.

Militarism Displayed in Its Worst Form.

Comrade John Catrell reports forther to the national headquarters upon the street-car strike at Hichmond; Va., under date of July 19.

The strike situation is unchanged; the mon'me still firm. The laws are while the cars in operation are few in number, the deficiency is made up by-excessive speed. Previous to the strike the union men were heavily fined for excessive speed, and if not suitably at-tired were laid off, on complaint of police force, for seven or ten days. Now the scales are running cars with hardly enough clothes to cover their unkedness. They are the toughest specimens I have ever sees. I saw two of them attired in ballstiggan underwear, no coat, no shirt, and no ocks, smoking cigarettes, fooding the car with vile tobacco spit with "quids" of tobacco strewing the floor. All this in plain violation of the ordinances.

Last week, one of the cars, running at excessive speed, ran into a litt girl, who was picked up by the fender The motorman applied the hand brakes, without shutting off the power, and the car failed to stop. A young man ran an, caught the front end of the car and rescued the girl, who was taken to the doctor. The motorman proceeded unmolested.

Manufacturing "Riotous Conduct."

Last week the company planned acheme to "murder" two strike-breakers as they were going through a lonely part of Fulton street at midnight. The car was timed to pass this spot just se the strikers were returning from their union meeting on their way home. Fulton street is in the East End of Richmond and has a tough reputation. The constany had two or three squads of soldiers stationed near the place where they claimed to have had in formation that the strikers would wreck the cars and murder the scubs. Everything worked beautifully. Just as the five strikers (De Forest, a mem-ber of the Executive Committee, being among them) entered upon this lonely path, the street car came bouncing me one had spiked the rails down. Some one had spiked the rails the car came to a sudden stop, the scabs cursed and swore, two shots were fired from an alley, and the scabs replied in the same manner.

The strikers, who were unarmed and were surprised by the fusilade, ran for shelter towards an alley. The soldiers jumped from their hiding place, jumped from their hiding place, charged bayonets, and captured the strikers, who are now in jail, charged with attempted assassination. The cident. A realistic picture has been drawn of the affair, the soldiers steatibily creeping to the appointed place, the mysterious flashing of lights in the neighborhood, the charge in the dark-all in the nature of a "Diamond Dick" novel, for the purpose of alienat ing public sympathy from the strikers

All would have gon lovely for the company, if a simple-minded captain

The five strikers were brought before them, and he was asked if he recognised among these men the ones who had the guns. No, he answered. Now, said the lawyers, if there were seven men arrested, and

The soldiers were dumfounded. Fin-nlly one of the officers volunteered the startling information that the two who were missing were the ones who had betrayed the murder plans and were permitted to escape because, according to military rules, these men must be shielder, and allowed to go scot free,

Nothing is said by the press. No action by the author-lties. Within one mile of the City Haik a soldier jumped into a buggy and tried to sit by the lady who occupied it. She drove alm off with her hat pin by the soldiers, and there is no redress l'rotest, and they put the bayonet toyou and march you to the armo liesist, and they murder you. The press is silent upon this phase of the situation, and militarism in the city would make the Tsur turn green with envy.

The Democratic party (the "white man's party") has certainly shown its colors, and as a final proof of its love for the working class, the court has given Sitterding, Huff, and Bucannan, the president, manager, and general superintendent of the street car company, commissions as notaries public. But good will come out of it all. Thou-sands are reading our papers and arguing for and against Socialism Along with the strike, this is the most talked-of subject in town. Shows. The Socialist Party (or Social Democratic Party is New York) should not be confused with the so catted Norislist Labor Party. The latter is a ring-ruled organization which devates all its energies to two purposes: First, to discrete the Norislist who carry on the battle against capitalism; second, to making and injure the fract-noise soveness. THE SOCIALIST VOTE.

The Socialist Purity (the Social Democratic Party of New York) has passed through its second general election. Its growing power is indicated and its speedy victory for-sistence of the great forcease of its vote as shown in those Sigures:

COMMERCEMENT OF PURPOSE.

Commenting on the Lougheer Bill, reported in The Worker of July 19 as having been passed by the Canadian Parliament, which makes it a penal offense for any person not a Canadian citizen to "incite" Canadian workingmen to strike, the Executive of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress points out that, on the ground of "international harmony" the Parliament refused to enact a law to stop the immigration of Japanese workingmen, that the law, while proposing to punish international union officers coming across the line from the United States to help conduct strikes, does not prevent Canadian employers from importing professional detectives to act as spies in the unions, and that it is not proposed to restrain the activity of such bodies as the National Association of Manufacturers, which includes capitalists on both sides of the line and which sends such loud-mouthed capitalist agitators as J. Kirby, Jr., into Canada to stir up trouble.

The Trades Congress Executive hould understand that there is no real inconsistency, though there is an apparent one, in the action of the Dominion Parliament. That body, as a result of the spathy and gullibility of the workingmen voters, is de facto the political agency of the capitalist class. The importation of chesp laborers, the employment of foreign spies, and the introduction of foreign capitalist agitators serve the same purpose of strengthening capitalist organization and weakening projetarian organization as is to be served by the new law against foreign labor agitators. The consistency of purpose, not the inconelstency of form, is the thing to be

And in fact, consistency of purpois the only consistency that really counts for anything. The labor organnations may well follow the example set them by the organised employer not trouble themselves overmuch about formal respect for old traditions or abstract theories of law and equity, but cognine the one great end in view-the emencipation of our class from wage-siavery-and resolve to adopt and use to the full whatever means may best and quickest effect that end.

Moory little while, when other sub jects happen to be lacking, the editors of the daily press recur to that perennial subject, "the decadence of our judiciary." It is easy to prove the in dictment, to show that the judges care more for their own case and the security of their positions than for any So the Popullets "got together" at ideal of justice or equity. But what and we have no hesitation in saying and associate of both propertied and have the conitalist editors to offer as a remedy? Give the judges a lifetenure of office and raise their salaries. That is the height of capitalist wisdeep. Can you make a large men industrious or inspire a selfish man with generous impulses by sasuring him that he will not lose his easy job? Can you make an unjust man rightsone by paying him $25,000 a year instead of $10,000? The editorial wiscacres do not, of course, go to the root of the tumble. They dare not. To de so would be to expose the second of their own servitity as well as of their dellness. The social and economic aretem which has no higher ideal than the dellar-mark, which is dominated by a class whose only title to respect is their shrowdness in grabbing money, which chooses its law-makers and its law-interpreters and its law-enforcers, so well as its "moulders of public opinion," primarily for their willingess to obey orders and unthinkingly to accept the traditions of the most as the sum of all wisdom-that system cannot produce just judges any more then it our broduce intelligent pub-

You have no reason really to thank the charity peoplepraiseworthy as their motives may often be: but you have every reason to blame yourselves that, with the power of the builot in your hand, you still tamely submit to a system that daily ascrifices the health of your women and children to the luxury of a nonproducing class. If Socialism would do no more than wipe out the necessity for such charities as these, that alone would be reason enough for you to vote under the Arm and Torch.

Tens of themsands of people in New York City are afflicted with tuberculosis-doomed to a slow and miserable death, doomed to see themselves a bur den and a danger to their friends and relatives before they die. The best informed specialists deciare that almost the whole of the tuberculosis existing in New York City results directly from the gonditions prevailing in the tenements and factories where the mass of the working people are doomed to spend their days and nights-especially to the lack of sunlight and ventilation and that the case of a tuberculosis victim in such surroundings is practirally hopeiess. The bourgeois reformers and philanthropists propose to establish a sanitarium where five hundred noticuts might get free care and treatment. These reformers and philanthropists are of the class that own the shops and tenements and live in luxury on their interest and dividends and rentals. They profit by the hell in which the tollers languish, and then they would pose as public benefactors if they give one out of fifty of the victime a chance to escape. We Socialists have a different idea. We say: Depend no longer on the aristocratic reformers and philanthropists for relief. Workingmen, you who have created the city, take its government into your own hands. Tax the capitallsts' property, accumulated by the exploitation of your labor, to raise funds, not only to build adequate sanitariums for those who are already sick, but to build wholesome and decent dwellings, in place of disease-breeding tenements, and let them to the toilers at cost. The Socialist movement is and, if it is to remain true to its mission, must continue to be a mevement of the wage-working class, a proletarian movement. The nature of the capitalist system of exploitation, which dominates present-day society in-all its phases, is such that only the wageworking class in the stricter sense of that word is, as a class—that is, by virtue of its class interests and consequent class instincts-put into a position of direct and fundamental and constructive opposition to existing in-attutions; is other words, while there may be other discontentul classes or sections of society, only the proletarist is, as a class, in direct consequence of its economic position, instinctively revelutionary in the Socialist sense. ical ideas are determined by their economic position is a well established law of social science, not as applied to individuals, except in a limited measleaguered outpost-to such a region, and the more so in view of the peculiar ure, but as applied to communities and to classes as wholes. THE PRRYY IN DENMARK.

The Worker has already reported the results of the paritimestary elections in Denmark, showing a constitutable gain for the Social Democratic Party. gain for the Social Democratic Party. We now take from the "Berus Socialists" a brief account of the last national congress of the party, held at Aarhua, shortly, before the election.

The Aarhus congress marked an epoch in the history of the Danhah Socialist movement, because of its decision to put an end to the partial alliance with the Liberah which had pre-viously been in effect. This siliance was formed at the time when both the Liberals and the Socialists, as minority and opposition parties, were arrayed against an extremely arbitrary Conervative government, which was determined to hold on to power after it had lost its majority in the Folkething. Two years ago the government was compelled to yield and a Liberal min-istry was formed, and the Socialiais in the Folkething gave their support to this ministry in consideration of its to this ministry in consideration of its promise of considerable reforms—re-duction of the war budget, an extensive program of ameliorative legislation, extension of manhood suf-frage to ignal elections (for in Denthe suffrage is much more restricted in municipal and communal than in national elections, and other progres-

Instead, however, of carrying one began at once to follow the example of the Conservative ministry that had preceded it, completely dis pledges, effected a rapproches Landesthing (the upper house, somewhat corresponding to our Senate) to carry out its reactionary plans in defiance of the opposition in the popular branch.

In consequence of this experience the party congress unanimously voted to dissolve the alliance and to treat the Liberals on the same terms with the Conservatives, as political enemies. On this line the campaign was fought and a noteworthy advance made for Social Democracy. In the manifesto armouncing this change of policy the party declared; "Wa do not regret-having sided the Left to get into We foresaw that after the victory of the majority" (that is, the Liberal-Socialist conlition) "a now con-flict would arise within that majority, although we did not expect that it would arise so quickly or in such a severe form."

MISSIAN SECRET POLICE USE QUEER METHODS.

The Russian correspondents of the London "Times" report that the government secret 'police are trying to check or confuse the revolutionary movement by putting pre-tended revolutionists in the field to distribute "underground" leafets among the workingmen in the pre-tended name of a workingmen's group distribute which they call the "Group of Think-

SUCIALISM IN SPAIR

How the Social Democratic Party in eighteen sections were represented; at the second, twenty-three; at the third thirty-two; at the fourth, thirty-four congress, last year, sevenlythree; new the number is raised to one ing members to 5,000; In 1891 the party got 5,000 votes at the elections; in 1903 it polled 23,000, which, consideeing the manner is which voters are terrorized at the polls and the results faisified, speaks volumes. Corruption is so general that the hourgoots parties gave at the last elections one and one half million penetra to defeat the So cialists. A vote was worth on the average fifteen pessens. In fourteen districts the Socialists were so disgreated at the refusal of the authorities to assert the law that they broke the ballot-boxes. The party has a number of weeklies, with a total circulation of 35,000, but no daily. The Socialists are represented in many communes though not yet in Parliament. The party has a inge-totawing among the agricultural laborers, and is chiefly re-cruited from the proletarist. The printers are the most active workers.

The Wilmington negro lynching in and commentary on our capitalistic civilization. The heart of more than one white man, much as it loathed and abhorred the crime which this negro is alleged to have committed, bent in sympathetic rhythm with the heart of the negro preacher who, driven to des peration under the wrongs, indistributed and outrages beared upon his race urged them to declare fratricida against their brothers of the white skin. Prosperity-so-called national prosperity-brings no blessings to them; yet they are the first to suffer from any blow inflicted upon this prosperity. In the most prosperius times their greatest happiness is to be able, by dint of long-continued and ex-hausting toil, to keep their heads above water, the wolf from the door. Even this, as the facts testify, is only accomplished by the sacrifice of health and vitality. But when the tide of commercial prosperity is the the or no matter now brief a space, their case is pitiable indeed. Prosperity does not raise them above poverty, and when bad times come they are plunged in the depths of want and misery. To the propertied classes prosperity brings affluence, and they can tide over a period of depression without suffering any inconvenience. But with the working class there is no margin; at to keep body and soul together, and when that is gone, all is gone. Thus it happens that while free trade and cheapness do not bring prosperity to the workers whatever they may do for the workers wastever they may do for others, protection and dearness offer no remedy. If protection develops cer-tain industries it may afford them more means of employment, more op-portunities of being exploited; but on the other hand, it may have the re-verse effect, and in any case. AS TO TACTICS.

By A. M. Simons.

A political party which is at the anti-Marxian in that it is absolutely same time the advance guard of a revolutionary army, the representative of a special social class, and the preacher of a new social philosophy. must often find itself confronted with the question as to which of these phases is most important at any given time. Shall such a party be mainly a propaganda society, or the political weapon of the working class in its present struggle, or simply a herald of the day of revolution?

These problems of tactics have recently become particularly preasing in the municipal field. While success
'was still far in the future the party was necessarily almost exclusively propagandist society. But success it even now upon us in many portions of the country and the next general municipal elections will certainly find hundreds of Socialists holding official positions in municipal governments. Shall these men "mount the forum only for purposes of propagauda," of shall they take up the cause of labor wherever opportunity offers, and fight to secure every possible gain for the working class whenever such gain means no relaxation but rather a strengthening of the revolutionary po-mitton? Even, if we consider our elected officials only as propagandist the question is still before us as to whether a propaganda dealing only in generalities is more effective than one which takes advantage of every combut between exploiter and exploited questions will have much to do with deciding the future of the Socialist

There are two attitudes which be cause of their extreme character and the reciferousness with which they have been urged have attracted much more attention than they have really deserved. One of these is that occuln the sense in which this word is used in the international movement there are really very few represents tives of this school in America. In-deed they would require little atten-tion on our part were it not for the valiant service which they have donas "bogey men" in the hands of some of those who occupy the other ex-treme. In so far as this position is represented at all in this country its adherents are nearly all to be found in the so-called "radical democracy" and especially in that wing of it which follows William Randolph Hearst, Of members of the Socialist organization comparable to Bernstein in Germany, Turati in Italy, Jaurés and Millerand in France and Kefr Hardle in England, there are so few representatives here as to be practically unworthy of at-

This school seeks to obtain advance This school seeks to obtain advances through compromises with capitalism. It seeks favors by begging, by alliances and by fusion. It generally considers Socialism only as a collectivist scheme realizable by successive steps transferring industries to governmental power. It exaggerates the importance of each trifling silvance and would mae the whole inschinery of would use the whole machinery of olitical organization in securing the furtherance of each individual reform.
To-day, for example, it would throw the energy of the Socialist Party into the effort to secure nationalization of railronds, telegraphs and telephones, or menicipal ownership of street cars, electric lights, waterworks, etc. It would invite to its assistance all who at present favor any one of these with-out regard to whether they now desire to take the "next step" or sot, trusting to the possibility of reconverting them for each successive steu.

In answer to this position it has been hown over and over again that when the class organization of the workers relaxed to secure temporary ad vances the whole revolutionary char-acter of the movement is destroyed and the reform desired is gained after an endeavor only a little less than would have been necessary to secure complete proletarian domination. Ex-perience also has tended to show the sollow character of most of these socalled "steps" so far as any advantage to the working class is concerned. Glasgow, Bradford, and London have taken more of these steps than any other cities in the world, yet they still present the same horrible sink-holes called slums, and the weight of the unemployed still presses upon the wage-workers and prevents them from rising above the slave station. Finally, ance of a strongly organized revolu-tionary political party of the working class, even if small in numbers, causes the enactment of these reforms by the capitalists even quicker than when the Socialist organization is sacrificed for their direct attainment. If, however, the true opportunist is seldom found within the Socialist Party of America, the other position which has been well designated as the "impossibilist" is a distinctly American product and found nowhere else on earth. To be sure, recent events in Scotland would seem to indicate that the specimens transplanted from this country were making a feeble growth on that soil. The statement that the Parti Ouvrier of France takes this po-sition is especially ridiculous, as they have one of the most elaborate platforms for immediate action of any party in Europe. In this respect in-deed they go much further than any large division of the American Socialists has ever advocated. It is a striking proof of the ignorant fanaticism of De Leon's followers that he has been able to make them believe the contrary when the facts were so easily large part of its positions are not simply foreign to the Marxian dectrines, but are absolutely antagonistic to those doctrines. An example of this is seen in the fact that generally by implication, or otherwise, they have their arguments upon the theory of the "increasing misery of the working class." This is a distinctly Lussaileian position which has been rejected by Interportional Socialists, and especially by the Marxian wing, all over the world. It has a far better reason for sejection than the fact of its being anti-Markian in that it is anosoticity contrary to facts. It is perfectly easy for anyone to show that, taken as a whole, the capalition of the working class is constantly improving. In fact the rise of the working class has been the observation significant phenomenon of the une-genth century comparable only in importance to the constantly increasing control over nature. These two facts indeed constitute two These two facts indeed constitute two of the fundamental propositions upon which modern scientific Socialism rests. From these two facts the most important deduction is the one which muintains that the working class is destined to be the political rulers and dominating element in the coming seciety. In pointing out this position, however, I hope that no one will be foolish enough to think that I do not recognize the other equally important fact, which will constitute the motive fact, which will constitute to unrest and action, that the degree of exploitation is constantly increasing. Another favorite war cry of wing is the right of labor to its entire product, a position size distinctly anti-Marxian which rests upon the purely bourgeois philosophy of "natural rights." A municipal platform which was lately heralded by this school as a model one contained this fallacy in

A still more serious charge against the impossibilist position is found in the fact that it practically ignores the class struggle and this notwithstanding the fact that no other phrase is so often found in their mouth. But the class struggle is a fact, not a phrase. It is a thing of to-day, not a dream of the future. It is being waged now on every field of thought and action. It finds its economic expression in trade union conflicts; its political side in the struggle of the Schaffet Party for victory, while its influence can be traced in every field of human life. Any tac-tics based upon the class struggle must be a plan of action within that struggle and not a theory of what will happer when the struggle is ended in the victory of the proletariat.

Bearing these facts in mind it seems to me that the policy dictated by scientific Socialism must be something dif-ferent from that taken by either of tine Sociation must be someting out-ferent from that taken by either of these two wings. I say "different from" rather than "between" them because I believe mellorism as frequently to be wrong as extremism and that quite the surest way to find the wrong path is to take two extreme errors and strike an average. As I understand the logic of facts and their interpreta-tion in the light of scientific Socialism we should take a position embracing these two points: First, recognizing the fact that any action within the present system and with the powers of social control, and particularly the government, still in the hands of the concessions from capitalism, which concessions will be largely bollow gle. Consequently it is the duty of the Socialist Party to stand as the repre-sentative of the intering class in that struggle and fight to secure to that

It seems to me that this position can be best expressed in our public official declarations by means of a platform containing a statement of the absolute revolutionary position and half the facts. Tet it seems to me that this position is of no infinitely greater importance than anything conreason I am opposed to any 'Immediate demands" beitig made an integral part of the platform. Another reason for excluding these from the platform are compelled to take action upon host of matters. If there is no definite official program mistakes or worse are made. If a committee is appointed to assist in the guidance of such an official neither the man elected nor the committee have any official program by which to guide their action. An-tagonisms and disagreements at once ragonsms and disagreements at once arise, and the committee, unless composed of more than ordinarily tactful human beings, develops lide a mere nagging, fault-flading body and constant friction results. There is, of course, a further fact which is sometimes lost sight of, that there is no example, resum or beliefly that a essential reason for believing that a committee is more representative than an individual. The individual generally represents the will of the majority, and so does the committee, the adding of one or two individuals does not render it infallible. For these reasons, which are merely statements of facts already observable in the experience of this and other countries, it is cer-tain that sooner or later the party will be forced to formulate some sort of working program. At the same time the carrying out of such a program is fraught with all the dangers that must ever follow any work within capital-lam. Hence it must be surrounded with all possible safeguards to prevent any deviation from class-conscious fo-cialism. The elaboration of the program should be the work of as large a lody of Socialists as possible and every step should be submitted to the severest criticism. And when finally formulated its carrying out should also be as directly as possible under the control of the party membership. In two articles which are to follow this there will be some suggestions as to possible lines of municipal activity and the third article will suggest a plan for general control and direction of municipal action.

SPECIALIZATION IN SOCIALIST WORK.

This specialization in the domain of physical disease serves as an illustration of what might be accomplished in doing away with the evil economic system from which we suffer.

Some men have a special faculty for making their fellow worker realize his had condition; they, as agitators, can bring him to see the wrong he is suffering from the present system of wage-slavery. Others have a peculiar gift of organizing these awakened men government, still in the hands of the capitalist will not be Socialism either in whole or in part, we must make a demand for the complete overthrow of capitalism with all that the term implies. Second: While capitalism lasts we must recognize the fact of the class struggle and our duty to take the working class side of that struggle wherever it appears. We must not be blind to the fact that the continuous unrest of the proletariat will force concessions from capitalism, which is the socialist movement—the education that ist movement- the education that means organized knowledge, knowlconcessions will be largely hollow shams. As the Socialist Party gains boilted power, or even approaches such power, these gains will become more and more of real value. Through any long period of years there will always be a steady betterment in the condition of the working class, and this will come through the class strugmen who can make many opportunities for expounding the solidarity of the working class. Once again, men and women there are who are able to seach the minds of the workers by a convincing pen. The popular rote of the principal parties, according to final reports, was as follows: Social Democrats, 3,025,-108; Center (Clericals), 1,853,707; National@ Libernis, 1,243,306; Conserva-tives, 900.714; Richter Radicals (Frei-sinnige Volkspartei), 523,505; Barth Radicals (Freisiunige Vereinigung), 241.116; Anthemites, 244,587. The Social Democrats gained 900,-000 votes and 23 representatives. The Center has gained 400,000 votes and lost 5 representatives, though still holding much more than its propor-tional share of seats in the Reichstag, The National Liberals, also over-repreented, have gained 275,000 votes and out one seat. The only parties that lost one seat. The only parties that have gained in representation, aside from the Social Democrats, are the Conservatives, with a gain of one; the l'oles, two; the Hanoverlans, three; and the Danes, one. The heaviest losses are those of the three factions of the Italicals, fourteen seats in all, indicating that these partles which attempt to win by compromise are on the sure road to destruction. Taking into account the natural increase of population, it may be said that the So-cial Democratic Purty is the only conslilerable one that has gained, that its increase of over 40 per cent, was parties.

J. B. Askew, writing in the Landon Social Democrat" for July upon the Socialist victories in Germany, discusses the question how far the increase of the Socialist vote was a mere protest against the abuses of militarism, pro-secutions for "Mnjestätabeleidigung." the lunneer tariff, etc., and how far it that the stupid arrogance and stubhornness of the government have contributed much to our success, but holds that this by no means justifies the claim now being made in the bourgeola press of England and the United States that German Social Democracy is merely or chiefly a negative movement of protest. After showing how the Social Democratic Party has made a vigorous campaign against all these special abuses, he says, in part:

"I have here tried to give a brief survey of the principal causes which can be brought forward to show why Socialism has advanced so rapidly in Germany, and at first sight there is no natist that it is all due to exceptional causes, such as the monstrous miscov ernment in Germany and the fact that people look on the Socialists as the only genuine party of opposition. It is also easy to see that the recent stupendous successes of the Socialist Party in Saxony were largely a reply of the workers to their exclusion from the Saxon l'arilament, and their opinion of the policy of the bourgeois parties in Saxony, who formed an alliance of Jewish Libernis, anti-Jew fanatics, Protectionist Agragrians, Free Trad-Industrials, anti-Catholics, Catholics, etc., all against the Socialists.

"But if Saxour offers a good example of a reactionary policy helping us, how are we to account for the fact that in the state which has long been far the most liberal of any German state-Empire as a whole, it did not increa more than from 2,200,000 to 3,690,000. In Wurtemberg, if anywhere, the pos-sible results of a Liberal administra-tion might have been expected to show "isms" as their lecturers to instruct the a weakening of our forces. And what is the result? In few places have we increased so fast. Of more importance, however, was the remarkable growth of our party in the Catholic Rhineland and Westphalia, one of the great cen-ters of German industry, where hither-to our party has made little progress. Here everywhere our vote has increased enormously, and not only wer the great districts of Bochum and Dort fell into our hands. The Center has no doubt, though with difficulty, main tained its position is Germany as a whole up to now, but its proud boast of affording an impregnable rock against the invasion of the Social Democrats has received a tremendous blow. The impregnable rock is very wobbly, and of the Center party it must be said that they are our most dangerous opponents. * * * "It would be a mistake to infer from

* STATE SECRETARY WHITE'S APPRECIATION.

To the Editor of The Worker,

Boar Comrade:-- I feel it my duty to say a word in appreciation of year-velocite paper. I realize that each of the Socialist papers is doing a grand work in its way for the cause, but I feel that The Worker should be n the hands of every member of the Secialist Party. As a medium of party news it is, in my mind, indispensable, and the clear-out able editorials in defense of Socialism should be read by everyone interested in the cause. I feel that the circulation of The Werker among the comrades of the state of Massachusetts will help our movement beyond power Fraterakly yours,

DAN A. WHITE, Secretary.

It is the ideal of The Worker to be at once the best paper for Socialist propaganda and the best paper for the education of party mambers-that these two functions are not inconsistent but inseparably connected. If The Worker deserves the warm commendation given by Secretary White, it is but just to say that the credit belongs as much to our army of counsellors and correspondents in the rank and file of the party as to the publishers and editors.

We ask the comrades everywhere to co-operate in extending the the field of usefulness of The Worker and can safely promise them that the quality of its service will be improved in proportion. *************************************

While we declare that the development of seconomic conditions tends to the overthrew of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialisms also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletarist. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate: IMMEDIATE DEMANDS.

As such meets we autocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well an of all in a communication and all other public utilities. A FIGHT TO THE FINISH.

the best of capitalist authority, the methods of frund and violence used by the organized employers to defeat the ingmen of that larger city. " switchmen's demand for an eight-hour

The publication on such excellent capitalist authority as the Denver "Post" of the facts in the case of the sixty men imported from Missouri by the Smelting Trust to break the Danwer strike, the men having been assured there was no strike on in order to induce them to go and required to make deposits with the company's agents in order that they might reach to scab and having been surrounded by armed guards to prevent their prematurely learning the true state of affairs, is enough to convince us, if anything were needed, that the instituttions printed in the capitalist press to the effect that the strikers are plotting to destroy the company's property with torch or dynamite are gratuitous lies. The bosses who would do what these are proved to have done, are quite capable of hiring agenta-to-set fires and place bombs for the nurpose of union officers under arrest and making an excuse for the decisration of martial law. And this is not the first instance of such rascallty on the part of American choltaffata. "

Since that matter was in type there comes, on equally good author ity, a still more shocking story of capi talist crime. Here is the story, as briefly told in the news dispatches of the "Times," one of the most reputable of capitalist newspapers:

"IDAHO SPRINGS, Col., July 30. After a meeting of business men last night 500 citizens of Idaho Springs went to the city jail and took fourteen of the men arrested in commention with the blowing up of the Sun and Moon mine buildings, marched them to the city limits, and told them to leave the place and never-return.

The men driven out include the president of the local union, the vice-president, accretary, and thensurer, and two or three members of the executive committee. All the others are promi-

> The men who were driven out Idaho Springs called on the Governor for protection. The Governor knows his business. He is there to protect the "sacred rights of property," not the referred them back to the local authorities who had given them up to the tender mercies of the capitalist rioters.

Most striking of all is the fact, not that such crimes are committed, not even that they are committed with impunity, but that such a paper as the "Times" can openly and directly approve them, as it did in its issue of August 2, and that not one word of protest goes up from any of the leaders of the old parties, or from any of the tournalistic clerical, or professor ial defenders of capitalist "law and or der" who so readily go into hysterics over the slightest demonstration of spirited discontent by the working peo-

Once more let it be said-it cannot be repeated too often, until the mass of the working-class voters shall recognise the truth-the possessing class cares absolutely nothing for law and order, except where law and order means their security in the unbridied exploitation of the workers. The capitalist class will stop at no lawlessness, will hesitate at no invasion of personal liberty, if it sees profit to be gained thereby. The capitalist class knows nothing of honor or good faith. It recognizes no rights but its own right to live in luxury without doing any useful work.

Whoever of the working class trusts in the honor of the capitalists, whoever trusts in their mercy, whoever trusts in their respect for law, deceives himself; and whoever counsels the working class to depend on anything but its own intelligence, its own power of industrial and political organization, counsels it to commit class suicide.

Against the lawless and criminal system of capitalism, which grows more lawless and criminal from day to day. there is but one hope for liberty-the

But more and more of the workingmen are learning to think for workingmen are learning to think the themselves and it may well be that this outrage committed by the Ameri-can Smelting and Reining Company will be the means of sending Socialists to the state house here in Colorado to advocate such legislation and in every respect to fight for the working claim against contistism.

POLITICAL PROGRAM

OF LABOR! The age-long struggle which has against capitalism

been carried on in the economic field has been carried by the capitalist class to Congress, to the Legislature, to the President's office and to the Supreme Court. The capitalist has reinforced his side in this fight with the use of the whole power of the state in order to defeat the strike, to dianrm the workers, to enforce injunctions, to disrupt unions and to make impossible such continued and profitable employ-ment of the workers as would make the workers industrial masters of

On the other hand the laborers are beginning to understand that they are besten in the strike because, before the strike, they had placed the power of the state in the hands of the encodes of labor; it is coming to be understood by all workers that the ballot opens tue way by which they thenwelves may of the laborers, in the same way tha these same powers are now being used to the injury of the laborers. There is now no way by which this age-long strife could be kept away from the ballot-box, and there is no reason why it should not be fought out at that place. Ever since the beginning of civilization the powers of the state have been used to enslave, to degrade, to discredit and to impoverish the pro-ducers of wealth. The modern industrial developments have made workers more and more dependent on the owners of the means of production, and, while it is frequently admitted that these questions must be carried to the ballot-box, and then proposed that it should be done under a non-partism referendum on the merits of the questions involved, it is hardly possible that those who make these proposals appreciate how serious are the questions involved, how age-long has been this strife, how determined would be this struggle for the possession of the ballot-box in order that the authorities may be used for or against the deliverance of the working class from the enslavement that has been their lot ever since history began.

A political party thoroughly organized and standing together through a series of elections, finally coming to a majority, will be able to enforce obe dieuce, but a referendum may give an overwhelming majority to a proposal and if the officers of the court and the other officers of the state and in authority are deeply interested in thwarting the public will, the referen-dum still leaves in their bands the power to do so.

While it is frequently said that when socialism is carried by a majority vote in this country that the Supreme Court would hold it unconstitutional, a refer endum rote by an unorganized major-ity would necessarily submit to such a decision; but a political party carried into power on such an issue could re-construct the Supreme Court itself; it, could suppress rebellion, make its own interpretation of the laws, or make new laws if necessary-in fact, a referendum without a party is only an ex-pression of public opinion, without authority to enforce that opinion. A triumphant political party, standing for Socialism will not only be an expression of public opinion, but when largely in the majority this majority will thus become the government itself party of Socialism. The central com-party of So national organizations, are themselves union men throughout the state we capitalists or the agents of capitalists, are connected with military compani-

control of the state in order that it may use the authority of the state in behalf of the workers, can ever secure and enforce the proposals of the Social-ists. The organization need not be complicated, its platform may be brief, flict that is as old as history and which slict that is as old as history and which will end only with the trituph of the Socialist Party. The platform must stand for the collective ownership of the means of life; the democratic man-agement by the workers of the collec-tively owned means of producing the means of life; for equal apportunities for all men and women to the use and handle of these collectively owned and benefit of these collectively owned and peratically managed means of producing the means of life; it must "pledge the full power of society, its lawa, courts, armies, its workers and its wealth to secure these ends." It is the most serious task ever un-dertaken by mortal man. There is no energy in human life too great to give, no service too difficult to do, and no no service too difficult to do, and no task so long that it may not well be undertaken to secure an end so great. Union laber parties could not secure Socialism. A triumphant Socialism political party will not only secure the majority vota, but will possess and will directly administer the proposals of the Socialists under the control of AWAKENING. News of the Automabiling Agitators-Agitation at Various Points.

> The State Committee met on August 4, in accordance with its decision to meet on the first Tuesday and third Saturday of each month so that it may be possible for delegates from other locals near New York to attend Satur-day evening meetings. On account of the small attendance, very little busi-ness was transacted. The treasurer's report for July showed balance on hand July 1, $20.81; receipts during July, $318.40; receipts for automobile fund, $134.45; total receipts, $482.10; expenditures, $377.11; balance on hand August 1, $105.05.

> The Social Democratic Party will have candidates for all state offices to be filled this fall and will appear on the ballot in every election district in the state.

The Automobile Agitation.

The following contributions have been received for the Automobile Fund since last report: 23d A. D., New ork, list 30, $2.35; 18th-20th A. D., New York, fist 42, $1.20; Branch 1, 35th A. D., New York, list 48, $3; J. F. Handlow, New York, $1.

A COUNTRY WITHOUT STREET

If you would understand why the godly Republican capitalists of the North are investing so largely in the stocks and bonds of Southern cottonmill companies, and if you wish to learn therefrom what is the capitalists' ideal of the condition of labor, you have only thoughtfully to consider the widely quoted article in which the Chattanooga "Tradesman," one of the most influential business papers of the South. describes that region as "A Country without Strikes." Labor and Capital are brothers down there, acording to the "Tradesman," living together in a state of mutual lovingkindness that must delight the heart Senator Ranna. "There is no section of country in the world," says this paper, "embracing so large an amount of territory, employing in proportion to the population so many wagecarners, and where such extensive money interests are involved, which has been so free from labor strikes."

We would commend the foregoing bit of bomely moral philosophy to those few but obstreperous comrades "practical politics" in the Socialist Party, who clamorously declare that "the American movement must use American methods," and predict that the victory of Socialism will be brought about by the means of some "meteoric" political leader. Substitute the word "politician" for the word "thief" in Uncle Eben's aphorism and it will still hold good.

Editor of The Worker:-- I am glad that at last a voice of protest has been golden field where the "grafter" can reap what he never sowed. So un-Socialistic and disgraceful to our move-ment is this practice, that I have often and some of our young comrades as well, how much we had to pay to get well, how much we had to pay to get certain speakers. In some instances I was told: "Well, preaching Socialism is not a bad business, after all, is it? At $25, $50, and $100 a night your men ought to get rich pretty quick." I was ashamed, I say, because to such remarks I could not give a justifying answer. Our position, I felt, was de hensible to me how, with the Socialist movement still in its infancy, we have not only tolerated, but eacouraged, with un-Socialistic proceedings.

What is to be done? How shall we stop this?

To be candid, we must blame selves more than the "grafters," have been encouraging them. They, true to their capitalistic tendencies, have been looking out for themslevas. There is amengst eur comrades a cer-tain number with the pernicious ten tain number with the permicious tendency to man-worship, and an equally bad inclination to put men above principle. The fact that duris is a proletarian movement is only dimly discerned. These comrades of ours soon get tired of phrases like "revolutionary" or "When worship or "They tionary" or "class-conscious." They want to follow the easier road, to have some form of Senialism "acceptable to all." In their haste to bring Socialism about, they willingly exchange their position of educators for that of prac-tical politicians and cuter to prominent personsities. It is thus that, instead all for votes. They do not try into the working people that dignified feeling of class-co or the stre of public morality, either as teachers or adjusters of right relations, and ways missts in the affairs of men. The lives and thoughts of professional saints, or separatists of any type, were erer devoid of ethical significance to the world. Indeed, as we find our morality only where we find our happiness, or vice versa, so, until we can find both in our daily work, neither the the philosophy of Mr. the ethic of oc-cupation and fellowship.

While resolutely denying the doctrine of certain aristocratic moralists, inculcating that labor is itself a virtue, we may, without their sinister seal against laxiness, be able to see quite only the highest in politics, but that the individual's share of and interest in it constitute his entire morality, character, and happiness. It was not as the divider of food at family table that the mother throughout the ages became the source of morals, but as the one not separate from the family, the one who was ever there making both ends meet, and the one who when they met served them together. She laid the basis of character in her self-imposed doings and constancy in holding the family to-gether. She was the true priest, and there was never another, of happiness and morality, because she ministered at the primitive sources of happiness or character, the doing of necessary things and with a fully occupied thinking interest in them.

Deluded by the phantom of to-mor-row's happiness and to-morrow's char-acter, what human neck has not bowed down in unhappiness to the despotism of the undeveloped future. Let us complain no more of the des-potism of the past, there is little to compisin of compared with this gen-eral immelation of ourselves imposed be once downstricken, and faith and freedom and the unconquerable democracy of to-day shall be triumphant. The private person shall then really sater the ethical life of unfearfulness. and social faith shall succeed spiritual and property cowardice. That despotism once down, the unbappiness of the human race shall fall away from it forever. For when we are not fearful and unhappy, the sum of human happiness is ours. Not to be in fear of the next hour, but to live and to do in this, to be interestively engaged in its details and duties, constitutes the whole of our freedom, our char-

This deliverance from to-morrow is as truly the life of democracy as it is the antithesis of all the vain concents concerning remote futures by which priesthoods find us and hand us over out to us in the names of prudence property, and to-morrow. Let us de-liver ourselves from that unboly alli-ance of gentlemen gerrymanderers who seek to cast all our interests with all our votes into future property, or into heaven, that next one after the last heaven, that next one after the last of our assembly districts where union cease to trouble and Morgan is at rest.

The ethics of the single life is that by which one discovers himself to be no longer a mere spectator of his gen-eration, but that there is nothing for work, nothing so greatly right as to occupy and do it, nothing so greatly wise as that of willing and thinking in fel-lowship with the social crowd around us-to mingle in the current of economics: to be of its activity, its inter-working day.

All men are to-day, therefore, called the laborers' own cakes, but because, in the course of history, their cause has come to be the cause of the whole world, the source of its morals and happiness, and no other class affair has any world-significance at all. In the affairs of no other class is involved human liberty. The world's interest is no longer in our brains, but in our hands and in their affairs. We are not getting truth on our knees or in our books. We are not getting truth at all until we are affiliated or effiliating with the social day's work, and if we we neither part nor lot in ethics-the greatest concers of humanity.

ers were taken into the Socialist Party in Ohio during the month of a ticket in the field for the state offices in the Ohio circuits now, and the speakers are doing the greatest work by far that has ever been attempted in Ohio.— Jasin and Glickert have just completed a most successful tour of the southern and western part of the State. They were successful in organising one new local at Beliefontaine.—Howard H. Caldwell organised two new locals last week, one at Bothel, and one at New Richmond. In addition to this, he formed temporary organisations at two other points in Clermont County. Dayton Socialists are averaging from ings every week, and the number will be increased each week as the staction draws near. Onldwell, dilickert, Jasin, Smith, Hynes, Gardner, Whitney, and Lowis have all contributed their share of this good work. Here is a mace for In view of the present strike in Chiage. Comrade Johnson, the Sociatist literman, introduced a resolution in the City Connell to the effect "that the rorkers, who constitute the majority one month. The working people of that town are getting thoroughly stirred up, and something can be looked for at the pext election.-Capdidate for Lieutenant Governor, M. Z. Hynen, will start to work upon the cir-Hyren, will start to wook upon the cir-cults August 10. The is a speaker of ability, and is one of the most thorough protestarian characters that we have in the state. He has an especial faculty of being able to command a hearflig when speaking to people of his own-class.—The State Quorum has nousi-nated Martin Goos, Newark, Ohio, to go upon the state ticket for Member Board of Tubble Works, to 48 the va-omey caused by the death of the pro-ent becausierit of that office. Nousian-tion has been filled and accounted at ing a fusion deal with him for the com-ing election. The comrades of Toledo-want it distinctly understood that this is absolutely false. There is not an organization in the nation that stands for more uncompromising Socialism than Toledo. Their watchword is: "No fusion; no compromise; no qui to capitalism or its parties." The capitalism of the parties to fusion t forts of the Toledo dailies to fuse the Socialists without asking them will prove futile, just as in the past, and the Socialist candidates will again appear before the working class of that city at the fall election, asking for their suffrage in order to gain indus-trial freedom.—The campaign in Ohio is starting in carnest now, and the work is being enlivened by the reports of the tremewious success that is being achieved by the speakers and organiz-era. > E. P. Clarke, formerly of the 23d A. B., New York, removed to the little town of Mystic, Conn., three or four months ago and straightway went to work for Socialism. Here are some of the results. In that town, where no Socialist vote has ever been recorded, there is now a local with twenty-fou embers, which will put up a local ticket this fall; Comrade Clarke has sent in about a score of new aniscriptions for The Worker and has sold i large number of pamphiets. John W. Brown spoke there a short time ago to the largest audience that greeted him in all that part of the state, an andience that listened attentively, applanded generously, and gave a good collection to help carry on the work of the local. The moral of this little story of what one quietly energetic man's initiative has accomplished is: (So then and do likewise.

Jules Magnette and several other courades working in the Thread Trust miles around Newark have been dis-charged for no other reason than being Socialists. It was decided that the miary of the Campaign Secretary provided for by the city convention be $18 per week, and that a permanent recording secre-tary, financial secretary, and treasurer be elected. Nominations were in order for the above-mentioned officers, birt the vote upon the same was postponed to the next or some future meeting. By the direction of the Executive unittee of Lecal New York it was recommended to the committee that the Campaign Secretary of Groater New York serve also as the Organiser of Local New York; and by directio of the same committee Gerber and At-kinson were nominated for the office. Comrade Fred Schnofer was nominated for Campaign Secretary of Greate, New York. Atkinson declined the nomination. Comrade Gerber stated his willingness to acrept the office at the salary voted if given an assistant who could attend to less important matters and perhaps handle the type-writer. For Recording Secretary, At-kinson and Bock were nominated. The former declined. For Financial Secretary nomination was accepted by Comrade Sprenger; and Comrade Hartl was nominated for Treasurer. It was decided to get out the eampaign sub-scription lists at once, and Comrade Gerber took this work in charge. It was decided to urge the completi the municipal platform by the Platform Committee that it may be ready for printing as soon as possible, and to call upon Comrade Hillquit to write a pamphlet upon municipal program. fully the Best Month in the Party's History-Seventeen Thousand Mombers New Enrolled-Warm Discussion of Internal Questions Has No Checked Organized Progress.

The semi-annual report of the Na-tional Secretary of the Socialist Party for the period January 1 to July 1, 1908, and the financial report for July which reach us simultaneously, show that the rather warm discussions of in-ternal party questions that have precalled of late have by no means check the growth of the organization. The average membership, as shown by the payment of dues, in 1902, was almost exactly 10,000. The average for the first half of 1963 indicates a membership of about 15,500. If we take the amount paid for dues in July as correctly indicating the membership, we have now nearly 18,000 members. This may be slightly above the real mark, as so states may have bought a supply of dues stamps sufficient for two or three onths: but the allowance to be made for this cannot be large. It may safely be said that our dues-paying membership is now 60 per cent. greater than it was a year ago.

dues shows an average membership for each of the six months of 12,879 in the organized states, and 603 in the unor-ganized states and territories; a total of 13.482 per month. This is an in-crease of over 3.500 above the average for each month of 11802. Were the ac-counts owing to this office for due stamps by various states paid, the re-celpts would probably show a suembership of 10,000.

Of the $1,794.22 indebtedness on January 1, $812.51 has been paid, in-cluding $225 donated by Comrade Eugene Dietzgen, leaving a balance of SIS1.71. An effort will be made to wipe out this debt entirely before January

"New supplies have been printed, as follows: One hundred thousand platforms: 50,000, membership cards; 100. 000 membership applications; 'Why Socialists Pay Dues'; and 100,000 membership due stamps. An order for 50,000 party buttons has been placed, to be taken up in lots of 10,000 each. These supplies have been sold at cost, 'Why Socialists Pay Dues,' and How to Organize,' which have been distributed free. New locals in unorganized states have not been charged for the first order of supplies. New stationery has also been secured.

Agitation and Organization.

"Efforts have been made to extend the work of agitation and organization into unorganised territory, while at the same time promoting the growth of or-ganization in states already organized. The Lecture Bureau work has also been extended so far as circumstances would permit.

John C. Chase began a tour of the South and Southwest in January, and up to June 30 had spoken for trude unions and Socialist locals in Washington, D. C., West Virginia, Virginia Georgia, South Carolina, Florida, Alahams, Arkinsas, Frans, Louisiana, In-dian Territory, Oklahoma, Missouri, Tennessee, and Kentucky; addressing nearly 150 meetings. Comrade Chase, as representative of the National Com-nities, assisted in preparing for a state convention in Arkinsas and was also convention in Arkansas, and was also resent at the convention itself. This tour has been an undoubted success, and while the unorganized condition of the territory and the serious floods and washouts made Comrade Chase's work more difficult and expensive than usual, yet the reports from his work have been so antisfactory and enthu-siastic that we can feel the labor and expense well ment, and be assured that the beginning of the great organ-ising work in the South and Southwest has at last been made. "In May, John W. Slayton, of New Castle, Pa., began a lecture tour, spe cially designed to reach trade unionists, an undertaking which proved ex-ceedingly successful. Comrade Slayton addressed large meetings arranged by trade union bodies in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia, and Virgins, over thirty meetings in all. Pressing business at home compelled Com-rade Slayton to close his tour in June. It is without exaggeration to say that Comrade Slayton's work on this tour amply demonstrated his ability as a Socialist lecturer, and opened the way in many places for more of our speakers later on. The receipts from this tour fully covered the expense. "In April, M. W. Wilkins, of San Francisco, began a tour of the Northwest in Oregon, where a special con-gressional election was about to be held in the First District. Wilkins addressed forty-nine meetings and organ-ized fourteen locals in Oregon up to the time of entering Washington in June. Reports from Comrade Wilkins' work are satisfactory and indicate that it will make toward a stronger and more efficient organization in that territory.

"John M. Ray of Nashville, Tenn., egan work as organizer in Alabama n May, and has since worked in Tennessee and Georgia, visiting territory heretofore untouched, meeting with gratifying success. Here again the floods and washouts interfered with our work, and necessitated heavier ex-pense than was expected. Neverthe-less, it is believed that Comrade Ray's efforts will gesult in preparing the Southern states assigned him, for per-manent organization and effective lec-ture tours. Comrade Ray attended the Alabama state convention, as repre-sentative of the National Committee, and assisted in the preliminary work of forming a state organization. "John W. Brown of Hartford, Conn. "John W. Brown of marketon, acted as national organiser through New Hampshire and Vermont during May and June, addressing over twenty meetings with good success.

the Gleim of Our Capitalist Press that the German Seciclists Are More Reformers.

Bince the striking advance tered by the Social Democrats of Ger-many at the June elections, the capi-talist press has been filled with state-ments to the effect that the German Socialists are not like the pestilent ir reconcilable American breed, that they are only moderate reformers, similar to the "liberal" Republicans or "radical" Democrats of the United States, and that therefore those who would achieve like success in this country should attach themselves to one of the old parties and not to the avowed Socialist organization of this country. We have slready given some of the German Socialist campaign documents to show the fallacy of this claim. We now print a translation of the party platform ou which our German com-rades won and ask the reader to compere it with our American platform and see if he can find any startling

IN GERMANY.

An article in the "Cologne Gazette on the recent elections is entitled "Against the Class Idea." It winds up by urging the Liberals to close their ranks against the Socialists, saying that it is not the democratic but the class idea which gave the Socialist their three million votes. After all this attempts to explain away the impotance of our victory in English and other bourgeois papers, it is interest-ing to see that the principal organ of the German governing classes recognizes that the Socialist victory is th outcome of the class consciousness of the German proletariat. • • • It remains to add that a Radical paper the "Berliner Tageblatt"—finds the rea-son for our victory lies in the fact that the opponents of Bochilism are too lay to go to the poil. The assumption that all lary people must be opponents of Socialism is funny. Belief has published in the "None Zeit" a sharply worded repudiation of Hernstein's article on the elections. Bebel thinks that our representatives have better things to do after a mag port of the victory the next congress had better speak out clearly, and not allow that magnificent victory to 10 spolit in the manner suggested by Bernstein, to the great delight of the bourgeois press. Hernstein's support-ers in the party press think that the letter shows signs of having been writ-ten in great haste, and the bourgeois press writes sneers about the Pole Rebelt but most comrades will feel that it is very timely. It is really too grosuch a moment to inment that the beurgeois Democrats, who have almost invariably betrayed us at decisive mo-

A number of men have recently been thrown into prison by the tyrannical Spanish government on account of their activity and faithfuiness in the labor movement. The present strike is an organized demand for their release. Troops and the gendarmerie have been sent to the scene and in at least one case have fired on a crowd of strikers. the Socialists of Bohemia, held this summer, there were present fifty-eight delegates from local bodies, besides sleven members of the party's executive committees. Reports showed 808 meetings had been held during the last year. The agitation for the exten-sion of the suffrage for the Bohemian Landtag, for old age pensions, and against militarism and clericalism, had been among their chief activities. The paying of greater attention to the or-ganisation of women was recom-mended. It was resolved to continue the agitation in favor of universal direct and secret voting for the Landtag.

Our Progress in Anaconda and Butte.

Socialist Victories and Their Results -A Socialist Assessor Makes it Not for the Copper Trust-The Company Tries to Stamp Out the Movement by Discharging Socialists.

BUTTE, Mont., August 3.—I pre-sume, after the secent Socialist vic-tories in this state at the last full and spring elections, the readers of The Worker would be interested in hearing something of the local conditions and

In Butte last spring our vote in-creased from 800 to 2,000, of which 2300 were straight Socialist votes. Four hundred votes more would have elected our candidate for Mayor. We elected one Alderman from the First Ward Comrado Ambroso, a barber. A merry fight is now ruging in the City Council between ten of the aldermen owned by the Annigamated Copper Company and the Mayor and four of the council who are owned by Mr. Heinze, president of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company, "Ambrose's course in the council has been abso-Intely Independent and fearless has fold that holy repeatedly that it is "simply a fight between two corpora-tions" and that be will support the hayor when he is right and oppose him when he is wrong. At the time of Ronsevelt's visit, a scheme was sprung that the council appropriate $500 for a reception. This meant a hig dinner for a few "swells" at the company botel. It required unanimous consent and Ambrose blocked it by voting may on the ground that "Roosevelt should be at home tending to the husiness that he is paid $50,000 a year for."

Labor Partyites Turn to Socialism. In Anaconda, the labor party that last fall elected its ticket, with a few exceptions, has ceased to exist. With execution of a few (whom we do not want), the rank and file have come over to the Socialist Party. The County Attorney elected on the labor ticket (J. H. McCaffray), however, would not stand for Socialism and has returned to the sheltering folds of the company's influence. This spring in Anaconda we elected the three city officials, mayor, treasurer, and police magistrate, and three out of tan alder-ems. The old-party politicians con-tested and refused to give up the offi-Comrade Frueke, our Mayor-elect took the case into court and won. In this same town—Anaconda—the trade unions went into the school elec tion last spring and elected a majority of the School Board. Company Discharging Socialists.

Whether it was gowing to the knock-down blows on the political field or whether it is owing to stock manipu lation, the company Res thut down the smelter in Anaconda, and as a result the town is practically dead. I spoke on the street there a week ago to a large crowd, and when I referred to the fact that the company was advertising for men in the East, grizzled old comrade shouted: "Let them bring them in. We'll make So feeling of them as fast as they can fetch them here." Needless to say, the sentiment was cheered uproarously, Hundreds of Socialists are getting the "bins card," which means final diamissal, for all time to come, from the service of the company. Every day sees dozens of our best Freey day sees dozens of our best fighters have Anacouda for other mining towns. "Never mind," remarked one of them to me, "we know what Socialism means for us now, and we'll be Socialism wherever we go." Many of them are going to Arisonza where they will be heard from lattr on.

There is a feeling that the company

Our Dangers and Our Nopes.

The shut-down affects Butte, as on half of the mines here are closed, but instead of the Socialists being disheartened they are working away hands full to steer our way between the corporation tyranny and buildowing of the Copper Trust, on one hand, and the fake labor policy of Heinse on the other hand—but we can do it. We hope to elect four or five more aidermen this spring, and even many of the Republicans and Democrats admit that we will carry the county in 1904. Our greatest anxiety now is to keep the professional politicians out of our ranks. Many of them have experi-enced a "change of heart." However, we have provided for this by making a year's membership in the party and "service in the ranks during one campaign" a requisite before they can be constitutionally eligible for a nomina-

Dr. Charles L. Furman, who was ominated for Mayor at the city con cention of the Social Democratic Party of New York, has issued the following ictter of acceptance:

Comrades of Greater New York:-It is gratifying to know that in your opinion my efforts in and for the Socialist movement during the past ten years have been of such character as to consider me worthy of the honor tendered me at the city convention of the Social Democratic Party on July 4.

I accept the nomination for Mayor of New York. And I hope the Socialist movement may always have as much cause for confidence in me as I much cause for confidence in me as I have confidence in Socialism for the working class.

In the coming campaign we will have to meet the bullcoling issues of the old parties as usual, and it is our mission in the political areas to show the working people that they are the same old defunct issues only dressed in coolean alternic and that our second in modern disguise, and that our argu-ments and our objects are ever the same: namely, the absolute liberation of the wealth-creating class from capitalism and wage-slavery and that we capture by ballot the law making, law judging, and law enforcing power of the country, which up to the present day has always been operated by and in the interest of our oppressors and to the detriment of us, the working class.

Thus recognizing the fact of the exinting class antagonism, we as sinver have nothing to lose, we as men like nothing to fear.

It is impossible to lay too much stress upon this point of class-con-aciousness and class interest. It is the very heart of our organization, the blood of its arteries and the breath of its nostrile. Her vitality, its force, its spor, and energy, and our ever-gro strength centers and pivots upon this indisputable fact. It is of this granite rock we have built our fortress whose defenders cannot by bribed, whose guns cannot be spited, and whose votes cannot be bought.

Every wage-clave bears the brand and scar of enpitalism. Let the light from the Socialist torch and the words of our agitators show each and every workingman and women in whose hands are held the branding from, show them that the wolf at the poor man's door is the business agent of

Sational Metal Trades Association Reduces Exploitation to an Exact Science-Would Have the Werkers Waste Ro Time to Answer Nature's

> The Worker has obtained and reprinted from time to time various secret circulars of the National Manu-facturers' Association, the National Metal Trades Association, and other such employers' organizations, in-structing their members in the latest structing their members in the latest methods of exploiting labor, fighting trade unionism and Socialism, and influencing" legislation. The circular letter given below—an exact copy of the latest document of the National Metal Trades Association -is, in some respects, the most remark-able which has yet fallen into our able which has yet fallen into our hands, showing as it does how expi-talism is reducing slave-driving to an exact science so that no single moment of the unpaid time of the workers may, for any purpose whatever, be lost to the capitalist who makes a profit out of their labor. Not content with "speeding up" ma-chinery and intensifying labor in a thousand other ways, the employ ers are now becoming jesious of the performance of any natural bodily function which takes the wage-slave for a few moments from his task. The ideal workingman of these gentlemen of elegant leisure is a profit-produce who would not need to "waste" tim THEIR time-for does not the time of the slave belong to the master?; for such unreasonable purposes as sleeping, eating, and other things now se lamentably necessary to the lasy wo. k ngman who only works twelve or four teen hours a day.

The coules seen to indicate that the practice of moldiering in water-closets is one that has bothered many shop managers, al-though each seemed to think that he was the only person noticing it and that he should, therefore, feel a hesitancy about asking anyone else. In the light of this feeling, your Commisdoner would urge every member to whom any sort of abuse matter of consideration, to take up the question and nak this office and get the combined wisdom of the membership

CLASS-CONSCIOUSNESS.

[This powerful article is George D. | izution we now have as a universal or Herron's contribution to the series on impersonal beast of prey, expressing the A-B-C of Socialism in "The Socialist" of Beattle. 1 I know that the term "class-couiousness" is offensive to many, both without and within the Socialist movement. I know that it is used in a way that often makes it seem like a tiresome and commonplace cant. Thuse who do not understand the history of the term mistake class-consciousness for class-hatred. None the less, it remains true that until the working class becomes more vividly conscious of itsolf than it is now, until it realizes that it is the disinherited owner of the world that it builds on its own back. until it understands that there can be no possible identity of interest or reconciliation between fixelf and the employing or ruling class, its struggle toward emancipation will be blind and unintelligent, betrayed and baffied and compromised, and without that nobility and comprehension which should mark the greatest cause to which man has ever been summoned. In meeting the issues of life and society, we must begin with fact and not with sentiment. The class question is not as to whether we like to have classes or not: the question is: Are there classes in society as now constituted? And is the present constitution of society founded upon the division of the peonie into classes? And do class antagonisms and social destruction inhere in the nature of a class society? No one disputes the affirmative answer to this question. Not even the most horrified and sophistical opponent of the idea of the class struggle can deny the fact of the class structure of exist ing society. And if I am to do any thing whatever, even as a social coralbuilder, toward making the world equally good and resourceful and lovely for all men, I must begin with the fact that all we know of as civilization, up to the present time, has been the institutionalized expression and defense of one class of people living off another class." There are no words that can make hideous and ghastly enough, ee. vivid and revolutionary ngh, this fact that society and its institutions are organised for the pur pose of enabling some people to live off of other people—the few to live off the many. There is no language realistic enough, or possessed of sufficient integrity, to lay bare the chasm between the possessing class and the producing class; between the class that works and the class that reaps the fruits of that work; between the class that is grist for the great world-mill of eco pomic might and the class that har vests the grist. And until the working class becomes conscious of itself as the only class that has a right to be, until the man who is down and bound understands that he is exploited and bound by the power which his own unpaid labor places in the hands of the capitalist, until we all clearly see that what we call civilization is but the organised and legalised robbery of the sommon labor, until we have a revo intionizing comprehension of the faci that our churches and governments our arts and literatures, our educations and philosophies, our morals and maners, are all more or less expression and deformities of this universal rob bery, building themselves and drawing their life and motives upon and out of the vitals of the man who is down and unprivileged, out of his unpaid labor and exhausted life-until then. I say our dreams and schemes of a common good or a better society are but philis tine utopias, our social and industrial referent but salf-deceit, and our weapons but the shadows of stupidity, of hypocrisy. A civilization that is fundamentally parasitical, that has its birth and breath and being in the power of one class to take what an other class produces, cannot be so reformed or added to as to bring forth economic justice or any kind of emancipation; or so ordered as to procur equality of opportunity and free individuality. It is not a question of individuals that we are discussing-not the distinction which our vulgar and beutal moralists make between the so-called good and the so-called bad; it is a question of the quality of civilization.

that is not class-conscious; a Socialist movement that shall conceds some identity or reconciliation of interest be tween labor and parasitism; a Socialist movement that shall accept the enthusiasms of discarded politicians or evangelists, or bow down to the wooden images of middle-class moral-ists. I am not speaking as a Marxian or a dogmatist, and I know that Socialists may be given to phrases that become a cant quite as repulsive as the cant of religious emotionalism and its orthodoxy. And I know, and am constantly urging, that the Socialist propaganda of Europe will not snawer for America without being recast in the spirit and moulds of American experience and history. But I do sneak as one who believes that the integrity and achievements of the Socialist movement, that the quality and final-ity of the freedom and justice it may win for men, will depend upon a com prehensive, patient and noble recognition of the class structure, class an-tagonisms and paragitical nature of the society that now is. And all this to the end that it may do away with all classes forever, and that there may be one people, with one common joy and well-being, and one strifeless movement toward perfect and uniam defining or characterising the civil- versal harmony.

SOCIALISM IN MUNICIPALITIES

Why do we Socialists go into municieal campaigns, avowing, as we do, that a revolution, a reconstruction of society on a basis radically differen from its present one, is both desirable and mevitable and that no system of reform, of compromise between capitalism and Socialism is practicable and frankly admitting, as we do, that the power of municipalities, even if wholly controlled by Socialists, is quite in adequate to effect that necessary revolution? This is a question which, in mome form or other, is already often put to us and which we ought to be prepared to answer and will be compelled to answer as multiplying successes at the polls put more and more of the administrative power and reenoughbility of municipalities into our

If we participate in city campaign only as a means of propaganda to hasten our national victory, we ought frankly to say so. But in that case, the voters to whom we address our selves may very reasonably say: "All right. We will listen to your arguments during the city campaign and consider the properlety of voting your national ticket; but that " he reason for us to vote your city ticket." That would not satisfy us. The fact that it would not satisfy us, being a reasonable response to a frank statement of the position indicated, proves that this position is not the right one.

As a matter of fact, we enter city campaigns in the same uncompromising manner as national campaigns for the reason that we know that, although the conquest of political power in a city by Socialists will not give un Socialism in that city, it will hunten the future coming of Socialism in another way besides the campaign propagands and that it will now give us something on-on a small scale, in deed, and very incomplete, but still a port of intelligible "sample"-of what Socialist administration in the larger field of state or nation will be.

But saids from this propagands of practise-aside-from it, yet consistent and inseparably linked with it-there is another aim in the attempt to establish Socialist control of municipalities. Though we cannot establish Socialism in a city while capitalism still rules in state and nation, and while we neither expect nor desire to establish any modus vivendi or workable compro mise between the opposing forces in society, yet a Socialist administration can-as Socialist administrations have done in other countries and will soon begin to do here-so use the municipal power as considerably to alleviate the sufferings of the victims of capitalism and to increase their power of resistance to capitalist aggression and their spirit of revelt against class rule.

In this respect, the difference be tween "municipal reform" and the 80cialist program of municipal activity is that any improvement which the former brings in the condition of the workers is subservient to the purpose of rendering them more satisfied with their lot and more submissive to exploitation, while with us every improvement, being something won by the workers, not something given to them, tends to render them less satished and more aggressive,

Nor does it so much matter, the actual measure of rolled being the same, whether it is enacted by a victorious Socialist party or wrung from a frightened capitalist party-provided always that the Socialists, having the attack, so as to force still other concessions to follow. "Beware of the Greeks bearing gifts" is a sound maxim. But the acceptance of the Wooden Horse would have done the Trojana no harm had they only looked nside him before bringing him luto the city. We need not refrain from a world every dollar in that world must come back to the heart to report. Some dollars may be sanctioned. Some ting forth our municipal program for fear that the capitalist parties will given. But all must report. Every dollar in the world must report to the putting that program into effect. If it fear that the capitalist parties will is the right program, the best and strongest that we can honestly put forward as defining our own intentions in case we win, then the capitallst parties cannot afford to forestall un with it-unless they would emulate will appeal to the voter or definitely enough instruct the elect. The details of a municipal program, of course, will necessarily differ somewhat is differont cities, according to their size, their prevailing industries, the ferms and powers of their governing bodies, and the special grievances and needs of their proletariat. But with some such variation, there will be a great deal of unity. Much of what a Socialist administration could and should and therefore would do in New York such an administration could and should and would do slao in Philadelphia or Chicage or San Francisco, or in Rochester or Reading or Seattle. To work out that program in its definite general lines is a problem that just now deserves careful attention.

We have to some extent repeated and enlarged here upon a part of what Comrade Simons said in his article in The Worker of August 2. He has tect and his suggestions are sure to be of value. We would therefore call especial notice to a second article from his pen upon "Socialism in Municipatities," to appear in The Worker of August 28, in which he will speak more in detail of the lines of action which Socialist municipal officers should pursue. A third article by Comrade Simons and several others upon anacial phases of Socialist municipal policy will appear in The Worker during the two following months.

HOW OUR MASTERS THINK OF US.

It is worth while for workingmen to read this little editorial paragraph from the Chicago "Tribune," in order to realise how our capitalist master think of us, their wage-slaves:

"The cotton planters need not fancy they are the only men who have spent wretched nights and miserable days because of the ruinous whims and caprices of labor.

"It is not unlikely that sometime Northern employer, threatened with bankruptcy or great loss by his inabil-ity to make men work for him when he thinks they ought to do so, has wished in the bottom of his beart that we could take a whip to them and accurage them to their task, and has folt that it would really benefit them as well as himself if they could be made to quit londing. No Northern einplayer will utter such sentiments, for they would make him unpopular, but he may sometimes envy the Southern planter his simple method of getting labor."

different from and better than captifalist rule in that city.

By Horace Traubel.

There is no escape for you. You have got to report to civilization. Civilization is asking you questions which you must answer. You with your with your thousands. You with your dollar. You have got to report. Civilization is examining its dollars. It is trying every dollar by a test of justice, it is granting no concessions. It is making so exceptions. Property has got to report to the soul. The soul is civilization.

We are going to wash every dollar with heart is so small. Yet your cities and your fortunes are so big. And the heart is so small. Yet your cities and your fortunes must win the acquiescence of the heart.

We are going to wash every dollar clean. We will wash and wash until it is clean. We suspect every dollar. Every dollar is as bloody as the hands of Lady Macbeth, Property is tangled and mixed with crucity. We must make property human. Property now starves one to feed another. We will make property starve none and feed all. We will not permit one item of value to escape unscrutinized. We will subject all possession to the most drastic indictment. The first dollar of the poor, the last dollar of the rich, the stolen dollar of the thief, the prayed dollar of the anchorite, the solled dollar of the prostitute, the virgin dollar of virtue, must all come to the same bar, must all be justified in the same court, must all confess judgment to the same tribunal of the heart. There

To study the period just preceding the tremendous transition from capitalism cago. Charles H. Kerr & Co. 1908. Cloth, 180 pages. Price, This book, undoubtedly one of the most important additions to the body of Socialist literature made in recent years, falls into two parts: "Reform Hegel seems to be half right when he mays that what history teaches is that we never learn anything from history. To study the period just preceding the French Barotution ought to be enough to assure any man that it is a revolutionary crisis and not an era of progressive reform that we have now before us. The social forces then struggling for the mustery, the moribund feudal order and the nascent bourgeois system, were far less fundamentally opposed, far more capable of mutual adaptation into workable transition forms, than are the developed bourgeois state of to-day and the collectivist society that now struggles to be born. The early years of the reign of Louis XVL, my 1874-81, gave far and Revolution," dealing with the tendencies of the present, the expecta-tions founded upon them of the man-ner in which the capitalist society of ner in which the capitalist society of to-day is to give place to the cooperative order of the future, and the attitude to be taken by the militant Socialist movement now and in the near future in view of these present and prospective bandeacier; and "The Day After the Revolution," whereis the author, perhaps the best qualified to speak as actentific student and as party leader in the name of the Socialist movement, discusses with an admirable combination of boldness and of self-restraint the probable outtivist socioty that now struggles to be born. The early years of the reign of Louis XVI., say 1974-31, gave far more roay promise of an easy and peaceful solution of these existing problems than even the harming and the eloquence of a Bernstein and a Jauest can deduce from the facts of this day. We all know how that promise failed. Kings and queens, nobles and even bishops, applauted the doctrines of Jean Jacques and wept over the sufferings of the poor; but when the fitne came, their maswer was that of the Philosophe-Kaiser, "Mon metics à moi, cant d'être reyaliste." The Fourt teeth of July compelled it, and that we have ever, the more obvious need to inspire ourselves that reach its full magnitude.

Through some fifty following pages (one summary has thus far covered but the first thirty-neven) the writer considers and, as it seems to us, refuttes that reform instead of revolution is the largest did not come till the Fourtteenth of July compelled it, and that the constraint is shown that, notwithstanding name partial improvement of the mainfall conditions of some portiens of the proletarist is never the statist will happen quite other when this time, thus a rading clause will gradually and gracefully abdicate if only and hancied are much that easy talks grive the coverage and "the capitalist grivate ownership will somehow that the most remarkable change in admirable combination of boldness and of self-restraint the probable outlines of the collectivist organisation, the weighty problems that will demand solution in the day of our victory, and the grounds upon which we may reasonably expect that those problems will be solved. The whole work in, as we have said, that of a student who is also a man of action, that of a man who can guide his course by the stars and yet susp boldly and firmly on the solid earth. This type, for whom the practical is not something apart from and opposed to theory, for whom the practical is not something apart from and opposed to theory, for whom pelaciple and pointy are but two indisamblely united phases of one consistent life, is still so immendably rure outside of Germany, is especially so rare in America (we speak not of Sectation alone, but of American life is generall, that we causest be warmly commend to our consistent to property if only we do not disturb the process by our impatient clamors. Kautsky, as doubtless every reader knows, stands for the revelutionis theory—the orthodox theory, as critical like to dub it—against this sweet kepe of reform. In the present little work he sums up, with admirable force and bierity, the reasons for holding this view.

It is thus that our author defines the

mly and by imperceptible

It is thus that our author defines the wood "revolution," as used in this disciplination: "The conquest of the governmental power by an hitherto oppressed class is the essential characteristic of special revolution in contrast with social reform. Those who repudiate social revolution as the principal means of social transformation or wish to confine this to such measures as have been granted by the ruling class. have been granted by the ruling class are social reformers, no matter how much their social ideas may antagon-ize existing social forms. On the contrary, anyone is a revolutionist who socks to conquer the political power for an hitherto oppressed class, and he does not lose this character if he prepares and hastens this conquest by social reforms wrested from the ruling classes. It is not the striving after social reforms, but the express confining of oneself to them, which distinguishes the social reformer from the social revolutionist." Here is nothing of the "Zusammeniruch theory," noth-ing of the ideological dogmatism that would refuse the opportunity to win partial amelioration of existing evils, that desires rather an intensification of these evils to the point where they will become intolerable, expecting then a sudden and complete overturn. But on the other hand, the line is drawn clear against those who would have us guide our conduct by the expectation that the desired transformation of society will be effected by a series of such ameliorative measures granted by the class which is actually the efficiery of existing evilac. This and which Kautsky defines, the ground upon which the German Social Democracy actually fights and wins, is not merely a "golden mean" between the extremes of catastrophism and re-formism; it is the ground of applied science, as distinguished from abstract theorizing on the one hand and from superficial empiricism on the other.

In defending the idea of revolution you. Labor does not say you are use. from the scientific point of view—as a less. Labor says you are useful. And part of, not an exception to, evolution -Kautsky inclientally shows, with iliuminative effect, how the bourgeois Weltanschauung, at first revolutionary. then triumphant and conservative, has impressed itself upon even the natural seinces. The passage up, 12-16) is teo long to quote and two tencise to be summarised; it is worthy to be readtwice, once for its immediate part in the argument, again for its larger aug-gration. What it leads up to is a biological illustration of the nature of revolutionary changes as parts of the evolutionary process—namely, in the revolutionary crisis of birth in animais. The fillustration is trite, of course; but it is here elaborated in an original and effective manner. Again, we can neither quote nor summarize, but only call attention to the suggested parallel between the reformist plan of socializing the state piecemeal and the Gulliverian fancy of a child born by easy stages—respiratory system, cir-culatory system, digestive system, and so forth, one after the other, at monthly intervals. On the other hand, as against the crude catastrophiat view of revolution, it is pointed out that birth is neither an unprepared-for birth is neither an unprepared-for change nor a change complete in itself. Such analogies are, of course, as easy of abuse as they are instructive if used with discretion; but our author does not push his too far.

This is his answer, that the revolutionary character of our movement be-comes more and not less evidently and imperatively necessary as the years go by, that the task before us, being a real thing and not a phantom of our hey to the co-operative state. The alleged "softening of class antagonisms" censes in for a good deal of attention. It is shown that, worwthistanding some partial improvement of the material conditions of some portions of the material conditions of some portions of the process that may easily from tasely out into a decade of hard battles," as even a continuous of the condition of the process that may easily from tasely out into a decade of hard battles," as even a continuous programs in Russian Income of the the preletariat is its intellectual and moral advancement, to the point where instead of being a standing meanes to dvillatation, it is recognized by many outside its ranks as the great champion of true culture. This brings us to the consideration of the "new middle class," the "intellectuals," upon whose rather more effusive than effective friendship for the workers is so largely based the hope that capitalism will eventually reform itself out of exist-ence. Unfortunately, however, these intellectuals, while speaking in the name of the capitalist class, constitute but a part of that class and that not the part which determines its acts. On account of this double position in which they stand, Kautsky thinks, the friendship of these intellectuals has been productive of rather more harm than good to the working class; they honestly think themselves entitled to lead, but they do not understand the army they would lead nor know the field on which it is arrayed.

The influence of the real middle class, the small capitalists—whether of manufacture, commerce, or agriculture -while in a way more tangible, being founded on material class interest, is clines in economic power, this class grows more timid and reactionary. "The middle class is a very unreliable ally, just because of its intermediate position. As Marx has already noted. the little capitalist is neither wholly proletarian nor wholly hourreols, and considers himself, according to the casion, first one and then the other

Of the real capitalist class Kautsky strongly declares that he can see no sign of increasing friendship for the workers. Neither Krupp nor Hanna convinces him. The concentration of the control of industry in each country through the growth of stock compan-ies and of trusts widens the class division, both by eliminating the intermediate stages between the extremes of wealth and poverty and also by dotween capitalist and worker. former conflict between the interests of agricultural capitalist, industrial capitalist, and financial capitalist—a conflict by which, in several important cases, the proletarian gained considerable advantages - is disammering "since, with the progressive co tion of capital, finance ever more and more dominates industry;" and of the three forms. It is always financial capital that is least swayed by consideraprudence, that most inclines to violent

But do not the extension of the suf-frage and the growth of co-operative rocleties and trade unions offer, a means to the easy and gradual transformation of the social order? Kautsky thinks not. Co-speration is dismissed with a brief but sufficient comment. As to the unions, very recent events—the growth of employers' asso-ciations, increasingly unfavorable court decisions, and even positive legislation designed to hamper their work—con-firm one in the belief that "one can hardly expect any effective restriction of exploitation from them."
"But the political sphere? Shall we not find there an unbroken advance for the protection of the laborers? Kaut-sky replies: "When one considers how remarkably fast the capitalist system o. production extends its sphere * * * it will be found that the extension of the protection of labor follows at a much slower pace; it can never overtake the extension of capitalism, but always comes limping slowly on be-hind. • • • It appears that the only thing in social reform that makes rapid progress is the modesty of the so-cial reformers."

Why the increasing representation of the proletariat in national parliaments ---being still but an increasing miner ity-is able and can reasonably be expectal to accomplish only defensive or palliative work, why it cannot advance the interests of the workers as fast an inet to my faster than: the development of capitalism depressor them, why, accordingly, it cannot forestall the social revolution by a large pro-gram of constructive reform, is shown, to our mind very convincingly in the concluding pages of this first part. Briefly we may say, the reason is twofold: Because, side by side with the growth of the working-class represemination, proceeds the consolidation of the various reactionary elements and also the general decline of parliamentary power; and because social reforms inrge enough to satisfy the immediate inrace enough also to throw capitalist unions or co-operative societies of predaction or consumption; in agriculture college chair as vehicles of expressing in not yet politically dominant. is not yet politically dominant are too small to check the forces that make for revolution; we might put it para-doxically: Reforms large enough to prevent revolution would be large enough to precipitate revolution.

This is not at all to say that then Socialist minorities-as our fifty-eight grown to eighty-one in the German Reichstag or our three in the Masan-chasetts Legislature—can do nothing. Quite the centrary. They can, through the fear their presence inspires or otherwise, win reforms that help pre-pare for the revolution in many ways hy alleviating extreme suffering which otherwise tends to degrade the sufferers, by inspiring the workers with confidence in themselves, by bet-tering their equipment for battle (laws favorable to labor organisation, measures for extending education, etc.) Our elect, moreover, are our apokesmen, most favorably altuated for propaganda, and have therefore the duty to make their parliamentary words and votes so clearly revolutionary as to in-spice resolution rather than detusive hope on our side and to inspire respect rather than friendship in our oppoence. Finally, participation in politic is of the utmost value to the proletaria as a means of self-education and dis

The form in which the revolution cept, perimps, in Russia) "more of the character of the struggie of one poformation than the type of the French Revolution." That the strike-hitherte with few exceptions, merely a weapon for desultory petty shirmishing—may become an important revolutionary weapon, seems to him not improbable. Conflict waged by armed force, as a part of the revolution, seems as probable as it is, on our part, undesirable. Whatever the forms or weapons that circumstances may dictate, one thing for the present is clear: "One can do nothing worse to the proletarist than to advise it to rest upon its arms in order to encourage a favorable attitude of the bourgeoisie. Under present con-ditions this means nothing less than to ditions this means nothing less than to deliver the proletarint over to the bour-geoisie and bring it into intellectual and political dependence on the latter, to enervate and degrade it and make it incapable of fulfilling its great historical purposes," he Co-operative Commonwealth, from Bellamy and Morris down. We have had any had any number of writers who were ready to tell us just how everything is to be arranged in the future-after it is all in working order. How it is got into order is a matter they prudently pass over with a few vague phrases. Even Morris and Bellamy, in the chapters they devote to this part of the subject, hardly seem to have tried— still less have they succeeded—to treat it seriously, to take into consideration things as they are and things as, in their general outline, we see they are to be, and scientifically imagine the methods of transition. We say "scientifically imagine" advisedly, for imagination has its right place in scientific investigation; advisedly, too, we say "methods," in the plural, for the manifold and multiform tendencies now working for Socialism as well as the varied and complex character of the material they have to work in the exmaterial they have to work in (the existing facts of economics, politics, ethics, manners and customs, and ethles. modes of thinking) make it fairly of vious that the passage from the capitalist to the Socialist system will not be a simple and direct process, but an exceedingly complicated one, a whole set of related processes, rather, whose proportions and mutual relations we cannot, of course, foresee with any grant degree of accuracy.

Kantsky approaches the subject with the confidence and the self-restraint of a trained thinker, accurationed to deal, not with principles apart from facts or facts regardless of principles, but with principles as any principles, but with principles as summarising the observation of facts. He marising the observation of facts. He makes no attempt to give us in advance a dramatic story of the revolution, nor does he pretend that there can be any approach to certainty in detail. But on the other hand, he "maintains that it is a help to political clearness to examine the problems that will prove out of the compuset of pullful. grow out of the conquest of political power by us" and that "this is also valuable for propaganda, since our opponents frequently assert that our victory will give us fasoluble problems

o o and it is important to investigate and know how far this is the case."

Kautsky does not underestimate the bigness of the task the proletariat has before it. He does not expect the revo lution to be made in a day nor a year, perhaps not in a decade. Aside from recognizing that the complete political power, even throughout a single na-tion, is very unlikely to be grasped by the protestriat all at a single moment and that the protestriat itself is not and will not then be an absolutely united and uniform body to pursue ideally whole and definitely purposeful policy at every step, he recognise that, even if these two facts were otherwise, the sweeping away of old institutions would have to go on simul-taneously with the building up the new ones and the development of individual and social habits spitable to must not only be maintained, but must be positively increased, while this reconstruction is going on. But serious as he sees the task to be, Kautsky does not doubt the ability of the proletariat to perform it in due time.

Kautaky's forecast of the future state is as different as possible from most said regimented society imaginer by Bellamy, and just as far from the sweat elysium of "News from No where." It is a state as variou an complex in its forms as that now prevailing, perhaps more varied, as being more free and plastic. Some indus-tries will be taken over by the nation. capitalist portion of pubme epi dustry on a small scale will persist for a long time in the midst of the colleca long time in the minst of the collec-ilvist society—"the proletarian govern-mental power would have absolutely no inclination to take over such little businesses." This does not mean, of course, that capitalist exploitation would continue in such industries.

Kantaky thinks it probable, that some form and measure of compensa-tion will be given to the present owners of the means of production-not as a measure of abstract justice, but as being the easiest way of making the change with the minimum of social disturbance. This compensation will not, of course, mean the permanent establishment of a class of public bondholders, relieved of all responsibility of management and guaranteed a fixed income by the state; it will mean only a distribution of the un-avoidable actual "configuration" over the period of a decade or even a generation. A large portion of this second part is devoted to the question of the in-centive to labar and the means by which production is to be kept up without interruption and even enor-mously and progressively increased under the new régime. The habit of conking, acquired and accumulated through many past generations, will be a powerful factor, but it is not alone to be counted on. The intelligent democratic discipline of the protetarist will be a still more powerful force.

The improvement of the conditions of labor will make it all the easier to keep industry going. But after all, it vill still be necessary very greatly to increase the productive power of labor in order at once to lessen the burdens of the proletarist and to meet the manifold needs of the new society. How this is to be done our author considers at length, and concludes that by the organization of industry in he most effective manner and elimination of competitive wasta, "a prolefarian régime can raise produc-tion at once to so high a level that it would be possible considerably to increase wages and simultaneously to reduce the hours of labor." He considers that the forms of wages for labor and of buying and selling products with money of some kind will persist for a long time, though the reality under those forms will be realically different from those now prevailing.

It would be quite impossible in a newspaper review to do more than give the reader a general idea of what he will find between the covers of this little book. No thoughtful student of the social problem can afford to neglect it. It is not a Socialist "Law and Gospel" and should not be read as such. It is a careful acconting investi-II.—THE DAY AFTER THE REVO-LUTION.

We have had too many "visions" of the Co-operative Commonwealth, from policies. Read in the wisdom of present policies. Read in the spirit in which it is written, it cannot but be of grea value.

Of the translation it must be said that it is too evidently a translation. More freedom and more revision would have made it both clearer and more attractive. Home of the more giaring faults we have to note may be due to hasty proof-reading. It is too bad to see "catastrophes" repeatedly spelled "catastrophies." "Affiliation" (p. 15) clearly should be "affailty." "Former" and "latter" are obviously transposed on p. 33. "Polish" (p. 68) is, of course, a silp of the pen for "political." The misprint of "protection" for "production" in the misth line on p. 73 seriously obscurred the many described. riously obscurge the sense, as does the misprist of "supplemented" for "sup-planted" on p. 90. The sentence beginning "One fears every energetic policy" (p. 95) is correctly translated by the rules of grammar; but it conveys a wrong impression if taken for idlomatic English; "they fear" would have been better; hest would be: "Every energetic policy * * * is feared." As the sentence stands, it seems to mean that the writer shares the fear, whereas it is reactionaries that are afraid. Let us hope that these and some minor errors will be set right before another edition goes to press, Kautsky is a close enough thinker to nerit verbai accuracy in translation.

In commenting, in our issue of June 28, on Wm. H. Lefingwell's "Easy Lessons in Sociation," we expressed our regret that the author has used "the common but extremely inaccurate statement" that the working class receives back in wages but 17 per cent. of the wealth it produces. Our attention is called to the fact that Comrade Leffingwell does not claim—that he dis-tinctly denice—that all of the remain-ing 83 per cent, is profit, but says that of the balance, what is not wasted in useless labor goes into the pockets of the capitalist class." We are giad to acknowledge that Comrade Leffing-well's statement is far from being so extravagant as the form in which the 17 per cent, proposition is commonly advanced. We still hold that it is somewhat ambiguous, that in one of two interpretations (probably not that intended by the writer) it is inaccurate and that in the other it is so far unsafe as that it is not based on anything that "Uncle Sam says"—that being the general authority to which reference is made. So much we must say, howgeneral authority to which reference is made. So such we must say, how-ever, that, we regret happening to single out this particular pamphlet to raise the point on, since the same error or loosemess of statement appears in sampy others where we have not noted it. "Basy Lessens in Secialism" is, on the whole, an excellent propagands the whole, an excellent propaganda pamphlet and we hope to see this one important fault corrected in a later odition.

TWO KINDS OF PUBLIC OPINION.

The fact is, that public opinion is fivided into two clames, and all occasious where the interests of capital and labor, or rather, where the interests of capitalist and labor, clash, the ouce set in operation, all repeating, parrot-like, the same hackneyed parrot-like, the same hackneyed phrases. The capitalist press, which to-day is simply the phonograph through witch the capitalist talks, is set in motion, and that sound is by them called public opinion.

On the other hand, the great dumb mass of wealth producers, who in the large industrial centers have very lit-tle opertunity of expressing their "jubble opinion," sithough they consti-tute 85 per cent. of the public, are helpless so far as expressing their opinion is concerned. Take for instanstrikes that have taken place spring. One would think from reading the capitalist papers that public opinion was entirely with the capitalist i ion was entirely with the capitalist is this struggle. While nothing is farther from the truth, there is no doubt that faily 75 per cent of the population score in full sympathy with the work-ers in their struggle for better condicons, but this 75 per cent, had no daily press nor any pulpits in which to ex-press their "public opinion."—Chicago press their Socialist.

In reviewing the parliamentary eletions in Saxony, where the Socialists won twenty-two out of twenty-three districts, many conservatives are say hig that the chief cause of the people's opposition to the government is the suffrage system for electing members of the Saxon Legislature (Laisting), which was introduced in 1806, giving more power to the privileged classes. To coax back the votes of the people, those frightened conservatives now cali for legislative suffrage reform. After seven weeks' of its existence, the club was compelled by law to disband at the close of the parliamentary campaign, June 25, but it will be reorganized in autumn at the Prussian legislative elections, and later at the Berlin City Council elections. The Rochester comrades believe in expansion. They expand their propa ganda far beyond the city and even the county limits. They are hamming the truths of Socialism into int ested minds in adjacent towns every Saturday night. Last Saturday even ing Comrades Bach and Mische spoke to an enthusiastic open-air meeting at Macedon, while Comrades Lippelt and Van Auken were addressing an Immense crowd at Palymra, five miles away. While Comrade Van Auken was speaking at Palymra the Chief of Police commanded him to stop, but he informed this lackey of capitalism that the constituion of the United States rouchsafed to all men the right of free speech and penceful assemblage, and Comrade Lippelt, who followed, gave this officious Chief to understand that the permission of the President of the Village had been secured. New York City. A general meeting of all the del to the various agitation district committees, and the speakers, will be beld on Saturday, Aug. 15, 8 p. m., at the W. E. A. clubhouse, 200 E. Eighty-sixth street, for the purpose of agree-ing upon a systematic and uniform plan of carrying on the agitation during the campaign. This meeting is of the utmost importance and should be attended by every agitation district delegate. At present the strongest dis tricts get all the speakers and agitation in other districts, where better results might be obtained, is neglected. To cope with this difficulty and to solve the problem of getting more speakers is the object of this meeting.

members of various trade unions, who had become dissatisfied with existing conditions. A new political party was launched, called the United Labor and People's party, and it was afterwards incorporated with the Secretary of State at Albany and held frequent meetings, which were well attended. At some of these meetings Comrade Chris Bub, Organizer of Queens, and other members of the Social Demo-cratic Party became acquainted with William Goeller, Jr., Chairman of the Organization Committee, and other Organization Committee, and other members of the new party, and as a result of, discussion it was finally agreed that a meeting of the United Labor and People's party be called at which Bocial Democratic speakers could have an opportunity to present the platform and principles of the So cial Democratic Party and to endeavor to convince the members of the new party that they should join the S. D. P. instead of starting a new party. At this meeting Dr. Forman, who is now the Social Democratic candidate for Mayor, and several other speakers were present. Courade Furman made an eloquent appeal to those present to join the Social Democratic Party, saying: We cannot take your party into our ranks as a whole, but we can take you in as individual members and then you can organize your own branch and conduct your business for this section Furman's address, William Goeller, Jr., expressed his willingness to sign the first application for membership in the B. HOW WE LIVE AND HOW WE MIGHT LIVE.

By Leonard D. Abbott.

paradox of our twentieth-century civilization is bound up in the fact that, we have not learned how to live. We know how to span the earth and sea supernatural to men of an earlier generation; we have invented industrial anachinery that makes it possible for five to do the work of five hundred; we have devised elaborate systems of science and philosophy, raligion and sociology, but we have not learned how had been simply for this-that we abould build up a social order of povy, a society dominated by a clique capitalists, that we should become pless passengers in a ship of state guided by J. Pierpont Morgan and Mr. Bockreller—there would be cause for even the stoutest-hearted to despair. It would mean that the dream of democracy had been supplanted by an actuality of industrial feudalism, and we had chosen to substitute oligarchy for majority rule. But counct be that the present singe society is anything but translent. are already beginning to pass out of it and the vistas are opening up beyond. A few of us at least are demanding genuise democracy, as industrial democracy, and will be satisfied with

It ecems to me that the strangest copt by permission of the landlord; so long as we cannot have access to the machinery of production, except on the terms dictated by a capitalist or a class of capitalists—we are not free men. We can only be free men by our-selves controlling the machinery of life, instead of allowing it, like a Frankenstein, to control us. We be-come democrats and free men, in the real sense, only when as a people, we collectively own and control the resources of life, ceasing to be employees of any man or class, and becoming em-ployers of ourselves in the work and business of life. The whole impulse of world-evolution to-day is driving us on to this goal. To the resitantion of this ideal of Secial Democracy the Socialist movement of the world is committed. and it is the one positive force in world-politics.

We are aiming gradually at the achievement of a Co-operative Com-monwealth, Every extension of the principle of public ownership, whether on a national scale or on a municipal scale, is preparing the way for a com-plete collectivism. The formation of copie would share a great intel-th, moral, spiritual horitage. For if society exists for people. The rational objection to the angulaing, it exists for this: to promote trusts is not that they are too big, but inst they are not big snough. We want a trust that is big enough to take us all in, and in which every man sketched out for us the future society. Edward Bellamy and William Morris were both great social idealists, as shown in their utoplas, "Looking Backward" and "News from No-where." I confess that I would much rather live in Morris' world than in Bellamy's, though others may differ with me on this point. Edward Bellamy is essentially a bourgeois type, and he is on the whole very well estisfied with the life of middle-class people as he sees it around him. Indeed, we may sum up his ideal in a very few words as simply the extension of present middle-class comfort and well-being to the whole nation. He sees nothing particularly wrong in modern cities if only the alums are removed. Luxury seems anort, he believes "civilisation," in its necessited sense, to be an unalloyed blessing, as soon as powerty is eradicated. William Morris, on the other hand, declared that one of the street. to him an excellent thing, if all are enabled to have a share of it. In est motives in his life was his hatred of present-day civilization. He is es-sentially an artist and a lover of nature. His whole being revolts against the artificiality of modern life. DENVER, Colo., Aug. 18.—The police uthorities of Ligarer are "arth lodgera." On August 6, Mr. Caldwei lurely for Comrade Osborn, took hi to the jail at 9 o'clock to deliver him in the fall at 9 octors to deliver any into the hands of the officers so they could produce him in District Court, on the writ of habeas corpus at 10. The faller refused to receive him. They then went to the court room, and the Chief of Folice declared that Osbors was not in his custody, and when his attention was called to the fort of the attention was called to the fact of the prisoner's presence in court, said that "be did not want him." The court disissed the case.

The same evening Comrade Oshorn again attempted to speak on the street, was again arrested, and the next meaning fined $25 and costs. We determined this time to leave him in jail until we got our writ of habeas corpus heard. The second writ was issued and heard. The second writ was issued ands served on the officers late Friday afters noon, August 3, commanding them to bring him into District Court Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. We served subpornes on Frank Adams, president of the Pine and Police Board and Hasn-ilton Armarons, Chief of Police, Lock of whom made damaging statements on the witness stand. Our witnesses were all heard and our attorney was umming up the case when a reprefice, who had been called by telephone, rushed branthless into court and began to plead for time, On condition that the prisoner should be released without bail on his own recognizance ami that his freedom should not again be pleaded as a bar to the hearing, we consented that the case should go over cialists of that city.] Over all the civilised world the last struggle of man with man is now being waged in political arenas. In earlier times there were clashe of tribes; race fought with race; and, as the nations grew, they had wars for religious freedom and wars for political freedom. Now all those race wrangles and national strifes have given place to a world-wide struggle between classes. Capitalist and wage-slave stand fac-

"My product!" cries the wage-slave. "My profit;" roars the capitalist.

And the contest is now for the crea tions of labor and class government, as it was once for dogma and power, and race and national supremacy.

The spear of the savage, the sword of the barbarian, the firearm of the later man-are well discarded. This battle is with ballots. On one side is the Socialist Party, on the other is the Capitalist Party. In this struggle the working class will win. Industrial freedom will be gained. Classes will disappear. All will become workers. Finally the human family will be blessed with lasting peace.

The end is coming fast. The lines of the old antagonisms are gone; those of the new clearly marked.

Capitalists know no race or country. They grasp hands across oceans. They intermarry. They are become one race, one nation, one powerful class, whose ruling passion is to confiscate the creations of labor. All existing governments are subject to them. They violate all commandments, even their own laws, and they mock at all religious; yet they endeavor to the all religious to awe the minds of their victime, and make them believe that submission to tyranny is obedience to

God. There is solidarity among capitalists There must be solidarity among rorkers, The workers must become one race, one nation, one loyal, united class, that will submerge all others and make the workers the rulers of the world.

For the working class must become the dominant class, because it is the producing class, the constructive class, the progressive class, the only indiapensable class, supporting, sheltering and uplifting all; and, in the evolution of mankind, its immediate mission is to unify the human family. Political parties are armies. Ballots are weapons. Election day is the day of conflict. The Workman who votes the Capitalist ticket goes over to the enemy. He surrenders into slavery. He is false to himself, disloyal to his family, and a traitor to his class. And be who betrays the working class betrays his country and betrays the servants and soldiers? Will Socialism injure the home? What is the main-stay of the home? Why, what the man earns. If you get low wages, your home is a hovel. If you get no wages-if you have no work

-you have no home at all. Capitalism destroys the home, because it denies the worker the means to make a proper home.

What is religion? It consists in finding out what is right, and then in doing it. Robberry, murder, and immorality are rightly condemned by all religions.

But does not the capitalistic system rob you of the surplus you create? Does it not murder men and women and children? Does it not drill armies for national and international slaughter, and urge the working people of different countries, under the pretense of patriotism, to kill each other that capitalists may get trade, revenue, interest, spòlis, luxury, glory? Capitalism is grossly immoral, and it condemas millions to such a low, dwarfed. animal-like existence that the knowledge of the true religion is impossible to them.

be truly religious. In Socialism against law and order? True law defines justice. It seeks to establish right relations between man and man, mainly by forbidding wrongdoing. True law, so expressed, would run as follows: You must not wrong another. You must not permit another to be wronged.

You must not submit to be wronged. But you submit to be wronged when you agree to the capitalistic systemyou permit others to be wronged by it and you wrong the billion workers of the world when you uphold it. You consent to the defilement of all religions, to the destruction of homes, and to the dwarfing of all individualities. You break true law as long as you allow the capitalists to break it, And without true law there will never be

Well, some things. They propose to divide up the work. They propose that everybody who expects his share in the product shall do useful work. And when the work is done they propose to give to everyone who worked the full amount be has earned.

Nothing to drones. Workers get all. But Socialists do not propose to divide up the land, manufacturies, railroads, efc. How abourd! Capitalists do that now. They divide up the instruments of production and distribution givong themselves. Then they divide up the product of the workers. among themselves, only leaving to their slaves what they must leave-a. bare living. So you see the capitalists.

are doing the dividing up. The Socialists say that the instruments of production and distribution shall not be divided up. These shall become the collective property of the people, the same as custom houses are owned by the nation now. And when the people own all the places to work in, they will divide up the jobs. Everyone will have the right to work, and put him out of the shop or claim any part of his product. Then the workingman will be an good as the best. He won't need to crawl for a job. He will be free. He

SOME ERRORS WHICH SOCIAL-ISTS SHOULD AVOID.

The lack of study and thought displayed by a number of comrades who have written to The Worker (as well as By some who have dealt with the same heatter in the party press) upon the sestion of labor's real share in the division of product between wageworkers and capitalists, calls to mind e unpleasant fact that this point is only one of several in recard to which errors and inaccuracies of statement by suany active Socialist about the teach es of their own movement are surprising, not only in their frequency, but often as to the sources from which they

In regard to the perticular question Marx, who repudiated it. The law of Involving the method of analyzing statistics by which inbor's real share in its product in any given judustry can be discovered, a little ought to convince anyone that in calculating the profit of the capitalist the expense of raw marials, for one item, must be deducted, for the reason that the product of one industry becomes the raw material of another. But, ear some the raw material, though it is not the product of the workers in the particular industry we happen to be er workers and therefore it must not he deducted from the profit of the capitalist class because It is the product of labor! Surely it ought to be obvious to those who speak so unreasonably with thed of figuring the exploitation of each body of workers is counted twice. The Another common in

if the wage-workers were as class conscious as their masters things would soon look better in our move-These and similar argument are often used by Secialist speakers and writers. Such arguments are mis-leading because they are false and un-Socialistic. The capitalists are no class-conscions, because they do not understand the historical basis and economic, political and social development of their own class or of society at large. * * * The fact that the capitalist will always look out for his pocketbook does not make him class cometions. He is conscious that the labor of others is a source of profit for binneif. The piain figures, black on white, on the pages of his business from "over-production" would always books will dictate to the capitalist th proper, profitable course to pursue in his dealings with the wage-workers employed by him. In a rude, materialcourse finds its answer in the fact that istic way he will figure out the rate of profit or rate of interest on capital in-rested, to be extracted from his hands.' Class-consciousness has absolutely nothing to do with this process of exploitation.

But the most evil and misleading o all wrong statements that can be uttered by a Socialist in fancled support of his own philosophy is that all men follow their own material interests, leaving it to be inferred that the immediate material interests of the individual himself are meant. We have had in type for some time, and may vet publish, an article dealing with this all too common fallacy. In the meantime, Comrado Simons in the to which we are about to call attention course of an editorial upon another subject in the current number of the "International Socialist Review" states briefly and clearly the real Socialist position upon this point:

"Another assertion  is that every body follows their immediate inter ests. [This] is certainly ridiculously untrue and at complete variance with the Socialist philosophy and particu-larly with the Marxian wing of Socialtion in Socialist thought. Errors of all kinds thrive rankly in the jungles of lam and the doctrine of the class struggle. It is just because Socialists a that men can be made to sink the It is just because Socialists se immediate personal and individual in-terests in their class interests that class-conscious action of the workers is possible. The momentary individual interest of the wage-worker is the prosperity of his employer and the in-crease of the rate of production, since only under such conditions is there a possibility, though to be sure by no tween capitalists and laborers." This means a certainty, of better wages.
This is the grain of truth in the identity of interest argument so glibly repeated by the labor fakir. But the interest of the wage-worker as a class lies in the abulition of the employing class and with it the entire wage system. Hence it is that we ask the individual to forego his immediate interest as an individual, which might probably be better furthered by fawning on his employer, working over time, and, in general, merging himself in the interests of his master, and in-stend to throw himself, with his class, into an effort to better the condition of all and ultimately abolish wage

How then can the Socialist Party discussion by Socialists is already full, and for that reason I will not discuss it here. I might say, however, that one best use its strength in the class strug-gle on the municipal field? There are two subjects which are most frequent-ly discussed in this connection. The by discussed in this connection. The average lourgeols reformer lays all the emphasis an municipal unnership of a right of the employees in municipally open few industries. A great many Socialists, on the other hand, talk as if the only thing Socialists could do if they as to hours, wages, or conditions of were elected to office would be to call off the police in time of strike. Once, however, that men have en placed in City Connells by Socialist ballots, the question of what they shall do becomes of very great importame, and here it is that we have used of a working program.

It seems to me that among the things which should rank of first importance to the workingmen are provisions affecting health and education.

A physically strong and intellectually trained protectifal will not become meeting places for public

No Socialist, of course, is blind to the free discussion, I know of faw things fact that education is only a super-structure on the economic foundation, and that while that foundation remains capitalistic no real revolutionans.

These are just a few suggestions of the course of the suggestions of the course o changes can be made in education. It is equally true, however, as was noted above, that the municipality itself must operate within espitalism and that the Socialists can do nothing in the muni-civality alone that will overthrow that superstructure. Here, as at many other points, indeed I might almost say, as to all other points in our society, the tide of thought of the best minds working in the neith even if non-socialist, is indirect accord with the Socialist position.

Another field in which much can be done is that of improved hotising for the laboring class. Nothing is of more importance than life, and the normal position of the second of the s product of labor? The publication of Census Bureau statistics bearing on Salaries 3,719,520 this point is often followed by a discussion in which the strength of an argument is evidently measured by the length of the array of figures. Mr. Gordon, in his article "Labor's Real Share" published in the July issue of the "American Federationist," "beathe record" by taking as a basis of his calculations the total value of all manufactured products of the United States, the total cost of materials and the total sum of wages paid to over five millions of wage-earners. Mr Gordon's conclusions may be of interest to the idly curious engaged in the pursuit of abstract averages, but they have no practical value to the student o. concrete realities. To give raw bil-lious of dollars and milious of men, without inquiring into the derivation. composition and character of the ma terial at hand denotes a mind which delights more in confounding and puzzling than in instructing.

The opinions on the magnitude of abor's share in the product diverge widely. Among the Socialists the opinion is current that labor gets the smaller half of the product, while the apologists of capitalism contend that labor's share is about 85 and 90 per cent, and "not less than 75 per cent.," us Mr. Gordon claims

In order to arrive at an approximate understanding of this problem we must study the conditions and relative earn-ings of labor and profits of capital separately in each industry. Even then it will be found necessary to dif-ferentiate and distinguish.

Does this sum of $25.813,713 represent the total share of empiral in the roduct of labor? Let us have a close ook at the figures. The sum total of wages pold in the gas industry in 1900) was $12 430 290. The sum total of salaries paid to officials, clerks, etc. (including proprietors and firm member was, according to the Census, $5,278, 500. The Census Bulletin contains a report from 15 municipal gas plants. The average SALAHY paid by municipal establishments in 1900 was $700. The average SALARY paid by private gas concerns in 1900 was about $300. On the other hand, the average WA44ES paid by numicipal establishments in 1000 was 2013, while the average WAGES paid by private concerns in 1900 was 2558. Now it is evident from a comparison of the wages paid in michal and private gas plants, that it is not the cierk's salary that swelled the average of salaries paid by private concerns. It is the princely salaries of proprietors firm members and high officials who are paid not for their utility in production but for their skill in exploiting the wage-sarners, that well the average. These "salaries" swell the average. These "samines" may be justly considered as extra appropriations of surplus value by the way of "salery." It is fair to assume that the salery of $700 paid to clerks by municipal gas plants is above and stands in the same ratio to the real average salery paid by private concerns to real workers in their offices as $615 average wages paid by municipal establishments is above and stands to the $553 average wages paid by private concerns This indicates an average salary etc. (and this number includes pro

THE SUDIALIST MOVEMENT. Clarence S. Darrow, of Chicago, said something in favor of Socialism, and now some of our Socialist editors seem to feel like kiming the gentleman's big toe, for his graciously, favorable re-marks. Mr. Darrow said: "I feel that prietors and firm members to whom we accord the average salary), received in real salaries the sum of $3,719,522, and not $3,278,500 as reported in the Bulletin. The difference of $1.553.080 represents profits of capital appropriated by way of salary. This sum must therefore be added to the dividend and interest. Well, is this all? Patience! Look closer, search further. If profits can be made by way of "salary," why not by way of "miscellaneous ex penses." If you will dig under this innocent looking item you will find there the capitalist "with the goods workins will have built up a power-fuj Socialist Party, morament—then he "may say somothing" and join the So-cialist ranks. However, we have not very much use for that elass, of men. The municipal establishment est amail plants, while the private concerns represent the largest plants in the United States. Now, it is At any rate, we do not feel justified in putting such men above those over-wage-workers that have been, and still deline the herd. Socialist pioneer a well known fact that miscellaneous expenses of manufacturing gas de-crease as the size of the plant inare, doing the hard Sacislia nioner work. We respect and esteem the wage-worker who joins our movement knowing fell well that by doing so be may lose his job and he hiscklisted by the employing class. We welcome any creases. We find, however, the average miscellaneous expenses of the municipal establishments to be 12.4 cents for each 1,000 cubic feet of manfactured gas, while for the private plants the miscellaneous expense is 23 cents for each 1,000 cubic feet. What other man or woman who is willing to one from the old capitalist parties ight for the class, interests, of To flatter a politician and laweine does this additional expense of 8.6 cents on each 1,000 feet represent but better to legislators, aidermen, gas inspectors, contributions to the cam-paign funds of Republican, Democratic per in order to induce him to join the Socialist Party is a mistake, because people of that callier age, as a rule, so l'eminently practical" that they will do and Reform parties, etc.? It is part of the profit set aside as a secret corrup-tion fund. The 12.4 conts for each more harm than good to the working class movement the moment they get a chance to play a "leading role," and without this role they would not like to be,—St. Louis Labor. 1,000 feet must be sufficient for miscellaneous axpenses, seeing that the politicians in charge of the municipal establishments are not starving on this rate. We shall, therefore, take it for PAYING PROFITS TO THE CAPITALIST private concerns. The real amount of miscellaneous expenses is therefore 2 So far from the capitalist paying $8,319,000, and not $14,769,022 as reported by the Census. The difference of $6,449,442 must be added together wages, the laborer not only produces empital in the first pl. get repro-duces it day after day as se works, crewith $1,553,980 to the dividend and in-

Now we can make a fair and intelli-gent estimate and comparison of the respective shares of capital and labor in the product of labor. The share of

What is the share of labor in the ; The share of labor is:

Share of capital. 33.317,135 Share of labor..... 16,155,816

This sum exceeds by $2,081,214 the gross value of gas products in 1900 re-ported by the Census. This excess must have been taken from a reserve fund-surplus value that remained over from former years—in order to pay dividends and interest, which is often done for stock jobbery purposes. We will be fair and deduct this sum from the share of capital in the product of 1880. There remains the sum of $30.037,021 as capital's net share in the product of 1900.

Again, if we deduct from $75.716.693, the gross value of the gas products of 1900, the cost of materials and the real miscellaneous expenses, there will still remain the sum of $46,789,737, the net product of labor in 1900. This net product is divided between capital and labor as follows:

Here is a real capitalistic ratio-the good, old way of dividing-two-thirds to capital and one-third to labor. Heside it the contention of the capitalistic apologist that labor gets 90 per cent, and "not less than 75 per cent," of the product labor looks like a lie "that would not come off." We urge the professional aendemicians and statis-ticians to examine our figures and point out the errors, if any. But we would warn them not to go too far hehind the Census returns, lest they stumble unawares on the same gas magnate "with the goods on." Indeed, it would be presumptuous for me to assume that a practical captain of industry will not find more ways than those pointed out by me of tapping inbor power and converting it into surplus value. It is much enfer to assume that still more surplus value may be found, enough to pay the real cost of tranchises. It may be contended that the gas industry, being a monopoly, charges monopoly prices to the consumer and that the share of the capitalist is not that the share of the capitalist is not all the product of the gas workers, but is partly innde up by taxing the consumers of gas. We will not discuss this proposition now as it would involve a discussion of the Socialist theory of value, which would exceed the scope of this article. But we will point out that a processor coroller. polut out that a necessary corollary to this proposition is that the gas worker is not permitted to enjoy even the one-third of his product. For his share is further reduced by the fleecing of the capitalists when he exchanges it

We do not think that the academiclans and statisticians can make much of this proposition, as it further convicts, instead of excusing, their patron-capitalism. For our part we will say right here that Socialism is not committed to this or any other rate of capitalistic exploitation. For the loss of the workingman which is due to capitalism is infinitely greater than the mere gain of the capitalists. And hence the gain of the workingman from Socialism will be infinitely greater than the gain of the capitalist from capitalism. Just think it over, Messrs. Academicians and Statisticiaus. It may give you some valuable points which you will not find in your ext books and encyclopedias.

In further articles we will describe how the great gas industry originated and developed to its present prosperity.

THE PARAMOUNT ISSUE.

In our day, when Socialism is rushing the breastworks in its onward murch to triumph, the gravest danger confronts us, namely: To luse sight of the one burning issue: the abolition of erican mind is of a practical tuen, which in itself is all right, but tends too much to look for immediate results, for quick success. As the opand more unendurable, many malcon-tents are joining the Secialist Party, imp, are not acquainted with its farreaching revolutionary teachings, who cannot realise as yet the entire truth. provement, without a change of the gratem from top to bottom.

LITERATURE FOR OPEN-AIR MEETINGS.

The municipal campaign in New York is now under way and open-air meetings are being held in nearly every part of the city. In planing this work it is important to remember that the majority of those who form the audience at a street meeting do not stay throughout. Some come as others go; comparatively few hear the whole of the speeches, though each hears enough to make some impression on his mind-especially if, as should always be the case, there is a conspicuous banner diminying the party name and emblem and the nam

This is not enough, however, In order to get the best results from out door meetings, it is alsolutely neces-sary that the sale of pumphlets and the distribution of leadets and papera should be energetically pushed. No mat, who toins the crowd, even though he stays only five minutes, should go away without at least one piece of party literature. If the speech has made the slightest impression upon him, he is pretty sure to read what he gets, and that will strengthen the impression and render it clearer. GOOD AND CHEAP PAMPHLETS.

In order to be able to supply without delay the needs of the New York City organizations, in the campaign, the So cialist Literature Company (184 Wil-linm street) has laid in a large stock of the best pamphiets in the Pocket Library of Socialism, of which we would especially recommend the fol-lowing for use at street meetings: "Wage-Labor and Capital," by Karl Simons.

"The Pride of Intellect," by Frank-Iln H. Wentworth

"Easy Lessons in Socialism," by Willinn Leffingwell.

These are sold at the rate of $1 a hundred copies.

Another excellent pamphiet, of which the Socialist Literature Company has a good supply on hand, it H. Gaylord Wilshire's "Why Working-men Should be Socialists." This is sold at 50 cents a hundred copius. "The Socialist Army," by Algernou Lee, though intended more particularly for party members, is well adapted to give the inquirer into Socialism an idea of the methods and spirit of one party and the reasons why he should join it, and should be widely circu-lated. The price is 75 cents for a hundred coples Several assembly district organizathese pamphlets at open-air meetings in sets of three for five cents, and find that they go "like hot cakes." This is better than giving them away, not only because it covers the cost, the proceeds from one meeting providing the stock for the next, but also because the average man is more likely to give a careful reading to something that he has paid a nickel for than to something that is given to him

FOR FREE DISTRIBUTION.

It is well also, however, to have some literature for free distribution at every meeting. For this purpose we would call especial attention to the four-page leaflet, "Competition and Monopoly," which treats in a concise and popular and yet scientific manner of a question that is now in every-one's mind. It can be had at the office of the Socialist Literature Company at $1 a thousand copies. It bears the party emblem of the Arm and Torch and calls attention to the official name of the party in this state, the Social Democratic Party.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SOCIALISM.

Nobody will deny that the possessing classes have stored up more universal education than the propertiess classes. But no thinking man can full to recog-nize that the political education of the working class far excels that of any other class, yea, that the working class is really the class of political thinkers, class of business men. Everyone these classes has been made what it is by the instinct of self-defense.

working class to think the philosophy. The supremary of the rul ing classes is based on the most p pusterous premises. It is impressed without the densest ignorance working class. How could it be other wise? Those nobles and capitalists it without the least constitutions straint, abould be beings without car nal instincts, administering the public affairs for the benefit of the whole society.

Our opponents claim that we Socialists reckon without human nature! But when they say that human beings are not angels, they always except them-seives, otherwise their defense of the present order would collapse!

The consciousness of the working cless lifts the human society to a con-sciousness of itself. The science of in the presence of the forces of natur But the era of technical inventions is followed by the era of politics, and the supremacy of the capitalist class will yield to the amancipation of the proie-terist. The political class-conscious ness of the working class has the economic consciousness of the economic consciousness of the in-dividual into the economic consciousmess of the whole class with the ban-mer of solidarity of interests. That forhodes the birth of a new world, the pertuning of a real world of economic ics, of the commonwealth of bumnnity.

Therefore the class-conscious thought of the working class-that is, the pidienophy of Socialism—is the great and mightiest idea ever produced the human mind.—Berlin Vorwärts.

THE INTERNATIONAL SOCIALIST BUREAU.

Report of H. Gaziord Wilshire, the American Sologate to the Brussells Meeting.

LONDON, July 24.-The Internation al Socialist Bureau, which meets semi annually in Brusels, is as yet more o a promise than a present power. It has been in existence now some three years. It is composed of two delegates is to call you a witness to this story; ealist your service; that you retake your political functions, command and control to the end of prosecuting with vigor, intelligence and dispatch, the war for your emancipation, along the line of cleavage marked out by the class structle. from each nation, sent by the respec-tive Socialist parties. In the absence of the regular delegates from the United States, George D. Herron and Watter Thomas Mills, I had the house of being the official representative of the Socialist Party of America, having been appointed by the National Com 'vicious personality' of our attacks—as if persona do not typify, crystalize and reflect interests, principles and meth-ods. As if Socialist principles and tac-mittee at its meeting held on July 5.

The meeting was held on July 20 in one of the committee rooms of the Maison du Peuple, the great building especiativ constructed for and owned by the Socialist Party of Brussels. The following is a list of delegates present at the meeting: V. Sarwy, the Secretary of the Bureau; Ausecle and Van-dervelde, of Belgium; Valilant, France; Fischer and Pfankuch, Germany; Van Kol and Troelstra, Holland; Kuudsen Denmark; Hyndman and Runter Watts, England; Wulski and Caeserine Wejnarowska, Poland; tiuizbourg, Rus sia, Patronie, Argentine Republic, and H. Gaylord Wilshire of the United States. The Socialist parties of Austria and Italy sent excuses for not be ing represented.

The morning session was occupied with routine business and the reports of national secretaries. It was voted that the following subjects should be taken up for discussion at the International Congress of Socialists to be held at Amplerdam in 1904; General Strikes General Rules of Political Socialism: Trade Unionism and Politics; Colonial Politics; International Arbitration; Th Relation of the Trust Question to the Unemployed Problem; Emigration.

The afternoon session was devoted to a discussion of the protection of foreign labor, the question arising from the continual interchange of foreign labor between France and Beigium, the workers being now engaged in one ountry and again in the other. Wages being so much lower in Belgium, when workers from that country go is France they come into disastrous competition with French workers. In ther labor has also worked serious reduction in the wages of the workers of those two countries. Watts of England declared that it was difficult for the In ternational Bureau to determine a puestion of this nature which concern ed but two or three special countries Vandervelde of Belgium held that the quention should be held for discussion by the Amsterdam Congress in 1904, when the matter could be treated in its entirety, but in the meantime that the International Bureau should recognize the situation officially and take such immediate steps as was decuted best. It was finally voted that the question raised by the Belgian delegation should he referred to the Amsterdam Con-gress, luasmuch as that Congress was to deal specifically with the matters of emigration and immigration, and this question would full directly under thes beads. Furthermore, the delegates placed themselves on record as being opposed to restrictive legislation against the employment of foreign labor, and that the delegates from the countries immediately interested in the Belgian, should settle it among them-selves and put it in shape to submit to the Amsterdam Congress. A letter was read from the Socialists in Bulgaria protesting against the recent outrages and acts of vandatism committed by the Turks in Macedonia In view of the fact that the letter has no documents attached specifying the nature of the outrages, and that many delegates regretfully confessed ignor-ance of the exact situation in Bulgaria. the matter was laid on the table.

The Bureau decided to endorse the action of the Italians upon the general ground that Socialists are always and at all times and places especially inasmuch as the Russians themselves have themselves have no opportunity of ex-pressing themselves on the subject, be-ing denied the ballot, and a hostile street demonstration, resulting inevitably in capital punishment to the participants. The hostility the Itslians will show the Tear is simply an ex-pression to him of sentiments the Rus-sian people themselves would like to express, but do not dare.

A discussion somewhat similar to this came up outside the Bureau a few months previous upon the occasion of the visit of the King of Italy to the President of France. Some of the French Socialists proposed a hostile demonstration, but the Italians re-quested them to abandon the project. The Italians argued in the first place that Italy was to all intents and pur poses as free and democratic a country under its constitutional monarch as was France under her capitalist President; that they, the Italians, had plenty of rights and opportunities for hostile demonstration against their king, by their bulless and atterwise, and after they therefore did not require the help of the French to voice their views; and, heally, that the thing that flocialists were fighting was capitalism, the comwere lightlag was capitalism, the com-petitive aystam, smit that we long an they othe Etnikesis, bud the biblist on equal forms with the Presch, it was their own first if they confined qualer capitalism, and that the mere fact or their having a king instead of upward-dent was of practically no economic im-partness. The arrier of the Franch Socialists ambilded at this reply, and the decided to allow the Italian king so visit France in peace.

Of course, none of this argument applies to the Tear, for he is not a constitutional.

The National Secretary has taken initiatory steps toward the formation of a territorial organization in the In-

State and local secretaries should immediately take the necessary steps in their various states and localities to have all comrades of foreign birth naturalized during the next two months. The naturalization law varies in different states, and those desiring information concerning it should write to the respective accretaries of state. This is an important matter and should receive prompt attention.

In his weekly report to the National Committee, National Secretary Mailly reports: Local charter granted to Tyrole, Indian Territory; request from lown and British Columbia for assistance for organizing purposes referred to Quorum; reply of National Commit-teeman Critchiow of Ohio, to protest of Nebraska State Local Oporum, and National Committeeman braska Local Quorum be referred to ment national convention, have been referred to National Committee; list of peratic Herald" and "American Labor Union Journal," received from Ben Hanford letter from G. Ben Hanford's Tour.

Ben Hanford will begin his lecture tour under the direction of the national headquarfers two days sooner than ex-pected, opening at Philadelphia on Satday, Aug. 22, the comrades of the 40th Ward Branch having made a special request for him. It is doubtful whether there is another speaker in the entire movement as clear and forceful as Hanford and certainly none surpass him. Comrades everywhere should therefore selse this oportunity to have him speak for them. The following dates have been arranged for the first two weeks: Williamsport, Pa., Aug. 24; Coudersport, Pa., Aug. 25; Erle, Aug. 26; Coueaut, Ohio, Aug. 27; Pot-ter County, Pa., Aug. 29, 29, 50, and 31; Youngstown, Ohio, Sept. 1; Cauton. DO WE NEED THE CAPITALIST?

All social questions are included in rected by idlers, allens, dehauchees, these two guestions; First, Do weneed capitalists?; second, If not, how can we get rid of the capitalist class? The solution of all social problems is found when these questions are rightly | mental work, that they work very hard answered. The STRUGGLE of the WORKING class AGAINST the OWNing class is reducible to these two

The capitalist is he who owns facto ries, land, mills, mines, railroads-aug of the means of producing or distributing wealth. He is enriched by rent. profit and interest.

To juntify the capitalist's private ownership of the means of production and his accruing profits, the professors of economics (the science which deals with the production and distribution of wealth in the colleges endowed by espitalists speak of profit in certain technical terms, which imply that the enpitalist performs some service necessary to society which entities him to his profit. The professors of economics may that profit, in all its various forms, is "wages of superintendence," "wages of abstinence," and "wages of risk or insurance.' By "wages of superin lendence" they mean that the capitalist superintends industry and manages production and that his profit is 'wages" for his service. By "wages of abstinence" they mean that the capltallet has eaved up the means of further production by self-denial and that his profit is "wages" for this service By "wages of insurance or risk" they mean that the capitalist risks the capital which he has accumulated when he invests it in an industrial undertaking and that his profit is "wages" for taking this risk.

At one time, far back in the early days of competitive capitalism before machinery and the organization of industry had reached its present stage, the capitalists did superintend industry and did take a considerable risk of losing what they had saved when they entered into competition. In those days the enpitalist had a function to perform. Now that those days are gone forever, the professors, the editors and the politicians whom the capitalists feed still parrot these outworn phrases as apology for and justification of the increasingly enormous profits of the increasingly useless capitalist class-pro or literature. He not awed by the THERE IS NO FOOL LIKE A

Although the function of the capitalfat is said to be the direction or superintendence of industry, everyone knows that many capitalists do not work at all and have nothing to do with the direction of the industries from which they draw profits. The typical capitalist is the stockholder in a corporation. The New York stockholder may own stocks in a mine in Montana WHICH HE HAS NEVER SEEN, he may never have visited the city in which the corporation that he holds stock in has its offices, never have attended a meeting of the stockholders or direc tors, and yet be continues to draw epormous profits from the labor of Montana miners-for superintending

The stockholder may spend his time crulsing the Mediterranean on his cause he OWNS the means of producyncht, gamuling at Monte Carlo, wining and dining at Newport, betting on the races at Saratoga, and yet continue to draw enormous profits from the labor of the larger share of its product. later performed in factories and milia which he has never seep-for superintending industry

The stockholder's mind may be habitmally befuddled with drink, drugs, and dissipution, yet he continues to draw enormous profits for his intellectual labor-for superintending industry!

The stockholder, as the ward of an estate, may be an INFANT in the cradle, yet, having the power of exploiting labor by inherited ownership, duant enormous profits for his future luxury before he has learned to walk or talk--for superintending industry!

The stockholder may become IN-SANE and be confined in an asylum. yet because of the ownership of stocks and bonds in his name, he will draw enormous profits for his brain workfor superintending industry)

The stockholder may be DEAD, yet while the estate of the dead stockholder is being settled up, dividends continue to be declared upon the stock enormous profits—for superintending babies, lunatics, and dead men.

Everyone knows, however, that many other capitalists, and these the greatest, do actually perform a great deal of seven ' itours a dây during a large part of the year. But, do these capitalists really superintend and direct the preduction of wealth; do they render a service to society? On the contrary The work of these active capitalists is an "industry of acquisition;" they devote themselves to drawing into their own private pockets the wealth which others produce; all their great energy and mental ability is exercised in such a way and fee such purposes as to be not only useless but absolutely harmful to society, to the great mass of the people. The work of these "capitains of industry" is to find the way to get the most product out of labor in return for the least wages, to reduce wages and raise prices, to intensify exploitation, to manipulate stocks and "corner" the market, to crush labor unions, to corrunt legislatures and courts, to adulter ate the product and to cut down expense at the risk of life, to crush out rivals and kill competitors by skillful advertising, by legal squabbles, by ANY possible means, to maintain at all costs their own position of power and increase their own wealth. All this may be very strenuous work, it may be a very nerve-straining effort, but it PRODUCES nothing, it adds nothing to the amount of wealth or human happiness in the world, it is absolutely useless to anyone except the capitalists themselves, and absolutely harmful to

The safe-breaking thief must exertine skilled labor and technical knowledge, and the competent "bunco man" must do a great deal of brain work and take a great deal of risk; yet we do not think that the burglar is entitled to the contents of the safe or that the "conddence man" has a right to the money that his wiles bring in. No more is the capitalist entitled to the profit which his ownership and his scheming bring him. The only difference is that the capitalist owns the government and legalises his opera-

The "espitains of industry" who draw the greatest profits do not direct fits far greater than the reward of the real technical work of production. genius in any branch of science, art, do not superintend the different departments of the industries which they phrases of the learned. Know that own. Many great capitalists are "directors" of OVER A SCORE of different corporations engaged in widely differing industries. It is impossible for one man to have the technical knowledge that is necessary to the superintendence of so many different lines of activity; and if one man could have a technical knowledge of twenty or thirty different businesses, it would be absolutely impossible for him to superintend them all at once. It is obvious that the real work of superintendence is turned over to hired foremen and superintendents. And if any of the larger capitalists do perform any work of superintendence they do it as paid officers or directors of the corporation. receiving a SALARY, which, though it is always an enormously excessive to their profits as OWNERS. The capitalist piles up immense wealth not because he superintends industry, but betion which labor has created and must work with and is thus enabled, through the competitive wage system, to rob

> The ownership of corporation stocks is constantly changing every day and every hour as stocks are bought and sold on the stock exchange, but this does not interfere with the progress or superintendence of industry for the very simple reason that the owners do NOT superintend industry. Just as the ownership of a corporation passes from one capitalist to another without interrupting production, so the ownership could be transferred to the whole people without interfering with the enceful progress of the industry. Similarly, when a capitalist dies, who is said to be the very life of a great industry, the industry goes right along as if he had never been, The organisation of the Boof Trust, for instance, has been perfected SINCE the death of

> NECESSARY man in that line. If we should accept the statement that the capitalist class manages the would be compelled to accept the conclusion that they have been very incompetent and evil managers and that we could not do worse, for their reign under a system of collective ownership of the means of production would be mmeasurably simplified and become simost a mere matter of statistics and information. For the most intricate problems of management all arise from the present chaotic systèm of private ownership of the means of life. As the Irishman said of England's management of the affairs of the Emerald late, so it may be said of capitalism "Hell itself could not be successfully conducted upon such a system."

The apology for capitalist profit ex pressed in the terms "wages of abstinence" and "wages of risk or insur ance" is less frequently used nowa days because the wanton waste and luxury of the established and hereditary caritalist class has made all talk of the 'reward of abstinence' a subject for merriment; and the loaded dice game of the monopolist who can not loss has made "risk" a farce.

In the early times when it was po sible to become a capitalist by saving and when competition made risk real, the chief factor in "success," other things being equal, was LUCK. Now that it is impossible to save enough to compete with the established great factor in "success" in any new line is previous ownership of CAPITAL, inheritance of wealth.

The capitalist whose profit is called "wages of risk" by his parrot professors risks nothing but the DOLLARS he has stolen from others, while the workers every day in a thousand different dangerous occupations risk their very LIVES at their work. Where, then, is the workers' reward of risk?

The capitalist whose profit is called "rewarn of abstinence" by his echoing economists wastes the wealth of the gaudy display, while those who produce the wealth of the world are restricted to BARE NECESSITIES. Where, then, is the workers' reward

And if either risk in industry or alstinence for the purpose of renewing the means of production is now necessary, for anyone, neither would be pecessary under the Socialist system of common ewnership which will eliminate the waste and insecurity of competitive capitalism and give abundance and security to all who are willing to do their share of the world's work. We do not need the capitalist. The capitalist class no longer have any function, and just as in the evolution of physical organisms those organs which have lost their function disappear, so the capitalist class must disappear in the evolution of the social organium.

But our work and our will is one of the chief factors in that social evolution and the capitalist will not disappear until we dispossess him. The Socialist movement is here to answer the question how to get rid of the capitalist. It calls upon the workers to unite in a political party of their own class in order to capture the powers of government and do away with the useless capitalist class by making common property under public ownership of that which is now capital under private ownership and thus put the control of industrial affairs into the hands of the workers themselves. The land of the American Boycott Association is plainly seen in these cases. The Association's attorney is conducting most of the prosecution Mr. Stiles, ever since he began his fight on the unions about five years ago, has been unable to secure enough compe-tent workmen, and much of his building has been delayed. The Boycott Association has come to his rescue with the suits. The defendants are: Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers of America; Paint-ers' District Council of Chicago; Ad-visory Board of the Building Trades of Chicago; Gasütters' Association, Local No. 250: Journeymen Plumbers' Protective and Benevolent Society; United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners; and twenty-two individuals, officers and members of these bodies.

The Kellogg Company suits are against the following unions, on the claim that the unions "conspired to ruin its business": For $15,000 damages against the International Associa-tion of Machinists, District No. 8, Lee 8, Fisher, Business Agent; for $15,000 Board sold to the Astoria Light, Heat and Power Company sixteen acres of land under water at Astoria for $3.050. damager against the Metal Polishers. This story has a moral to any one tackling the gas interests. He will discover on the second pull the electric light interests, then the surface railway interests. He will find himself pulling at the subway and, if wisdom aids him, he will see, attached to the subway, the Standard Oil and Morgan interests reaching out around the world. BLACKLIST LEGAL.

So Holds a United States Circuit Court.

Fedo al Judge Rogers, at Suit el Western Union. Dismisses Injunotion and Rules that Employers Have a Right to Combine in Denying Employment to Union Mon. The necision of Judge Rogers of the United States Circuit Court at ... St. Louis, in dismissing the injunction suit prought by blacktisted workingmen against the Western Union Tylegraph Company, is one of the most sweeping decisions against labor ever rendered. It completely supports the plea of the Western Union's counsel, that employ-ers have a right to discharge their em-ployees "for any cause or for no cause" and have a right to agree among them selves not to employ certain men and to exchange lists of men so discharged or barred from employment

Several states have laws forbidding blacklisting, but if the Rogers decision is sustained, as seems probable, these laws will be ineffective, as coming in ounict with a lifgher authority.

A Clear Case.

The Western Union, in its defense denied the plaintiff's statement of facts as to blacklisting, declaring that the discharges complained of had been grounded on insubordination or other causes. But the company did not rest on this defense. It claimed an absolute right to discharge men at pleasure and without assigning reasons and claimer further that, as every em-ployer has this right, it followed that employers have the right to agree in exercising it and to exchange informa-tion as to the identity of men whom they do not wish to employ. Judge Rogers, in his decision, explicitly sup-ports this argument. He holds that there could be no considerery to com-mit a lawful act, such as he held to be the discharge of the company's em-ployees because of being members of a union, and that the company had the right to maintain a list on which might be placed the name of a discharged employee and the cause of discharge, and this list might be given to others, provided its contents were truthful and its circulation honest.

In suits brought against workingmen for striking and boycotting a different theory has been maintained. It has been held that, while every workingman has a right to give up his job or to refrain at pleasure from patron-ising certain business men, yet a com-bificitie of workingmen to exercise these lawful rights for the purpose of competing employers to accede to cerinfn anulitions may be treated as an unlawful compliacy. However, logical inconsistency seldom troubles the courts. The same judge can hold a strike or a boycott to be unlawful and lockout or a blacklist to be inwful, without ruffing his dignity in the

With men acting as indees and The inconsistency of the two theories is only apparent, not real, Both are thoroughly consistent with district at men acting as judges and district attorneys who have been trained as corporation lawyers and owe their positions to capitalist patron-age, the unions' chances in court are very bad. But even if the final de-cision is not against them, if the suits the essential principles of capitalism. The central point of capitalism is the sacredness of profit, on which all else depends. Whatever conduces to business prosperity is lawful. The prop-ertiless man has no right to work ex-cept by the permission of the owner of capital, who makes profit on his labor. When no satisfactory profit can be made, the owner of capital is under no obligation to allow men to work. The means of production are his. He has a right to combine with other capitalists in using them or holding them out of use, because this con-duces to profit-making, which is the courts of law, of course. But if they are defended only in the courts of law, the best the unions can hope is an expensive and inglorious escape from motive of industry. But for the prop-ertiless to refuse to work at terms profitable to the possess combine in such refusal is to threaten | that the capitalist class, fully co ruin, not a decisive victory. Charles Bach Heads Social Democratic City Ticket.

Full List of City and County Candidates Chosen at Enthusiastic Gathering-Prospects Are Brighter Then Ever Safore.

Charles Bach, an active member of the Button Workers' Union and c the ablest comrades of the Social Demporatic Party in Rochester, was chosen by the city convention of the party, held on Aug. 21, as candidate for Mayor. 1/4-

The other names on the city ticket are: For Comptroller, Gad Martindale, of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union; for City Treasurer, James Suhivan, of the flack Drivers' Union; for President of the Common Council, F. A. Van Anken, salesman; for School Commisdoners, Mrs. Mabel Kernon and A. Blutan, the latter a member of the chal Court, H. D. Henderson, of the Typographical Union; for Assessors, Joel Moses, of the Clothing Cutters' Union, and William Hammen.

This convention, which was presided over by Comrade Moses, with Charles Bechtold as secretary, was the most enthushatic and in every way the most satisfactory ever held in the city. Frank A. Nieverman unexpectedly came in during the proceedings and be-ing invited to speak, responded in a stirring and impressive address. Comrade Bach also spoke. The latter, who the highest respect wherever he is known, combining the devoted energy of young manhood with a studious s thoughtful temperament that makes him a most valuable public speaker.

The City Platform.

The reading of the following platform, which was unnnimously adopted, was greeted with loud cheers: "The Social Democratic Party of Rochester, New York, in convention assembled, hereby reaffirms its allegiance to the principles of international Socialism, as proclaimed in the Social Democratic Party's national platform adopted by the Indianapolls convention, held July 29-Aug. 1, 1901.

"Together with Bocialists of all countries, we hold it to be the supreme duty of the working class to capture the powers of state from the capitalist class, so that the working class may secure complete control of all branches of government, for the purpose of transfering from the hands of the capitalist class to the whole people collectively, the ownership of all mines, workshops, mills, factories, railroads, in short, all machinery of production and distribution, the same to be owned and operated by the people collectively as their interests or convenience may dictate. "No long as the great modern tools of roduction and distribution are the privale property of the capitalists, who will permit their use by the working class only on such terms and conditions as are dictated by the interest of the capitalist class, we hold that no per-manent relief can come to the workers, "The giant trusts of to-day, which are already, monopolizing every field of human activity and are the forerun-ners of still more gigantic industrial combination of capital, present a problem which can only be solved by the adoption of the Socialist principle in economics, the collective ownership and operation of all means of produc tion and distribution

"We hold further that the many contests of recent times between Capital and Labor of all industries, in and on of the city, clearly emphasize the an tagonism of interests between Capital, and is satisfied with nothing less than the complete subjugation of Labor war between the two classes, take their battles into the political field where they are strongest, array themselves on the side of the Social Democratic Party, which represents the interests of the working classes, vote themselv branches of government, and then an act laws to project themselves preparatory to their emancipation.

FOR MAYOR OF NEW YORK-DR. CHARLES L. FURMAN. FOR CONTROLLER MORRIS BROWN. FOR PRESIDENT OF BOARD OF ALDERMEN-PETER J. FLANAGAN.

Bird S. Coler says he is not a candi fate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor of New York, 'This would be a great relief, if it were not that Mr. Coler talked in exactly the same strain last your and the year before.

Platt sars Low ought to be re-cles ed as Mayor of New York. Low is an dependent," as everybody knows, Platt is an Easy Boss, as likewise everybody knows. SUCIALIST ACTIVITY IS MUNIC IPALITIES.

We cannot too strongly commend the idea supported by Comrade Simons in the third of his articles on Socialist activity in municipal affairs, which appears in The Worker this week. It seems altogether probable that in the very near future the Socialist Party will gair control of a large number of municipalities, especially of industria cities of the same type as Haverhill, Brockton, Sheboygan, and Anaconda, which we already partially control. While we shall simultaneously strengthen our representation in state legislatures and may even invade the halls of Congress next year, we shall remain a fighting minority in these larger social bodies for some time to come. It will therefore be in the city governments which we capture that we shall have to give the first of what are commonly called "practical" demonstrations of our ability to administer public affairs in the interest of the working class and of advancing hu-manlty. We have no fear of the test. Yet we should recognize its gravity and do all in our power to prepare ourselves for it. The position of a Socialist Mayor and Board of Aldermen in an important city will be a much harder one than that of a Socialist Governor and levislature in any state, and this. in turn, will be more trying than that of a Socialist President and Congress. Because municipal affairs so directly touch the daily life of the people and are so influentely connected with large capitalist interests and also because the powers of city governments are so hampered and hemmed in by the provisions of charters, state and federal laws, and court decisions, the task of transforming a city administration from an agency for preserving the peace and promoting capitalist loot into an agency for preserving the neace and furthering the physical and intellectual and moral development of the working cises is a task as difficult as it is attractive. It is true that municipal conditions and problems vary widely in their detalls in different cities. But it is chiefly in details that they differ. Hesentially they are much the same. Everywhere there are the great frantiles corperations to be dealt with Everywhere there is the conflict of the interests of contractors and laborers on public works. Everywhere there is the problem of the housing of the working people and the safeguarding of their benith. Everywhere there is the conflict between the need of educational focilities for the children of the workers and the unwillingness of the property-owners to provide funds therefor, Everywhere there is the question of the attitude of the municipal anthorities in case of strikes and bekouts, in which the city government has the power to give great aid to the one side or to the other. In a word, everywhere there is the autamonism between the civic life of the people who make the city and the business privileges of those who own it.

In view of the responsibility that it sure to be thrown upon us in these matters and the desirability of coordinating our action, so far as pos sible, in all parts of the country, as well as of putting at the service of all of our municipal officers-elect the results of the experience and investiga tions of others, it would certainly seem that Comrade Simons plan is worthy of the most careful considers tion.

The "Social Democratic Remid" is recommend the sawyer's example: much agitated over Comrado Spargo's recent letter in The Worker, wherein be declared that "the grafter must go" and advised locals to refrain from engaging any speaker who charges more than ave dollars a day and expenses. be stuck together there, whether it be The "Heraid" finds an argument a political or economic preachery, is against Spargo's proposition in the not genuine street cornerism. following statement:

STREET CORNERISMS FOR SOAP-BOX SPEAKERS.

By Poter E. Burrowes.

The word natural as used in this and most other cases stands for a habit acquired, and this is as true of many of our involuntary as of our voluntary actions. When a quack dictist tells a man that in the matter of eating and drinking he should return to nature, he is saying nothing in a confusing sort of way which makes it sound like something; for nature is habit and it is always possible and this nature.

The great advantage enjoyed by the soap-box orator over all other orators is that he has not yet nequired any nature to change, or to be crippled by, in this entirely new and therefore wholly unuatural exercise.

If a strange animal were placed facto face with you in your solitary cham-her you would be in a state of nervous concern as to how the relation between you and that arimal is to be adjusted. Whether you shall kick him or caress him, that is the question. If you kick him he will certainly know you are his enemy; if you caress him he may suspect that you are his enemy only trying by deceitful arts to get a bite at him. Therefore you take a middle course with your stranger, meither careasing nor kicking it but presenting yourself neutrally so that it does no know whether you are a friend or a foe. This is the first step to a successful career on the soap box and the first stage in every successful talk. Let your audience themselves begin ad-justing the relation between you. Don't spit yourself all out in the first sentence, but with a ciear, firm voice may nothing for the first few minutes o your rocal acquaintance. In the cam of the strange animal introduced to your apartment let it be remembered that it has good reason to be as auxious concerning what you are go-ing to do as you can be concerning its intentions. If you could keep quite still, your strange visitor might do all the adjusting, and explain itself well enough to help you decide whether to put it out or keep it. Therefore let your amiliance commence to do some-thing to understand you— speech was not acquired by mankind for the purpose of explaining to others but to set others busy explaining us. You can-not fil the public stomach with granu-lated Socialism already digested; you may give it to them in a rag and let them chew it out for themselves. Your main object at the street corner being to set the mental gums of your crow going to make you out—only don't pussie them too long, lest they give you up. Now let us suppose that you have acquired soap-hox nerre enough to be interested in your audience. I will tell you that, your physical make-up being equal, you have acquired the first great quality of successful sosphoxoratory. This does not mean any philanthropic interest in them whatsover; it does not mean love nor patriotism, nor a deep enthusiasm of yours, it is only that you have gone into the business of making them all chew. If your mind be kept continually on this object you may snap your fingers at self-con-sciousness, because you have sent it away back to sit down, while you are uttering sentences which set the minds of your auditors agrinding out some way of adjustment between the words from the teap box and themselves.

Do not deceive yourself as to the value of superior personality, the force ot eccentricity, etc., as elements of your success on the street corner. Whenever you obtrude yourself more than your subject they stop chawing long enough to give you a thought of envy or ridicule. Just grind out words with a loud-toused satisfying connectiveness. No matter about his legs and feet or his back or his head, the from one side of his plank to the other, and if we had more of this kind of word-sawing on the soap box, So-cialism would be further alread in America. in Socialism What you shall say is by no means What you shall may in by my invente the primary consideration; but can you may anything sosphoxly. It is assumed, already, and it is truly assumed, that you know enough of Socialism to make there know it, if only you could tell what you know in the pitch and tope of the street corner. You may crum yournelf with science, statistics; etc., from new until Roosevelt receives Mother Jones and it will get no farther than your craw, never to be known by the world outside and perhaps never to be directed even by that little world within yourself-your . own under in a speakers' class it is therefore to be understood that manner and not majter is the object of pursuit and the time there spent studying Socialism is that much time lost to the proper object of the class. Pollowing this sugzestion it will be well for the class have only one thing doing at a time.

Do not sitempt to stumble through a complete Socialistic statement until you have found that self of the speaker soap-box voice, your final way, habit or nature of saying things at the street corner. When the voice of will. force; composure, continuity, and en-durance is discovered, and well and thoroughly mated to the mind; it will find enough already in your own brain to begin with (for are you not already a Socialist?) and when it tastes the joy of soap best success, it will never coase to fish for pearly everywhere and to load up with new paintum to set that crowd at the street corner chewing, that crowd in which you became interested from the moment you first set its game in motion.

Now those simple cornerisms granted to be true, the use to be made of these in class exercise is to do a lot of voori stunts to find the voice; then to find the speed, the continuity and modulation. This done many times, let each comrade in his seap-box voice recount any incident of the newspapers, or his own experience, in order to accustom that hig voice of his to talk on familiar things. The next important practice is to prevent the mind from hastening the tongue beyond that alow-menamed articulation so needful to the stree corner; and to give the voice that con-trol over the mind which it must have to hold yourself togother and your

I hear what you say. But I think you are wrong. Why is it impossible? Why unset you surrender without a fight? You have fought. Yes. But you have not fought enough. Why should have not fought enough. Why should you plead guilty? What have you been guilty of? Do you mean to say that the big fortunes scare you? They should not scare you. They should inspire you. Tou talk of the impossible: spire you. Tou talk of the impossible, what is impossible to the soul? As long as the soul itself is possible anything is possible to the soul. Surrender is apology. Why should you der is apology. apologize? Does Morgan seem too big for your soul? Nothing is too big for your soul. The smallest soul would outsize the biggest fortune. Come, now, out of your dumps. I'know that you carry heavy burdens. I know that you are robbed and despised. But you have your soul left. And your soul is invariable and invulnerable. You have got to take the weariness out of that young face. If you fail to do that you fail in everything. No amount of brilliant achievements can compensate for the failure to do this. You have got to do the thing that will clear up that clouded face. The bitter thing. The sweet thing. The thing that is ecessary whatever that thing may be Yes, the impossible thing. The world is always saying: Impossible. But why should you take your cue from world and also say: Impossible? We are reducing the area of the im-possible. We are every, year surpris-ing the protest of the world with new conquests. We explore the unexplora-ble. We outtelescope the telescope. We see miniatures below the last reductions of the inicroscope. We revise the codes. The possible is always knocking at the door of the impossible and refusing to be refused.
Impossible? Do not believe it. The same power that makes private property possible is to make a better than private property possible. The same haw that injustice invokes we invoke It will not come until we invoke it right. But when we invoke it right right. But when we invoke it right nothing can prevent the enforcement of its decrees. You may work on while you are being served. You may work on while you are being robbed. But you will hope on, believe on, while you work. And you will see that to the usn who works nothing is impossible The impossible is opposed to gravita-tien. The impossible breaks the strings of your harp. The impossible shreds and patches your unstable virtues. The tible is hell. The possible is impossible is fertile. The possible is sterile. The possible is fertile. The impossible starves and leaves you for dead. The possible perpetually waters you at the root.

Impossible. What have you to de You have no right to perin believe that the things you believe to be true are impossible. Your dream of social readjustment is the first intimaof a new fact. The world is first introduced to new things in the dis-counted dreams of the outcast. But the lirenmer who admits that a dream is impossible is: net fit to dream. The is impossible is not fit for the human ties. In the immertal words of the nolitical buckstee, we are to claim every-thing and concode nothing. We are to bring all impossibilities within the pro-cedure of the possible. Until we have done this we are not safe: We are liable to give our case away. We are subject to panie. We are likely to fly in the midst of battle if battles are fought. We are likely to turn back with our pilgrimage only half over. We are like suns apologising for their light.

Impossible? We are to look the universe straight in the eye and find the whole universe possible. For if juscan you be sure of the are going to talk to the people about their weifare. But how can you talk to the people of the impossible? You who talk to the people of the impos-sible might as well say to the people that the universe is dead and that th nniverse has forgotten the people in its

THE GOAL

By Jean Jaures.

(Translated for The Worker, from Etudes Socialistes," by U. Solomon.

The first necessary condition to se cure the success of Nocialism is to ex-plain distinctly to all its goal and its substance; to dissipate many mis-understandings created by our oppothe Socialist idea is clear and noble.

We find that the present form of property divides our seciety into two big classes, and that one of these classes, the proletariat, to exist or to use its faculties, is compelled to pay a kind of tribute to the capitalist class. Here is a big mass of people that do not possess anything. Their only resource of life is their labor; and to enable of the is their latter, and to cannot them to toil they would need expensive muchinery, raw material, etc., etc., which they do not possess. They are compelled to be at the mercy of another class that ewns these means of production—the land, factory, raw material, etc. Of course, the capitalist and owning class, using its mover. and owning class, using its power compels the working class to pay a big profit. It is not satisfied to reimburse the advances made, to redeem the machinery. From the product of the workingman's labor it deducts every year rent, profit, and interest.

Thuse in our present society, the product of the workingman's labor does not belong entirely to him. And as in our society, based upon an assistance involutely to him. siduous production, the economic activity is an essential function to every human being and as labor is an integral part of the personality, it follows that the workingman's person does not belong entirely to him. He alienates a part of his activity, that is, a part of his person, for the benefit of another class. The human right with them is incomplete and mutilated. They cannot do any act in their life without suffering this restriction of right, this enslavement of their per-sons. As soon as they leave the shop, mine, factory, where they have left a part of their efforts to create dividends and profits; as soon as they come home to their poor houses where their families are crowded, new efforts, new explaitations to create the cent. At the ame time the taxes, under all for indirect. meager solaries, already twice devoured: not only to usovide for the exenses of our civilization and common nterest but also to secure the crushing service of the rent in the interest of the same capitalist class, or to inalitable tremendous and unnecessar, armics. And when, with the rearmics. And when, with the re-mainder of their salaries so devoured, the workingmen go to buy the neces-sary products for their daily life, and address themselves to the retailer, they must suffer the unnecessary charges of a superabundant class of intermediate agents; if they go to the department store, they have got to pay for the manipulation and distribution of the goods, for an unnecessary army of clerks, and besides to provide a big dividend for the capital invested. Just as the feedul road was obstructed and cut almost at every step by tol rights so the road of life for the mod rights so the road of Hre for the mod-ern toiler is obstructed by all kinds of feudal rights imposed by capital. He cannot work, feed himself, or make any move without paying to the capi-talist and owning class some kind of a

He is not only touched in his own life but even his liberty is entramelled. For labor to be really free it is necessary that the workers should be called to direct it; they must participate in the economic government of the shop. just as, through universal suffrage they participate in the political gov-ernment of the country. But the work-ingmen in our present capitalistic organization of labor play only a passive gammarton in latest pany only a passive role. They do not decide, they do not contribute in deciding what labor should be done, what use should be made of the energies to be disposed. It is without their advice, and most of the fine against their will, that the capital created by them starts or shandons such and such an enterprise They are only the servants of the capi-And these enterprises conceived and desired by capital the workers must execute under the supervision of sucapital. Thus the workers do not co-operate neither in deciding the aim of their labor nor to regulate the mechan-ism under which it is executed. That is to say, that the worker in twice a slave, because he goes to ends that he does not wish and by means that be has not choses. In this way the same capitalist systems that exploits the worker's productive power attacks also his liberty. And the worker's person-ality is diminished as his subsistence. And this is not all. The owning and capitalist class form a class only and capitains class form a class only as far as the workingmen are concerned. In itself it is divided and toen by the most eager competition. It has not succeeded to organize and consequently to discipline production and to regulate it according to the changesable needs of our society. And in this anarchistic disorder, it is warned of its. anarchistic disorder, it is warned of its errors only by crises, the terrible conwhich the workers must the workers are socially responsible for the march of production, that they by no means determine. Not to be free and be responsible. Not to be asked and be punished. This is the pera-dexical destiny of the proletarist in this capitalist disorder.

And if capitalism is organized, and and it espitations in organized, and even should they succeed by vasit trusts to regulate production, they would take advantage of this power of unity to impose usury prices upon the community of buyers and the workers will escape from the counteconomic disorder only to

All these miseries, all these in-justices arise from the fact flat a class hav monopolised the means of production and life-and-imposes its lawrupon
another class and the entire social body. We must therefore set free the oppressed class and at the same time the entire society. We must sholds all class differences by transferring to the community the property of the means of production and life which, being to-day in the hands of a claum are a power of exploitation and oppres-aion. We must substitute for the disordered and abusive domination of the minority the universal en-operation of the people associated in the common property of the means of production and liberty. This is the only way of enfranchising the human race and this is the reason why the essential object of Socialism-communist or collectivist -is to transform the capitalist prop-

In our present stage of humanity where we find only national organisma, the social property will assume the form of a national property. The action of the proletarians will be exercised more and more internationally, All the different nations that are on the way of evolution will regulate their relations more and more accord-ing to justice and peace. But it is the nation that, for a long time to come, will give the historic frame of Socialism, the model of unity in which the new justice will be cast.

You must not be surprised that after we have revindicated the liberty of human beings, we make new intervene the community. It is only the community that can set free all the indi-viduals. It is only the community that can provide the means for a free de-velopment of all. The temporary and limited associations can only protect for a short time a small group of individuais.

But it is only a general and permanent organization that can guarantee the rights of all individuals without exception, and not only of those now in existence but even of all those to be born in the future.

This nuiversal association imperishable that contains all the human be-ings of a certain pertion of the planet and that extends its action for the future generations, is the nation, the community. If we invoke the nation It is to secure the plentinde and universality of individual rights. No human being in any moment of his ex-No. between should be left outside of the sphere of his right. No one should be allowed to be the prey or the instrument of another person. No one should be deprived of the positive means of working in freedom without slavish dependence upon any other

It is in the nation that the personal right of all the individuals will find its guarantee to-day, to-morrow, and ever. And if we transfer to the com-munity all that was the private prop-erty of the capitalist class, it is not to make an idol of the community, it is not to sacrifice to it the individual illection. On the contrary, it is to enable it to provide a common basis for all individual activities and individual rights. The social right is for us only the focus for the rights of all individuals. The social property is only the instrument of action made accessible

OF HISTORIC INTEREST.

Extract from the Diary of a Boston Carponter of 1886-Early Attempt to Form Union and Reduce Hours.

The "Public" of Chicago gives the following as being an extract from the old manuscript of a private dlary kept by an intelligent young carpenter liv-ing in New England and New York from September, 1820, to May, 1827. The incidents of the portion here printed took place in Boston in 1823.] April 12.-This evening I was placed in [a] situation rather more delicate as regarded public affairs than any in which I had ever been placed. The causes that led to it were the following: Several of the most respectable journeymen carpenters having frejourneymen carpenters having frequently discussed upon the impropriety of working so many hours during the longest days in summer, for a day's work, and on the necessity and expediency of limiting the number of hours for a day's work, thereby reducing it to a regular system whereby every mechanick might be enabled to work the exact time specified for his employer, and yet have some leisere time to regulate and make such arrangements in his affairs (especially if he has a family) as are indispensably necessary. The first step taken to effect this was notice given in the publie papers that a meeting of the fourneymen carpetters would be holden at Concert Hall, Wednesday, the 12th of April, and solicited punctual attend-This notice was given about ten en elected by | days merious to the r Five or six days before s'd meeting about sixty or seventy of the above named met to consult what measures named met to consult what measures to ndopt at the general meeting, and make such arrangements for the same as might be thought proper. That was a very embarrassing mis-fortune which befell the Hon. Ben-jamin R. Tillman in Kansas the other day. Perhaps be did not particularly feel the loss of the railroad pass, for things can always be made smooth and pleasant for a really determined United States Senator; the pinch resided, we fancy, in the proclamation of the fact that he had accepted favors from the Octopus.

Of course, it is an understood thins that loud shouting on the stump or on the floors of Congress does not neces the noors of Congress does not necessarily mean saything in particular, and it is perhaps safe to conclude that the louder and more feroclous the up-roar the larger the capacity of the shouter for utilishing deadhead privileges. The corporations do not object to sittering semestities which make to glittering generalities which make a statesman solid with his constituents and do no harm of any kind. They hand around the passes, franks, and ascorted chalk-marks with unruffled equanimity, and exchange the Roman Augur wink with the other fellows an they minde pleasantly along. If any good fellow can keep himself in offit by the simple expedient of blowing off a little hot wind at nothing in particular, the Octopus is ready to throw him a bonquet or a mandwich or any other pretty, edible, or money-saving tribute of course, in a quiet, unestentations way. Why should not brethren dwell together in affection?

But Hon, Ben Tillman is not an ordinary person. There is a piercing quality in his blasts against the myrmidous of capital. It is true he has never put into concrete form any plan which would do them the very slightest injury if it were actually set in operation. It is equally true that his denunciations, carefully analyzed, disclose about the same old sediment of fustian. Yet his voice is more ter rible, his breath more devastating, and the pintitudes he utters are dressed in garb so warlike and so fearsome that the money devils are always supposed to fice before him to the deepest jungle of all Hepsidam. In this way, Brother Tillman has made for himself a repu tation-in the South Carolina piney woods, at least-which does not se its most oppressive form. We appre-hend that quite a number of free and enlightened voters in the l'aimetic State will shudder when they bear that a Kansas desperatio has looted their most beloved Senator and found a railroad corporation's gift secreted in his clothes The cloud will blow away, of course Even the haughtlest and most incor-ruptible of mudhillers can be brought to see some virtue in despoiling the Egyptian, and all of them will acknowledge that his acceptance of a pass has not strained the quality or diluted the deceness of Mr. Tillman's rage.

The Public.

When public opinion and public tenchers and statesmen find it so very easy to apologize for mobe that burn men at the stake, and to defend cor-porations that plunder the public, it is not difficult to conceive of excuses for the outbreaks of hard-working men who know that they are solved but don't understand the trick. When they see legislators brilled by the rich expioiters of their labor, and judges innuenced to make judge-made laws for the privileged classes; when they are painfully conscious that this use of wealth which is filebed in part from them, somehow operates to make their condition harder; when uncarned wealth figures them on every hand, and the daily products of their own toll are diverted from them by the mysterious processes of power which make opportunities for remunerative work so scarce that drudgery is a price. -when these conditions could Anyone in the same circumstances would have the same impulse. THE NEED OF A NATIONAL MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE.

previous ones. It may be that of the previous same of them worshy of attention, but if the municipal problem in the Socialist Party is of importance then the method of its solution is something which is pressing for con-sideration. I am convinced that utti-mutely we shall be forced to follow the example of the Socialists of several of department of the party for the special consideration of the questions which

It is not enough to elaborate a prornm, although the formation of such program is the first step towards even an intelligent discussion of the matter, to say nothing of intelligent

The preparation of such a program should not be left to the hurried action of a national convention. It is unfor-tunate that we have followed the example of capitalist parties in thus The platform is simply to "get in on," not to "stand on," and so demands only the services of clever political schemers. But the Socialist platform is supposed to contain an epitome of a social philosophy, and minuid be prepared with greatest care. As one who helped to formulate our present national platform I know that it was impossible to give it the carefui, studious considerati document deserves. It was written between two days" by comrades who were busy with regular convention work on both of the days between which they wrote the platform. There came the hasty confusion, partisen dis cussion, not to say wrangling, on the convention floor and its adoption.

Such work as this will produce much better results when dealing only with the generalities and familiar phrases of which a national platform must be composed than when forming definite answers to concrete questions meh a program requires a long discussion of the various points involved by as large a number of comrades as pe sible. This discussion should not be simply a rehashing of old generalities The time is now here to deal with special phases of subjects, peculiar problems, and definite applications of Socialist decirine. I have a collection of several hundred Socialist pamphists that have been published during the inst few years, and if about a dozen of them were selected the remainder might almost as well be thrown away so far as any addition which they have made to Socialist knowledge is con-cerned. Not that such literature is use-less. The fact that I have done my share in producing it is proof of my belief that it is necessary. But I do now seriously question whether much of the space in our periodicals, and particu-larly those which circulate among Secialists, might not be better used than by repeating over and over again the same old phrases. In our more perma-ment literature it is certain that the time has come when the person who wishes to write a pumphlet or book should cause to attempt to restate what Marx, Engels, Hyndman, Kauts-ky, Lafargus, Liebknecht, not to mention a host of American writers, have probably stated at least as well as be can state it, but should select some one phase of his subject and sook to bring new material, new thought, new light to its consideration, and perhap than those now held. This is the method of scientific advance in all lines of thought. The biologist does not tell over and over again the general prin-ciples of evolution. When he meets a beginner ignorant of these things he refers him to the writings of Darwin. Wallace, Ifuxley or some of their nu-merous "popularizers." In the mean-time, if he be a true scientist, he seeks and to add to the sum total of human tion by Socialists. There is constant late literature reviewing and repeating the fundamentals of Socialism. This is the function of our "soap-box exators." our propaganda papers, our handbille and cheaper pamphlets. This is a work which is of greatest importance and one in which I shall always be willing and gind to do my share.

who are converted to Socialism, who are convinced of its success, who are ready for that success and have no babylsh fears of victory, should move on to a consideration of the specific problems which confront us. should have a literature on municipa lems as they exist to-day. This does not mean a literature on what we want dightly, if at all, concerned as Soc Jats. But it does mean that the So cialists who are now holding municina offices, and the very many more who will be holding them in the near future should have some definite guide as to the best course to pursue, and above all should have at their disposal at possible information as to facts heri-fing upon any question in which they are interested. The problems which changing. Hance they cannot be fore told by any convention. They are in once apparent. Bight here let me pause to express my despent disgust with the against ignorance which broaden ratio all such questions with the assurance that Sechulat officials.

I am firmly convinced that the sub-ject matter of this article is of in-finitely greater importance than either working-class interests may be bes always being abse to determine its working-class interests may be best conserved that I am lead to propose the creation of a national committee of the Socialist Party having as its spe cial mission the field of municipa activity by Socialists. The plan which seems to me the best is modeled to degree upon the one in existence in Belgium, although some of its features are to be found in other cor tries and some I suggest as especially applicable to this country.

If the work is to have any continuity at all there must be a permanent ecc-retary who should be located in the office of the national headquarters. This accretary should be a man who has made a special study of municipal problems, preferably an attorney who could assist in the settling of legal problems as to municipal autonomy, relations to corporations, questions of taxation, franchises, etc. Now I ap frank to say I know of no such com rade and it is probable we shall have formulating our platforms in the rush and confusion of political conventions, with capitalist parties, such action is election—the common practice in proelection—the common practice in pro-letarian organizations anyhow. He should make the national office a head-

cipal questions, and should act as a center of communication for the other purposes described later. The committee should have only advisory powers, and hence its make-up is of less importance than if it had mandatory powers. It should include all Socialists elected to office in municipalities, and for these membership should be compulsory. Locals should see to it that such officials performed their work in the committee and reported all ection to the local organiza tion. Such other persons might be added as the national committee might think advisable, and as would agree to perform such tasks as might be of help in the work of the committee. In case of any disputed question it could be submitted to the members of the committee for discussion and the opinions of the various members published either in existing publications or in some periodical dealing with muncipal affairs in particular.

As, with the increase in the number of Socialist officers in municipalities the committee became cumbersome in size it could easily be divided along state lines while still retaining the contrai national organization for those purposes where such a wider co-operation might be advisable. Should the process of obtaining the conquest of the public powers extend itself over a score of years (which personally I hardly think probable) we would find such an organization of greatest value and it would develop and grow in various directions as occasion demands. On the other hand, should the rdinating organisation would be even greater, in order to meet the almost place of any local means of control. I would be the last to want to relax the necessity of local participation in the futies and responsibilities of Secialist municipal action, or to decrease the educational work that is done an the membership by such participation. But many times the questions under discussion extend across local lines; again they have already been met and sottled in other cities, or again the local Socialist movement may be mo-mentarily in the hands of those for whose action the national organization would not care to stand sponsor. Such a committee as I propose would meet all these emergencies and demands.

It is probable that very soon the committee would find itself called upon of great advantage if such a publication were under the control of the national party. Such control is of much less importance as to ordinary propaganda papers, for most of these deal only with matters on which Socialists are generally agreed, notwithstanding the efforts which are sometimes made to show horrible deviations from orthomatters on which there is a great mass of Socialist public opinion and general information, which will tend to pro-vent any extensive deviation from the straight and narrow path. But in the field of municipal activity we are still almost wholly in the formative period. It is a field which is peculiarly beset It is a field which is peculiarly beset with confusion, and subject to compromise. It could call for articles as to the pos-sible work of Socialist officials in rela-tion to education, housing, the unemployed, police, management of munici-pal industries, disposal of sewage and cleaning the streets (for even these things will still have to be done by Socinlicts and there are right and wro ways to do them). When necessary it could assist in focussing attention, knowledge and effort upon any particdar locality or problem that mis mand consideration. THE MORAL STATUS OF STRIKE-BREAKERS.

give I unto you."-The Nazarene.

Not I. But the Worldson! wish it might be given through

Perhaps it may be given through

My object in to inspire you to lister for it. It has to do with the life of labor, with the world of the worker. Hence it will be what the ethicists call a categorical command; while ad-dressed to the individual it will be of universal application.

The moral nature grows. Codes of morality become more enlightened as the ages speed, and also simpler. Without speculating as to what we were originally, it is certain that we have now attained to a gentler moral sensinow attained to a gentler moral sensi-bility than that possessed by our race at certain discernible epochs of the past. And in the days in which you and I are privileged to live, Beloved, it is equally certain that we are attaining a finer and better sensibility still. It is to this great fact, overlooked amidst the matter-clatter of our times, yet already bursting with optimism, that I am inviting your attention.

This higher moral consciousness of our day is the Comrade Consciousness of the Workers. True, it is not yet universal. But it is far more than a promise. It is here. As a result of the travail of a century it is here. Its chiefest visible appearing is in the moral unity of trades unionism and its growing solidarity of sympathy among all sorts of workers the world over. It is the Great Understanding. to supplant the great misunderstandlpg. Who can doubt it when 150,000 members of one craft, of all nationali-ties, stand together voluntarily for months as in the coal strike, insisting on an approach toward justice, while an undoubted majority of a mighty nation looks on encouragingly and will-ingly suffers for their sake? What a speciacle for those who love the Good!
And where could such a sight be seen outside the labor unions to-day? Nowhere before have so many men stood as one except under the compulsory discipline of war.

But who are these standing sloof, these whom the president of a great university is reported to have pro-nounced fair types of modern herolam, —the men who break the strike? -the men who break the strike? Chiefly they are those upon whom the new moral light has not yet dawned, benighted souls, blind followers of the blind. At the best they are but sur-vivals of an old order, reflecting a light that is dim, and whoever is least in the new is greater than they. At the worst they are renegades to the new light,—as many of them as see it but do not wish to walk by it. They are still saring, as in monomania, like the less enlightened of the masters whom they serve: "I will work where I please, work when I please and for whom I please."

As if there could be any moral sanction in such a shibboleth,—the symptom of moral atrophy. Had it not been rejected at every crisis of history there could not have been found faith upon the earth. To be sure these Where-I-Plenses still have a legal sanc-tion. Law ever lags behind onstriding Justice. And to be sure no one has either legal or moral right to use aggressive violence upon them. So much is in our permanent store of moral achievement. But these Where-I-Tleases should nevertheless retire and in the line. They are afflicted with that modern insurity called "Pushing to the front." When a strike is on, when the struggling sonis to whom they should be comrudes are appealing for judgment to the glorious unfolding Conscience of the World, looking for the New Commandment, these pushers when they should be lifters choose to faunt the banners of an unsocial egoism. They could turn to the headnunriers of their craft and escape distress. But they do not wish to act with their fellowmen. They mean to get shead of others at whatever cost, stupidly selling the son of man. In effect they would preclude the Great Appenl and stop the functioning of the moral world. They do not see the tide. They are disturbers of the Court of Justice. They must be quiet and listen,

Justice. They must be duled and them, and they will hear the Judge saying something like this:

"Thou shalt work together dilligently for the common good." So, with Markham:-"Come, clear the way, then, clear the day. Break the deed branches from the path:

Our hope is in the aftermath—

Our hope is in herste mon, Stan-led to build the world again. To this event the ages cant Make way for Brotherheed, make for Man?

PRODUCTION OF ADVINCTION

ANOTHER LOCKOUT.

Manufacturars' Association Compale "Shut-Bows" of Firms that Mad Surrendered in Slass Workers' Strike

The glass workers of New York City are gatting an object lesson is united and drastic class action from the organized bosses of that trade. Locals 25, 30, and 34 of the Amalgamated Glass Workers have been on strike for ten weeks, not for any im-provement of their condition, but to resist the proposed increase of 15 per, cent, in the amount of work to be required of them and the proposed intro-duction of a "recommendation certifi-cate" system—in plain words, a blacklisting device. Of the thirty-one shot affected, twelve gave in and agreed to withdraw the offensive propositions. Six of these establishments belonged to the Metropolitan Mirror Manufacturers' Association, the employers' or-ganization dominated by the Pittaburg gantization dominated by the recording Glass Company. The Association promptly came down hard on the firms that had surrendered, with the result that four of them ordered a "shut-tivation of them ordered a "shut--not a lockout, of course-last ionday, and the other two forfeited their mency in the Association. The object of this move is obviously to cut off the support of the remaining strikpra, as the men at work were paying 10 per cent. of their wages to bely

We have not heard Mr. Jerome nor any other Republican or Democratic "friends of labor" raising their voices against this infamous act. A Social Democratic administration, consist-ently with its principles, would instantly have begun legal proceedings against the capitalists who thus conspire to deprive workingmen of the right to work. But the majority of the tollers of New York at the last election decided to put the whole political power into the hands of the employing elass, and the treatment they are now getting is just the result they should have expected.

A NORMAL INCIDENT.

Pennsylvania Ratiroad Swells Profits by Discharging Hundreds of Men and Increasing the Tasks of These Re maining.

A "Times" special from Pittsburg anes that the Pennsylvania Hallroad is rapidly reducing its working force and by Sapt. I will have dis charged 1,500 men. An officer of the onipany, being interviewed, said:
"It is not an unusual thing to re-

trench by reducing the working force, Our lines are doing as much business as ever. • • Our trains have a greater carrying capacity than former cars, more powerful locomotives, and better siding facilities, the economy in the improvements we have made is just becoming apparent, and time will show in the decreased operating ex-

All of which is very fine from the polut of view of the stockholders and condholders of the Pennsylvania Rail-The payroll will be diminished without reducing the income, so that bigger dividence can be declared and prosperity will reign triumphant.

Meanwhile, the remaining railway unlovees will have to work harder nder a greater physical and nervous strain' and with greater danger to health and life. Also the fifteen hun-dred men turned off will have to bunt or other jobs; using up their savings if they have any, until they get poo ployers' hands to strike another blov at the working class.

It is all quite right, from the capital ist point of view, from any point of but that of the Socialist. It is the normal working out of capitalism-more unemployed, harder work for those employed, then smaller wages, and all along bigger and bigger profits. So it will go on until we have Socialions. Then, as equipment is improved, we will lighten the burdens of all the he overworked and none need stand title and hungry.

THE BURDEN OF LABOR.

through the foudal systems from slavery, is the grandson of slavery, in-heriting all the most arbitrary and domineering qualities of its forefather. The masters are supreme. They claim the earth. They fix a fix on raw material before it is produced. They add a profit to it after it is produced. And the various reforms it takes on in a multitude of exchanges as it passes from parasite to parasite often exceeds the reward of labor a hundred

Prospects Ara Bright.

Prospects are bright for the Focis Democratic Party this year. Social'em is more talked of than ever before and the party organization is in good con'i tion to carry on its educational cam carpenters, and butcher workmen-are now in progress and the incidents of these struggles are doing much to make it clear to the workers that Socialism is the only way to peace and freedom in industry. Injunctions, arrests of pickets, and damage suits against the unions are among the delicate attentions by which the bosses and the oldparty politicians in office are trying to "cultivate harmony between Capital and Labor." Nothing abort of a outling of the Social Democratic vota which was 2,100 iast time—is needed to bring these arrogant masters to their Joseph avenue. Here is a free reading ing of agitation district committees room well supplied with literature, and all workingmen and women are invited to avail themselves of it and to become acquainted with the active comrades of the Social Democratic Party. -Let all full in line for work. The committee raised $23.76 and expended $252.35 in the four weeks of its work, and did this without drawing on the funds of the local for a dollar. It turned over to the treasury of the local a balance of $6.41 in cash and some $20 in unpaid subscriptions, most of which will be paid. The committee took up the work without a dollar on hand, but at no time during its existence was it seno time during its existence was it seriously hampered for want of funds. The enthusiasm, liberailty, and self-denial of the comrades was equal to every demand as soon as made. Extraordinary Conduct of the Authorities-Apparent Stupid Duplicity of the Government Explained by Conflict of Old and New Methods of Dealing with the Revolutionary Movement.

It is three days since the cars ed running and Cambler, owner enormous losses. He is negotiating now with the workingmen, who will in all probability gain a victory.

The General Strike,

"Yesterday, absolutely all men em-ployed in various factories and mills quit work. A large crowd paraded the streets and invited all workingmen to join them. All day long we were in the street and were surprised by the quiet and peaceful conduct of so many thousands of workmen. I witnessed several scenes when the crowd of striking people proceeded from bakery to bakery, from building to building, and grew in numbers as they went along. At present the situation is this All waiters at hotels and restaurants, masons, bakers, everybody, is on strike. Mass meetings are arranged for to-day in the outskirts of the city. The workingmen hold separate meet-

"The authorities took no measures until yesterday, when troops patroled the city, but our new Prefect says that until 'signs of riot appear' he would not do anything. Meanwhile the not do anything. Meanwhile the strikers themselves do all in their power to have peaceful demonstra tions and avoid violence and rioting. At least, that is the way they have managed until now; what will occur further on is hard to predict.

"However, the entire city is now threatened with lack of bread and perhaps of water, too. We still have water to-day, but they say that the men employed on the water-works are

"No newspapers were issued to-day. as the printers have also joined the strikers and, in a word, a strike of such magnitude is not remembered here and it ranks next to the recent strike at Baku."

The Authorities' Treachers. How shamefully the promise of the uthorities was broken when the neriousness of the demonstration was fully realized, we know from the press dispatches of inst week. The whole affair is one of the most remarkable and, as presented in the daily press, one of the most puzzling that has ever been reported from that unhappy country. That even Russian Tsarism could deliberately practice such stupid duplicity as to encourage the holding of demonstrations with the purpose of violently suppressing them seemed so incredible that many have been inclined to doubt the truth of the dispatches. We are in a position to give, upon trustworthy authority, an explanation of the affair which, while it takes away some of its melodramatic horror, makes the news still more sig-nificant of the wonderful forces that are at work in the midst of Russian society and the alarm with which they inspire the ruling powers. It is generally known that the Russian revolutionary movement has undergone a great transformation since the days when Stepniak wrote. Con-fined then to a small number of the "intelligent" or cultured class, it pecessarily took on the form of conspiracy, whether for the purposes terrorism or of education. To-day, though the element of secrecy course still remains in much of its work, the revolution has become a widespread and popular movement, a mass movement, appealing to social thought and feeling and showing itself, the workers fell into the trap, turned in public demonstrations by large and organized bodies of students or of workingmen or of both in unima, rather than in individual acts of private justice. However much the Ter-rorists were dreaded by individuals of the court or the bureaucracy, there can be no doubt that the government as such is much more afraid—and with good reason—of the movement in this its latest phase. Especially is this so since the students have thrown off the always rather transparent pretense of siming their protests against scademic grievances and have begun frankly to niake demonstrations on a large sea against the autogracy, and against capitalism itself and also since, with the growth of the great industry, the workingmen have begun to awaken to a feeling of class unity and defiance to put it to the test of practice to some extent, and the Odessa affair is the result of the conflict of the two methods. Nowhere but in Itussia could the preaching of the class struggle be seriously proposed as the basis of a reactionary policy; but in Russin strange things happen. Recognizing that the present strength of the revolutionary forces lies in the union in a mass morement of the wage-workers. impelled by immediate economic interest, with the student body, inspired by humane sentiment and equipped with scientific knowledge, these new-fangled defenders of established insti-tutions argue that the way to weaken the movement is to divide its forces, to allenate the wage-workers, without whose support the revolution can have no real vitality, from the "intelligent" -which is in this case clearly synonymous with the Socialists-who nov but their knowledge at its service. They acknowledge that the wage-workers have serious grievances, that from these, and not merely from the evil "incitement" of the Socialists, arises the popular discontent. They therefore advise that the government set on foot a propaganda among the working people, appenling to their class feeling, calling on them to cul loose from the "intelligent"—in a word to build up what we would call a "pure and simple" labor movement, without any aim beyond immediate gains or any guiding rule but expediency—and to promise to such a movem long as it keeps within these "safe and practical" limits, a certain measure of governmental recognition and patron-age. Thus, it is hoped, the "unformed discontent" of the masses can be diverted from revolutionary purposes and exhausted in numberless petty efforts, while the "intelligent," thus isolated and weakened, can be held in check by the iron hand of the police.

Fallure of the Scheme. For three or four years this plan ha been advocated within the bureaucracy and has gained the assent of such high it into effect in Moscow, in several cities of the West, and in St. Petersburg. Nowhere has it had the ex-pected success, however, and least of all in the cities where the workers are most numerous and intelligent and tribute them among your fellow work-where, therefore, the danger it was intended to avert is greatest. away from the revolutionaries, and-looked for the promised reward of such good behavior. Of course the reward did not come. Of course the government could not fulfil its promises, could not really assist the workers in any important matter against the capitalist class. Then even the stupidest of the dupes began to think for themselves and to realize that they must really depend on themselves, not only without the government, but against it, which is just what the most ardent of revolutionists wish them to learn. The Odersa affair is simply the latest, the biggest, and the most tragic of these failures. The workers took the government at its word, organized, called meetings, and discussed their situation, with the inevitable result that the movement got out of the hands of the government emissaries and grew into a wonderful class demonstration, as described in the letter we have quoted-a demonstration which the government, in self-defense had to suppress.

tains a long article on the causes which led to the general strike in South Russia. The interesting part is that in Baku, where the strikes are taking place, there is a large element of Persian workers, and the latter, thanks to the pressure of events, are also being forced into the movement. That is extremely important as coming from a land where justice is absolutely unknown, or even "rights" of any kind. Workers like the Persians do precent a great danger to the labor quent in other countries. That it does despite the frightful and overwhelming difficulties in its way gives us every hope for the movement, and if Asiatic workers can only be organized then we shall go shead teresting to read also how the Russian tress circumvents the censorship. News of the strikes is only allowed in a very restricted manner, but it is possible to convey the news in an indirect manner, which the Russian reader knows how to appreciate. Unquestion-ably all these hindrances—while they have grave disadvantages for the movement-have the advantage of quickening the intelligence of the members; at a frightful cost it is true. The "Leipziger Volkszeitung" reports that Socialism is making great strides among the Armenian population in South Russia, who were loyal subjects of the Tsar till the government forbade them the use of their own hanguage .--

This adherence to the labor move ment of the Persians and Armenians inRussia, heretofore played off by the capitalists and the government against the Russian workers, is paralisled by a similar tendency among the Japanese and Mexicans on our Parific Coast, by the loyalty to their class of the Pollsh, Bohemiau, Lishuantan, Hungarian, and Italian miners in Pennsylvania and the Cauadian French. THE PARTY'S EMBACM.

FOR PRESIDENT OF BOARD OF ALDERMEN-PETER J. FLANAGAN. Member of Typographical Union No. 6.

In the state of New York, on account of everain provisions of the election laws, the socialist l'arty is ordically recognised under he name of Social Democratic Party, and in emblem in the Arm and Torch, as shown The Socialist Party for Social Democratic Party in New York) should not be confused with the so-called Socialist Labor Party. The latter is a small, ring-ruled, morthund organization which bitterly opposes the trade unions and carries on an abusive cam-paign of simple raginat the real Socialist Borrement, which supports the trade unions.

The Socialist Party (the Social Democratic Entry of New York) has passed through its second general election. Its growing power is indicated and its speedy victory for sindowed by the great increase of its vote as shown in these figures:

THE SOCIALIST VOTE.

The attention of all New Yorkers who believe in the principles of Social Democracy and wish to see the Arm gent ballots in November is now called to the fact that a city campaign fund has been opened, that money is urgently needed to defray the cost of printing literature and hiring halls, that the capitalists are not going to contribute to this fund, that it is therefore incumbust on the Social Demo crats to decide by their acts whether we are to have a good or a poor camaign. This is a case where dalks." All the legal tender that is mow burning the pockets of coursdes and sympathizers of the Socialist movement should speak up at once. Let it not whisper or mumble, but shout its loudest. Let it not be modest, wiving precedence to others. Now by she time, this week, to-day.

· PARKS AND HIS ACCUSERS.

The capitalist papers of New York dy express great surprise at the ova-Rion which Samuel Parks received on being brought back from Sing Sing nat Tuesday. If it were possible for Paultalists to see beyond their noses, to think beyond their money interests of the passing day, they would be in structed as well as surprised.

We do not speak here of the ones kion of l'arks' guilt or innocence, or of ness of the reasonable giount which the capitalists are shocked to find that one judge felt in the matter. If Parks is guilty or if any union offper is guilty of the practises for which he has been convicted, then it is the interest of the rank and flie of the union to put a stop to such practises, by swinterer severity may be necessary. And they will learn this, if they have to learn it by bitter experience. It is all very well to say, as some are saying:

bosses? He did good work for the union at the same time." That sounds plausible, but it is false. No man can long coutinue to serve two masters. The union official who begins by extorting blackmail from bosses while serving the union will very soon end by accepting bribes from bosses to betray the union. It is all very well to say: "Well what if he did get 'graft?" Don't the business men get all the graft' they can? Isn't business a great system of 'graft' from top to bottom?" As an accusation against bis accusers, that is true. But if the charges against him are true, the fact that his accusers are also "grafters" does not justify him. The labor movement has no room for that nort of "business ability." Dishonesty is the breath of life to the capitalist class; to the working class it is a corroding poison. Only on itself

the first requisite is that workingmen should be able to trust and respect each other, as men, not as money-makers. So much for the walking delegate, But how about his enemies? Black as is the guilt of any man who brings corrupt methods into the labor movement, mmensurably blacker is the guilt of those charged by their position with the execution of instice or assuming with their profession the responsibility of truly informing and rightly educating the people, who pervert those high duties to the service of class rule and the safeguarding of capitalist profits. This District Attorney Jerome has done, and this the whole body of capitalist editors of the city have done.

This District Attorney who aspires to be Mayor, perhaps to still higher office, claimed a year and a half ago to have positive information of the criminal practises of some union officers. Did he more against them then? Not he. The time was not ripe. He waited until the moment when capitalist laterests aggregating half a billion dollars had organized a lockout with the avowed purpose of breaking the power of the labor organizations. Then, at the moment when his action would most help the exploiters, at the moment when he could strike, not at the allegedly guilty ones alone, but through them at the whole body of struggling tollers, then he came forward to demund justice against the "grafters." And the purveyors of information and molders of public opinion? Did they try to inform their readers of the facts and the arguments on both sides? Did they counsel moderation and calm judgment? Not for one moment. The instant the signal was given, they sprang like a pack of hungry wolves on the prey. They appealed to ignorant prejudice, to pocketbook selfish ness, to every low passion. It was not justice they wanted, but vengeance. Their minds were made up beforehand what verdict they would have-not against Parks alone, guilty or innocent, but against the militant labor move-

In a word, what Jerome wanted and what the editors wanted, was not to stop corruption in the labor movement -for the day they do that they would render the labor movement doubly strong-but to intimidate the labor movement, to arouse dissension within it, and to discredit it in the eyes of those who tend to sympathise with it.

As usual, winning the victory of a day, they have paved the way to their own downfall on the morrow. By overdoing their vilitiention they have rather strengthened than destroyed sympathy with the labor movement. By the brazenness of their conduct they have opened the eyes of thensouds of hitherto thoughtlessly trustful workingmen and taught them that the enemy of the working class is not and Torch well supported with intelli- nione this or that boss, but all bosses, all political and journalistic friends of the bosses, and the whole system by which the bosses and their parasites > wax fat. The case of The People vs. Parks is only the prelude to the great process of The Working People vs. Caultalism et al. And we know the verdict that the voting jury, after many disagreements, will eventually bring in.

There has been a remarkable incease of late in the efforts of the "respectable citisens" and the official defenders of "law and order" to suppress or hamper the educational work of the Socialist Party. In New York. Pennsylvania, Georgia, Alabama, Nebraska, Colorado, and several other states, as well as in the national capital, with in the last few weeks, our street speakers have been subjected to petty persecution, ranging from the throwing of freerackers by boodiums with the tacit consent of the police to the sentencing of Comrade Fitta at Atlanta to a term in the chain-gang.

The pretense that our meetings in terfere with traffic or disturb public peace and tranquility-unless it be the peace of mind of the profit-grinders that is upset-is too transparent to be considered. So long as the Sairation Army, the Volunteers of America, and the "Holinem" people, with all their paraphernalia of fings, torches, drums, horns, tambourines, and hysterically shricking women, are allowed to make night hideous at will, no fair-minded man can help recognizing that the attempt to forbid Socialists to speak in an orderly manner, without any such noisy accompaniment, is prompted solely by the fear of the wealthy and influential citizens that the "co people" will accept and act upon the ideas which the Socialist speakers set forth.

Equally significant is it that, except in some of the more backward parts of the country where the light of So cialism has just begun to penetrate, the would-be suppressors are as timid and vaciliating in action as they are venomous in intent. They profanely threaten to have speakers arrested and then fail to do it or they have them arrested and fail to press the charges uniess compelled to do so by the fear of counter-prosecution for false arrest. On the whole, the self-righteous "law and order" people are making a said exhibition of themselves. We have every reason, not only to rejoice in the evidence of the growth of our movement which this persecution furnishes, but also to regard without fear and with hearty contempt an enemy so stupid and cowardly.

It is hardly necessary to advise that the comrades everywhere stand firmly for their rights and dely the fawless "respectables." They are doing that already in an admirable manuer and are winning the case before the court of public opinion,

It is not impossible that in the near future we may have to face persecution of a more serious and determined sort. While the capitalist class is constitutionally timid and vaciliating, as we have said, yet it is to be expected that its fury will grow with its suprehension of our growth and may overcome its discretion. The concentration of economic and of political power, which is now going on so rapidly, may work in the same direction, by lending consistency and decision to capitalist policy. It may be that we in America will have to go through an experience like that of our German comrades under the May Laws. We shall not, however, borrow trouble about it. If such a test is to come, we already have hundreds of comrades who would face years of imprisonment for the cause as calinly as they now take the risk of a night in the lock-up. And here in America, as has been the case in other countries, as gold comes out of the fire only nurer than it went in, so the Sochilist movement will be strengthened instead of weakened by any measur of persecution it may have to endure.

We do not court the test, but neither do we fear it. For the present, the thing for us to do is to hurl the gauntlet of definice in the face of our misrulers harder this Election Day than ever before, and to that end to work and work and work, from ucw Innsmuch as it has been proposed that the Socialist Party eugage Ben Tillett, the English labor leader, for an agitation tour in this country, it beomes necessary for us to present to the contrades some facts which have just come to light in regard to Tillett, which would seem to render such action highly inadvisable. From a recent number of the "Labor Leafer," the organ of the British Independen Labor Parfy, we take the subjoined rationer, signed with the initials of J. Klar Hardie. It may be explained that Horatio Bottomly is one of the most victous enemies of the lator movement in England. Hardie writes: "Appeals for financial beln are so common that one is almost afraid to mention any of them particularly. That, however, which is being raised as the Charles Horne Defence Fund is entitled to special consideration. The facts are these: In January last the chairman of the Hackney Labor Council wrote Mr. Ben Tillett informing him that the Liberal and Radical Association had announced him (Tillett) in a printed bill as a speaker at a meeting to be held under its auspices. The letter went on to point out that the Hackney Labor Council, which had fourteen or fifteen trade organizations attiliated to it, was pledged to political independence, and was even then considering the possibility of bringing for-ward a labor candidate under Labor Representation Conference auspices, He therefore suggested to Mr. Tillett that he might reconsider his attitude, and, in the interests of labor and the labor movement, not attend the meeting. Mr. Tillett replied, whereupon the secretary of the Council was in-structed to again write him on the matter. In the course of this second letter the secretary, Mr. Charles liorne, made a reference to Mr. Horatio Bottomley, that paragon of business probity and electoral purity, who is the Liberal candidate for the division, in which, in plain Saxon, he expressed his opinion of the gentleman whose interests, knowingly or other ise, Mr. Tilicit was acting. The let wise, Mr. Tillett was acting. The let-ter; on the face of it, was a privileged communication, but Mr. Tillett passed it on to Mr. Heratlo Bottomley, who thereupon demanded an instant apology, under pain of a criminal or civil action for libel being raised. As no apology was forthcoming, the no approgy was forthcoming, the action is proceeding. At this particular moment, with the case subjudice, I am not free to express all I think and feel concerning the whole incident, but I sincerely trust that trade-unionists, Socialists, and all who see interested in fair play will stand by Mr. Horne in this case." It is hardly necessary to add that in our opinion a man who would do what Tillett has done in this case is utterly unworthy the confidence of the labor movement, and that the less we have to do with him, the botter for us,

UNWORTHY OF CONFICENCE.

PARTY AFFAIRS IN ITALY.

It seems a motion for Turati's exclusion has been put to the executive of the Italian porty's by the Itome tranches. His attitude to the "Avanti," and his attacks on Ferri's revelations of corruption in the Italian government were the chief ground. Ferri is apparently against the exclusion, which seems to me all very well from his personal standpoint, but it is diffi-cult to see that any party could tolerate a "comrade" who has regularly stabled his comrades in the back, and paralyzed their action on all im-portant occasions. I hope that the Italian Socialists will not allow themselves to be governed by sentiment, or their next congress to be awamped by the "straw delegates," with which the Opportunists in France and Italy have bossed the congresses, at is now re-ported that Bissolati and other friends of Turati have demanded that the Roman organization shall deal with Roman organization shall deal with them as it deals with him. Hasolati was the former editor of the "Avanti." It seems probable, says the Roman correspondent of the "Vorwaerts." that the whole issue will have to be fought out in a special congress of the party in the autumn. In the ment-time Ferri has, as editor of the "Avanti," decided that to avoid me "Avantl." deckled that to avoid unnecessary friction the "Avantl" will only report the facts, and that any resolutions which contain personal at tacks are to be omitted. It is imposalbie ros to admire the splendid man-ner in which Ferri has known how to separate his personality from that of the editor of the "Avantl," and to keep up in the latter the strictest impur-tiality. No doubt his position and that of Revolutionary Socialism can only be served by that in the long run, especially when contrasted with the petti-ness which Turati & Co. have shown throngmust.—Jacques Bonhommo, in London Justice.

AGAINST THE "GRAFTERS."

Editor of The Worker;-Allow me to loin my voice to Comrade Spargo's in cornest protest against that feature of our agitation known as the "Central Lecture Bureau." The comrades throughout the country should put their foot down upon all schemes to exploit the party treasury to pay socalled prominent speakers exorbitant rates. Especially should comrades refuse to engage any speaker who allows his advance agent to advertise him in circulars containing such nauscating praises as have been in vogue lately. princies as have been in vogue lately. There is altogether too much of the charlatan and circus feature and too little of principle. Have we grown so fast and so rich that we cannot any longer have speakers who care more for principle than the money there is in it? Shades of Hades! We have baseloes with computer ways a transport of the care speakers who cannot cover expense at $5 a day and fare? How many people are to be paid for one man's services? Socialist speakers should send their terms to the National Bureau and cut out all the money-making schemes. Local New York will take this stand, judging from the feeling among its membership, and no doubt other locals will follow L. A. MALKIEL

AROWTH OF GERMAN PARTY PRESS.

How the German Socialist press grows in influence may be seen by the following examples recently report The Erfurt "Tribune" gained subscribers in the last year. Mr. Joseph Pulitzer, proprietor of from its ideal function of spreading the New York "World," has done the knowledge and stimulating thought the New York "World," has done the thetroity "Times" the honor to ask its opinion of his plan to form a School of Journalism in connection with tolumbia. University, for which he reopinion of his plan to form a School of Journalism in connection with Co-lumbia University, for which he recently set aside $2,000,000.

Discussing the purposes of the school, Mr. Pulitzer says:
"By the foundation of this school it and passions.

In profit for the employer, that makes the editor lie and outrage his conscience and pander to the lowest tastes and passions. is proposed not merely to enlarge and improve the opportunities that are open to young men for a start in life, but to raise and fix the character and standard of the press itself as a moral teacher and a promoter of that Pub-licity which makes for better govern-ment and for the advancement of civilization. Mr. Pulitzer certainly makes no mistake in suggesting the urgent not easily of raising the standard and character of the press, • • •

But in seeking to place the standard and character of the press where they should be by establishing a school for newspaper writers, we think Mr. Pulitzer has made the mistake of applying the remedy to the wrong de-

What American journalism needs in our humble opinion, is not so much a school for newspaper writers, as A REFORM SCHOOL FOR NEWS-PAPER PUBLISHERS.

The publisher, in 10 cases out of 100, is the man who needs the missionary

Newspaper readers, in their inner it; indeed, cence, may not know it; indeed, in ascribing to the editor all that is good or bad in a given paper's policy, ably most of them forget that is such a thing as a newspaper pullisher; but nevertheless, he is the "man behind the gun" and if they were to look through the sights they would learn that with very few exceptions. It is aimed at a string of figures pre-

The newspaper publisher, and not the editor whom Mr. Pulitzer would teach, is the man who is to blame because the standard of the American press is no higher. He is the man who fixes the editorial policy of the naper on vital issues as well as the man whose demand for dividends determines, in great measure what shall be printed in the news colunus and how it shall be printed.

In national campaigns, when great conomic or governmental issues are at stake, he is the man who decides whether the paper shall bolt the ticket, or damn with faint praise the prin-ciples and men whom his cash-register conscience will not permit him openly to uppose.

Nor does the editor pecomarily exerclse much influence in glding the publisher to determine what the paper's policy shall be. On the other hand, the publisher who, quite likely, is a hanker and perhaps a stockholder in a dozen other enterprises, gues OUT-SIDE of his newspaper office for advice. He consults the "huniness interests" of the community—a body of men who, like the celebrated Mr. Croker, are "working for their own pockets all the time"—and when they have decided, without reference to anybody's welfare but their own, which policy if carried into effect would be likely to bring the most dollans into their puckets, the publisher goes tack to his newspaper office and tells bis editor what to do. And the editor, who may hold entirely opposite views, if he happen to be the sort of conscientious man that Mr. Pulltzer would like to develop in to obey orders or hand in his resignation, which he sometimes does, to the glory of the craft.

last year and did good service, but it is good for year-yound educational purposes and we are glad to see it in popular ignorance and straightway goes the order to the editor to fill up the Sunday supplement with hideous fakes and more hideous pictures. The same policy in the treatment of alleged "news" matter is pursued du ing the week with the result that the cash register soon develops a hot be and the judgment of Mr. Barnum the the American public "likes to be humbugged," is again vindicated,

Mr. Pulitzer's School of Journalism will doubtless be able to develop men who can produce newspapers of higher literary and educational value, pro-vided they can find employment after graduation. But * * * * when Mr. Pu-litzer's liberally educated man of unickened conscience does get an editorial position he will quickly find that all of his learning and all of his devotion to the real interests of the public will avail him nothing the first time they can counter to the publisher's plans for keeping all he has and getting all he can.

manned from stem to stem with gradunter of Mr. Pulitzer's school with improving its character, so long as the selfishness of the business office is per-mitted to override the houest convictions of the editor.

The American press is suffering from lack of conscience much more than it is from a lack of literary ability or learning. Considered as a whole, IT IS DOUBTFUL IF THERE IS A MORE FRAUDULENT INSTITUTION IN THE COUNTRY. ON PARASITES,

By William R. Fox.

Furniture, clothing, shoes, and food are theful things. Werkmen who make them are always set down as useful workmen. Yet there are cirture of these things serves a victor purpose and therefore is useless surpose and there worse then useless.

To Illimitate: Suppose a thousand workmen were bired by a highwayman to make facui-ture. From the proceeds of robbery be would pay them waves: then after the furniture was produced he would take an insane delight in ordering them to dump it into a devotring whirlpool, in which it would presently disappear. With their wages the working would purchase their say-port from other working, and too nefarious business would continue to flourish.

Suppose other bandits would produce garments and food on the same plan, paying their employees from the booty of public hold ups, and united onsly destroying the completed prod-uct. You would say that such produc-tion availed nothing.

Hoyers were intolerable nussiness. You would be justified in saying that their working, living on the products of others, bought with the freits of

Nay, more I say that the workmen, on whose goods these workmen paraslice lived, were themselves useings to the full extent to which the labor of

The above is no fancy sketch.

The capitalistic system has thou-sands of privileged overlaws, who take perpetual (dl from society, and with the spod employ millions of working people to make furniture, garmenes, pictures, literature, yachts, palaces, and playgrounds for them, and have an immuserable horde of servants scalors. soldiers, sportingmen, hotel keepers, tradesmen, educators, and entertainers waitles upon them.

It is safe to say that not one third

that it is possible for espitalists to take 63 per cent, of the product of the really useful workers and not cause a perpetual panic. They could seize 90 per cent, and have never a panic, if they found a way to distribute the spoil among the host of parasites and parasite feders whose labor is being actinually cast into the whirliand of whilm and luxury and power

The trouble is, my dear fellow, you don't think. You say that you know that two plus two makes four.

You also say that you know that there is a working class. That's half of the sum. The other half—well, I'll have to tell you the other half. There

The capitalist class is the class that owns the factories that you work in.

Sometimes they allow you to work, but only for one purpose, and that is to produce surplus wealth for them. To make profits—dividends. This capitalist class also owns something else that it needs in order to stay in business—the government. There's the which produces all the wealth and re-ceives only wages in return, just enough to barely live upon. The other "two" is the capitalist class, which owns everything (including the government) and lives in luxury off the toil of the workers, but does nothing. The result (the sum) is that when you strike for better conditions all the powers of government (which is owned by the capitalists) are used to owned by the capitalism's are used to club you into submission.

Now, can you not think? What is the way out of this difficulty? See if you cannot solve it yourself.

You get control of the government. "Strike at the ballot-box." Vote yourself and your class into power. Put workingmen into office. Control this government to suit yourself. "Workingmen of the world, unite; you have nothing to lose but your chains, you have a world to gain."

Talte. Vote your class into control.
Take the wealth which you have creates—the capital. Own it. Operate the factories socially as you do now, but make them the collective property of all and not the private property of a few as at present.

rades of Potter County, Pa., did no prevent three good Socialist meetings in that county and one in an adjoining county. Ben Hanford spoke at Cou dersport on Tuesday, Aug. 25, in the Opera House, half alled with entinal-asts who came through a heavy rain-storm to hear him. He made some telling points in answering arguments pre-sented by the editor of a local Repub-lican paper. The meeting in Port Alle-gany, McKean County, threatened to be a failure, as the drizzle made prospects for an open-nir meeting very doleful, drums a good crowd was gathered, and Comrade Hanford held their ful attention, notwithstanding threaten thus a start has been made in a nev field. The meeting in Austin on Sun day afternoon was a complete success spain, notwithstanding a heavy rain just before the meeting. A social reception was given to Comrade Hanford in the evening, attended by about thirty of the most active com-rudes and their wives. Refreshments were served and music by Socialist nembers of the local orchestra, with impromptu addresses by some of the omrades, and a short but extrem attresting and instructive talk Comrade limford made the evening one of the most enjoyable in the history of the Socialist movement in Aust n.

writes: "Last Friday evening was an exciting time in Wilkinsburg. The members of the new local there were enjoying a visit from Comrade Taylor of Philadelphia. A very good meeting was in progress when the Rurgess hurried up to say that the meeting must be discontinued. Then followed a lively few minutes. Comrade Taylor asked for the ordinance which empowered the official to inter-fere with us. Naturally this was not in evidence. The Burgess would car-tainly have remained in also office if hy had foreseen how much his "digalty" would suffer by his encounter with th meeting was with Commide Taylor The interruptions, however, were not over, for no sooner was the audience once more thoroughly interested in the speech than a fire-clarm startled everye, and out ruttled the brigade, stationed only a few yards away. The general opinion was that the alarm was false, the only object being to break up the meeting. This proved to be true, but the petty trick signally fuiled. The people simply stepped to one side and ironically cheered the firemen as they passed. Certainly we must be making great headway even in respectable Wilkirsburg to such miserable methods in their en-deavor to stop free speech. The mest-ing continued until a late hour, and the interest was sustained throughout. There was a continual rush of que been there still. He is to be with m again next Friday, and we await de-velopments. It would be impossible to have anyone here better able to carry on a campaign and to increase our subership by educational work than Comrade Taylor, who gives his Socialism will be in evidence in old New Hampshire on Labor Day. The holiday will be observed at Claremont by appropriate exercises on an elabte scale and an address by Dr. Gibbs Worcester, Mass., under the direc-m of Claremont Local, Socialist Party. Local Franklin will have a 80cialist Labor Day speaker. At Canobic Lake the day will be signalized by a three-cornered debate — Republican. Democratic, and Socialist. Leading speakers of the three parties have nised to take part.

Dr. Howard A. Gibbs of Worceste. Mass., delivered a most interesting, scholarly, and forcible address on "Industrial Peace" at the Peace Convention in Mystle, Conn., Thursday afternoon, Aug. 27, treating his subject from the standpoint of the Socialist and speaking to the largest attendance of the conference. Quite a number of Socialist bookiets were purchased at the close of his speech. In the evening he spoke to a large crowd on the main street of the town. The Mystic Band furnished music. A handsome collection was taken up, now members received, and literature sold.

Comrade Brown is again laid up with a severe cold, and was obliged to cau-cel all of his dates subsequent to Aug. 25. He will not atempt public speaking again until after Labor Day.

Local Bridgeport had, two of the most successful meetings ever held there last week. On Monday there was a hall meeting and the hall was packed. The speakers were J. W. Brown and Sol. Fieldman. As was to be expected, the results of the work of those two able exponents of Socialism were very gratifying, twenty subscriptions for The Worker being taken and twonty-one applications for membership re-ceived, besides disposing of about $5 worth of literature. On Tuesday night was held the largest open-air meeting ever held in Bridgeport, Comrades Brown and Fieldman again being the speakers. More subscriptions for party papers and also more applications for membership were taken, besides se,ling a large quantity of literature.

Comrade McFarlan of Filmt, Mich. writes: "State Organizer Lamb is do-ing a grand work. He is tireless, energetic, and efficient. We believe that he has found a treasure in Dr. S. A. Knopfnagel, who has been in the state since July 22. Dr. Knopfnagel has talked Socialism in Muskegon, Muskegon Heights, Grand Rapids, Ionia, Lansing, Williamston, Owesso, and Flint. Everywhere he goes the comrades take new heart, and realize that they must be doing something them-selves and not waiting for others. He explains to them the necessity of the dues-paying system, and has had remarkable success in rousing enthu-siasm for sound organization. In Grand Rapids he reorganized the local and established ward branches, be sides organizing a German branch with eighteen members. In Ionia be organized a local with twenty-six charter members, and in Lansing one with twenty-nine members, seven of whom were women. In Williamstown he ob-tained nine members. We had him in Filint for six lectures, and he brought many new members into our local. He also met with the State Local Quorum and gave us valuable advice. His lec-tures were model expositions of clear-cut revolutionary Socialism, showing that Socialism stands for the interests of the working class and of the working class only. THE INDUSTRIAL HELL

Some of the department stores have reached the same of perfection in child-slavery by employing small girls to act as cash and bundle clerks. For many years past, boys, ranging from ten to fifteen years of age, have been employed in this capacity, but the mod-ern up-to-date establishments find boys too expensive and have substituted girls.

Last week I had occasion to go through one of these instituions, and, although accustomed as we have be-come to the employment of child labor, one cannot view with indifference the sight of this small army of female slaves, and despise a system that permits a soulless corporation to test away from the mother's breast these innocent babes, and place them in the capitalistic mill of slavery, there to griad out their young life's blood on the satanic altar of profits.

Clad in a regulation uniform of red, with a brass tag on the shoulder, these child slaves, who are known only by the number on their check, toll through the long days, running hither and thither in obedience to the sharp commands of the overseer, carrying cast and bundles in many cases larger than the tots themselves. As I looked of their pale, care-worn faces, from which the animated look of health and happy youth had flown forever, I was reminded of the fact that these children their vital powers supped in this ludus trial hell, would be expected to become

Yes, the masters of the bread tell t that girls are cheaper than boys, for boys are needed in the shop to operate the machine which takes the place of men; boys are needed to shine th shoes of the master class, and in othe ways to assist in supporting the working class home, for the father is displaced by the machine and is among the ever increasing army of the uneu ployed. And so the buby girl is taken from the home and mother's care, and entered in the struggle for bread.

Imagine, if you can, the dreary life led by these child workers, who month after month, and year after year, per-form their never ending task and then ask yourself if it is surprising that after a few years of this haudi-capped strife, these girls are forced to suicide or a life of shame. Any protest on the part of working girls, tha their mengre wage is not sufficient for food, shelter and cluthing, brings the same capitalistic response as given by a Chicago dry goods king to his female employees, who upon asking for wages sufficient to enable them to live re-ceived this reply? "Why, girls, you are all fair looking; why don't you

Go and ask the thousands of young women on the streets why they are there, and they will tell you they have simply followed the advice of the capi-talistic masters, and bartered their honor for bread. Look at the daily press, teeming with spicidal records and the ident Potter's Pield, mutely bearing testimony to those who, rather than face the struggle longer, have chosen the bullet or the poison draught.

These are the conditions facing the young tollers of to-day. Told by the modities to be bought and sold, toil ing year after year, yet deprived of the common necessities of life, with-out a single ray of hope, is it not to be expected that the unhappy victim of commercial strife will ultimately end the struggle by a few brief mouths of dissipation, or bring the grim tragedy of life to a close by suicide? Think of this, you fathers. Is it for this pur-pose that you bring up your children? Is your paternal love so dwarfed that you permit the master class to place you on the level of the borne and cow and rear your young for profit! Has your manhood and sense of moral right become so seared by the coudtions of commercial serfdum, that you are willing to perpetuate this system of wage-slavery?

But the master class must have profits, you think? Yes, the idlers must have palaces, while the tollers live in hovels; the rich must have all the pleasures and comforts that labor can produce, and spend their useless lives in idle wautonness and gluttony, while the tollers pour out their very life blood at their masters' feet But the star of hope is rising through the gloom. We bear the march of thoucry sloud against this infamous sys-tem which makes men fiends and coins the soul and sinew of the nation into profits. And as this fast increasing hand of revolutionists register their o'er a nation of happy and contented people, secure in the pur rights and the full product of their toil, while in the receding darkness of the industrial hall we see capitalism, ignorance, and slavery cowering into the dark caverns of oblivion.

THE CURSE OF CHILD

Chief Factory Inspector Edgar T. Davis of Illinois, writing in the "Woodworker" on child-labor in that state, gives a statistical table classify ing the employees in nearly twenty thousand milis, factories, and work-shops in about fifty specified indus-tries. Out of a total of 512,000 persons employed, 90,000 were women. over 7,000 were girls under sixteen, and nearly 12,000 were boys under that age. In a word, nearly one-fourth of the total number employed belonged to one or the other of these three cate gories, none of whom, if the interests of humanity instead of the require-ments of capitalist profit were to be consulted, ought to be found in the industrial barracks or dungeous known as mills and factories. In many other states the proportion is even larger.

value of his product now appropriated by the capitalist, would enable the men to maintain pleasant homes and set the women free for the domestic and social and educational dutie which at least ninety-nine out of every hundred normal women would prefer; and it would take those boys and girls out of the shops and keep them in the home, the school, the college, and the MACHINE TO LAY BRICK? "Cosmon." a Paris paper, reports that a practical machine for laying brick, or rather for adjusting them af-ter they have been hild by hand, has been invented by John H. Knight of Barfield, England. The machine does the mortar and the placing of the brick roughly upon it. It is alleged that, besides reducing the standard of skill required in the trade, the ma-chine will enable the same number of men to lay a much larger number brick in a day. The effect of the introduction o such a device, under capitalism, would be, of course, to throw a considerable number of bricklayers out of work and lower the wages of the others. Under Socialism, the effect would be simply to shorten the hours of labor for all.

The invention of a workable brick laying machine has several times bee announced, and it is not yet certain whether this latest announcement is more reliable than the others. How ever, since Mergenthaler, after many years of study and after many fail-ures, succeeded in perfecting a ma-chine to set type, it is reasonable to suppose that machines can be made to do almost any other kind of labor, however-arduous or complex.

THE ERA OF POVERTY.

The unheard-of miseries, not to be paralleled in the history of man that appeared with the rise of machine industry, are spreading and invading from year to year, new countries and new strata of society. Never, even in the worst days of chattel slavery, were children, ten or twelve years old, condemned to work ten or twelve hours a day; never, in any society, was the producing class crushed by later so brutalizing, so dangerous, so unhealthy; never was it decimated in the flower of its age by such maladies-impoverishment of the blood, scrofula anemia, rachitis. The strikes which peeur daily expose the frightfu poverty of the working class. TUBERCULOSIS AND POLITICS.

A Question of Life and Death-"Science Points Out the Remedy with Unerring Finger, but Vested Interests Cry No!"

Many papers all over the country are reprinting the following paragraph from an article in the "Times-Bee" of that it is a question that only the doctors are competent to deal with and that laymen should leave alone.

Consumption is as unnecessary as smallpox. We live in a vitinted air at home. We breath foul, dirty, poisoned air abroad and the bacillus attacks us in our weakened state. We can pre-

The "habit" of dying from tuberculosis is a fearfully prevalent one in the tene-If we speak here with purticular reference to the tenement-dwellers of New York City, the reader may bear in mind that our words ap-ply with almost equal force to Boston and Philadelphia and Baltimore, to Chicago and St. Louis and San Francident and from overwork we shall speak at another time. fellow wage-workers, what tubercule You who read have seen see means. For who read have seed dear friends, perhaps a brother or a wife or a child, struggle bravely through months or even years, only to fall before that dread disease. Perhaps you who read already have its germs in your own lungs and already foresee your doom. At least you are aware that the danger encompasses you on every hand and that you know no way to guard against it.

Forty Thousand Victims.

Dr. Erust J. Lederle, Commissioner of Health, has informed The Worker that the records of his office show that there are between thirty and forty thousand known consumptives at this moment in this one city. It may safely be assumed that there are as many more whose condition has not yet at-tracted the attention of physicians. But let us slick to the figures as they stand. Do you realise what they mean? They mean that to every hundred people—men, women, and children—in this city, there is at least one onsumptive. 'It means that TO EVERY TENEMENT HOUSE THERE IS A CONSUMPTIVE, doomed to a lingering death and, worse yet, A CENTER SPREADING INFECTION TO HIS FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS.

the crowded districts will tell you that consumption is increasing at a fearful rate and that he can hope no more for his patients than to alleviste their suffering a little and to extend a little their wretched lease of life.

A Owestien for You.

There are the facts for you: The te from consumption are and rapidly increasing; The exists chiefly and originates the city is daily exposed to infection in the tenements, in the workshops, and in the streets. YOUR friends and neighbors are suffering; YOU and YOUR FAMILY are in danger. What are YOU going to go?

that if is a question that only the doc-tors are competent to deal with and that laymen should leave alone. If so, you are mistaken. The doctors will tell you that they are powerfees, by themselves, before this greatest pestilence of modern times. What does the doctor prescribe to the tuberculous patient? Medicine? Yes, some medicine. But he frankly says that medicine alone will do no good. In order that his medicines may ir abroad and the remains of constructions of constructio the wisest physicians in the world can hardly hope to cure you, once you are infected.

So you see, the prevention and cure of tuberculosis is primarily not a question of medicine, but a question of sanisation; it is not drugs that we need, but BETTER LIGHTED AND RETTER VENTILATED DWELL INGS AND PLACES OF EMPLOY-MENT, SHORTER HOURS OF WORK IN ORDER THAT WE MAY HAVE MORE TIME TO GO TO THE PARKS OR THE BEACHES, AND MORE PAY FOR OUR WORK IN ORDER THAT WE MAY GET BETTER FOOD THE YEAR 'ROUND AND GET A COMFORTABLE YA-CATION IN THE COUNTRY EVERY RUMMER.

The doctors cannot provide these things for you. But you can get them, you workingnen, for YOU HAVE THE VCTER.

From the municipal platform of the Social Democratic Party of New York—the Socialist Party, as it is called in other states—we quote:

"In the crowded tenements the "In the crowded tensments the almost exclusively proletarian disease, tuberculosis, is rampant, on account of the unsanitary conditions prevailing there, which the people themselves cannot overcome. Science points out the remedy with unerring finger, but the 'Reform' administration dare not power to that direction because Vested. the remedy with unerring flager, but the 'Reform' administration dare not move in that direction because Vested Interests cry No."

there will be pienty of younger toners to take your places. Therefore they insist on your working long hours and working at the highest possible speed, leaving you neither leisure nor strength for outdoor exercise and recreation. They keep your wages down as low as they can and at the same time they raise the prices of the things you have to buy, so that you and it impossible to provide project food and clothing for yourselves and your families. Your employers save expense and so increase their profits by crowding as many as possible of by crowding as many as possine of you into small, unventilated, diniy lighted workshops, filled with dust and foul odors. All these conditions sap your vitality and render you an easy prey to disease. The poverty which you have to endure in order to make profit for them forces you to send your children into the workshops, too, so that in their tender years their constitutions are undermined and the way opened for disease.

Thus the DAILY INTEREST OF THE EMPLOYERS, the system that gives them a profit on your labor, REQUIRES CONDITIONS THAT FOSTER TUBERCULOSIS and other diseases among you.

Rent-Roll vs. Health.

Your landlords' interest works in to get as many tenants upon a given consumption is both preventable and | area as he can. Space for light wells is wasted space in his eyes. The higher his tenements, the amalier the light wells, the fewer the windows, the narrower and darker the haits and narrower and darker the bails and stairways, the more contracted the two years ago—was over twenty thousand."

Iv. Herman M. Briggs, in charge of the pathological and bacteriological cold basiness proposition with him, soil a question of bealth. Your health weights for nothing against his bank account. He does not have to live in those uncomfortable, dangerous, dis-ease-breeding holes. The more uncom-fortable, dangerous, and unhealthful they are, the pleasanter his Fifth Avenue mansion and his country villa. If you die of consumption, there are other tenants to take your place, and he will cheerfully add a dollar to the

These landlords and employers are the "eminent citizens," of our metropo-lis. Some of them are high in the councils of Tammany Hall. Others shine in the ranks of so-called Reform. This capitalist class dominates both the old parties, as well as the hybrid coalition that is now in office. It sup coalition that is now in office. Your lives are in danger. Science points the way to safety with unarring finger, but the Vested Interests of employers and landlords say No! and the CAPITALIST PARTIES OBEY.

The Only Hope.

One party and one alone is free from their control. The Social Democratic ik, too, Party—the New York division of the Socialist Party of the United States and of the world—is a party of the working class. The great majority of its members are working people. Its candidates are all either-workingmen or men who have thrown in all their lot with the working class and proven their fidelity to it. Its platform is devoted only to working-class interests and to the working class alone it pledges its candidates and appeals for support at the polls. Its funds are drawn from the self-imposed does of its active members and the voluntary contributions of thinking workingmen. From the working class alone has it anything to hope, to the working class it owes its sole allegiance, and faith-fully serving proletarian interests is for it the path of pradence as well as of duty. In the face of this great scourge of tuberculosis, which costs thousands of workingmen their lives every year only one of the many evils of capital ism-the Social Democratic Party ties are dominated by the dividend-rate and the rent-roll, the Social Demo-cratic Party THINKS AND WILL ACT FOR THE COMFORT, THE HEALTH, THE LIVES OF THE TOILING MASSES.

One more piece of evidence that s 'new" South is growing up that call for new political and economic ideas among the toilers of that section, is furnished by the news that the New Orleans Stenmahin Association, which includes every steamship line entering that port, has responded to the de-mands of the Longshoremen's, Screw-men's, Stevedores', and Freight liandiers' Unions for an improvemen of their conditions by locking out eight and that they propose to show the workingmen that they are going to "run their own business in their own way." Labor conflicts on such a scale as this, however conservative are the present political opinions of the working people, cannot but he the prelude to a recognition on their part of the fact that they have class interests dis-tinct from those of their employers and explofters to be served by political action on class lines. FOR THE DAILY.

A Call to Renewed Effort · This Fall.

Progress of the Fund for the Publication of a Socialist and Trade Union Daily Hewspaper.

During the summer the work for the Daily Globe has been almost at a standstill, but as the heated term is about over, comrades are urged to take up the work again with renewed vigor. A daily Socialist and trade union newspaper is an immediate necessity to the movement. The growth of the party has created an imperative need for a daily organ. And a newspaper uncompromisingly voicing the interests of the working class and telling the truth every day about the machinations of capital will be a wereque reinforcement to the trade unions, now being attacked from every side by all the manifold forces of capitalism. The publication of the Daily Globe therefore of greatest importance b the cause and every worker who reads this should resolve to strain every effort to the end that the paper can be published in time for the national cam-paign of 1904 to show the working class its true position in society and the way out of wage slavery into real freedom under the Co-operative Com-

Their Federation to Be Independent.

A Rebuke to DeLeon and a Moral Vio tory for Our Party at the Convention of the Italian Socialist Federation.

The first convention of the Federa sione Socialista Italiana (Italian Se cialist Federation was opened Sunday, Sept. 5, amid great Enthusiasm at Chertino's Hall, in West Holoken, N. J. There were thirty-three delegates representing a number of different states, and many visitors.

G. M. Serrati, editor of the Italian Socialist dully paper, "Il Proletarlo," called the convention to order, and made some appopriate remarks, welcoming the delegates and impressing them with the importance of their work.

The order of business was as follows: Report on condition of the Executive Committi—Nerrati, Vasconi; rejort on condition of "Il Protestario"—Olivies; report on the Socialist Library—Ruffe; report on the Socialist Committee of the Followick Control the Socialist Committee of the Followick Committee attitude of the Federation toward the Socialist Labor Party and the Socialist Party- Dellaira.

On Monday the delegates continued the unfinished work of the preceding day, thongratulatory telegrams were received from different quarters urging the convention to strictly adhere to the uncompromising tactics of laternational Socialism.

A letter was then rend from the Secretary of the International Socialist Bureau at Brussels to the effect that said Bureau recognizes the Socialist Party as the Socialist organization of America, and that the Socialist Labor Party is not attiliated with the luternational Hureau.

An able report by G. Lavagnier of Vermont on the formation of co-operative stores was then read and discussed at length. It was the sense fund before next summer.

The New York Daily Globe Conference needs Thursday, Sept. 10, at $\cap{0}{2}$ East Fourth street and all delegates are urged to attend promptly.

NEW PLEDGES.

Workmen's Sick and Death Design of the convention to organize co-operation of the convention to organize co-operation where conditions were more favorable. In the afternoon seasion Servati took the floor and under a counter-report took the floor and under the floor an wrote against the Rocialist Party (in New York Social Democratic Party) was exaggerated and in many respects untrue. That he knew the commides of the Socialist Party to be loyal and class-conscious. Defects there were 0.1 both sides, the Socialist Party being somewhere too slack and broad and the Socialist Labor Party too narrow and arregant. The papers of the So-cialist Labor Party contain no Social-ism, but only abuse and insuits against the other Socialist Party, and Socialists whom he knew to be alone reproach. He was not in favor of that brand of Socialism and wanted to see the two parties united. He stood for an uncompromising policy, but not for any sect. The Socialist Labor Party is not known in many states and cou rades supporting it are thus compelled to remain passive. The International Congress recognizes the Socialist Party. He was decidedly against the Socialist Labor Party tactics toward the trade unions. In closing he subunited a resolution to the effect that while the Italian Socialist Federation was, on general principles, with the Socialist Labor Party, a local might, in places where there was no Socialist Labor Party ticket, vote for the So-cialist candidate who stood for clear and uncompromising principles.

A warm discussion followed Serra-olution and for a time things were quite lively. A number of counter-resolutions were offered by the Socialist Labor Party adherents. Before they were put to votes a delegate from the Socalist Labor Party, who, accerding to the old constitution of the Federation was entitled to have the floor but no vote, tried to may something 250 through Comrade Ledeschi as interpre ter. His efforts, however, were not crowned with success, for he found that the Italian delegates had minds of their own, and he was rebuked when he told them to keep their eyes open.

The different resolutions were then condensed into one to decide whether the Federation was to be with the So cialist Labor Party or absolutely independent of either of the two nar ties. Nineteen delegates voted for in-dependence and the severing of all re-lations with the Socialist Labor Party

The Italian Socialist Federation was declared independent of the Socialist Labor Party, and Julius Hagner, the delegate from the National Manual Committee of the Socialist Labor Party. Executive Committee of the Socialist Labor Party then left the hall.

Labor Party then left the hall.

The election of the executive officeratof the Federation then came up. Q. M. Serrati declined the nomination for any foffice, but will continue to edit "Is Proletario" until another editor is procured. The delegates, appreciating the good work accomplished by him for Socialism and the Federation, inaisted on his accepting the secretary-ship, but he refused. It was voted to sist Comrade G. Piva of Italy to ac-cept the editorship of "Il Proletario." A motion was then made and carried to cover the balance on the Socialist Block of Barre, Vt., a co-operative Rioney Needed at Once to Carry on the Campaign in New York City-Don't Delay.

Fellow Workingmen of the City of New York:-Once more the Social Democratic Party enters the field in a municipal campaign, uncompromis-ingly advocating the interests of the working class. We call upon you to look back over the history of the present "Reform" administration and o recognize that it has done no more for our class than did the Tammany administration that preceded it. Wher-ever the interests of Capital and Labor are in conflict the Republicans and the Democrats and the "Reform-eis" alike consistently serve the interests of Capital. The organiza teresis of Capital. The organiza-tion of the capitalists in Trusts and Cambines, in Landlords' Associations and Merchants' Associations and Employers' Associations has gone stendily on, with the consent or the approval of old-party leaders. Your organizations, on the contrary, are constantly hamperod and per-ecuted through the un-restrained lawlessness of the ex-ploiters and the perversion of the law itself to their service. Here, as in every other part of the world, the wage-workers stand face to face with a combination of the most powerful interests for our ensiavement, and only by prompt and united political action can our liberty be established. The Social Democratic Party carries on a great campaign of education to unite the working class at the polis. It needs your help in that work. As the organized employers and landlords and the great corporations will con-tribute to the campaign funds of both-old parties, for the purpose of corruptin and confusing and dividing the voters, so we call upon you, our fellow workingmen of every trade, to con-tribute to the extent of your ability to the campaign fund of the Social Democratic Party, that the light of knowledge and reason may be carried into every workshop and every tenement in

MURDER FOR PROFIT UNPUNISHED.

New Jersey Trolley Case Adds One More to the List of Capitalist Crimes Condoned by Capitalist

Once more the public authorities, or to the becatomis reasted annually ominated by capitalist interests in the aggregate, here one, there two through the Democratic and Repuls or three or a dezen, in the confagra-Jean parties, have decided that the men who live in luxury without useful labor by the ownership and control of the means of production and transportation shall not be held responsible when other people are killed in their profitable operation. Seven months ago a trolley car of the North Jersey Street Railway Com many, loaded with children on their may, somed win emirren on tear way to school, crashed into a train of the Pennsylvania Railroad at a grade crossing in Newark, and several of the children were killed and others hor-ribly injured. Under the pressure of public opinion the Grand Jury indicted and the Public Prosecutor proceeded against Alexander J. Sassatt, John D. Crimmins, Edward F. C. Young, and Crimmins, Edward F. C. Young, and eight other directors and high officers of the two closely affied corporations. Last week the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Essex County, Chief Justice Gummere presiding and Justices Dixon and Van Byckle assenting, directed the jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal. The court took the matter out of the jury's hands, declaring ter out of the jury's hands, declaring that the facts were clear and only a question of law was involved.

They Are Satisfied.

That ends the case. The men who make profit by maintaining grade crossings and inadequate equipment go free. The accused, the judges, and the lawyers on both sides have exchanged courtesies and say they are satisfied with the result. The children are dend; they cannot express their views. The question remains: Are you, workingmen voters—you who make no profits, rou whose lives and whose children's lives are endangered every day for the capitalists' profits-are you Remember, this is not an isolated nor an exceptional case.

Like Crimes in the Past.

Call to mind the Tarrant explosion in New York, three years ago. Workingmen and working girls were killed through the obvious profitable lawless-ness of the proprietors. An indictment was brought against those proprietors. Tammany Democrat Gardiner was then District Attorney; he let the case lie. Reform Democrat Philibin suc-ceeded him; he let the case drag for months and then asked the court to dismiss it. The Tarrant murderers go

Rocall the New York Contral tunnel borror of a year and a half ago. For years the officers and directors had known that tunnel to be a death-trap. Within a few weeks before the dis-nater their attention was called to it by their subordinates. They took no action. The death-trap was profitable. Then nearly a score of lives were crushed out in an instant. Reform District Attorney Jerome showed his strengous sense of duty at once. He got an indictment, not against William K. Vanderbilt, not against Chaultey M. Depew, but against Engineer Wisker, the man who had no control over the tunnel, who had only to obey orders or lose his job, and who barely escaped with his life on that terrible day. Wisker lay in jall for months, but the Vanderbilts and Depew and their accomplices go free. Recollect the Windsor Hotel fire of 1800. Sixteen persons were killed on the spot, several mortally injured, and about sixty others burt. Eibridge Gerry, Philanthropist and Reformer, owned and controlled the building. He had long known that it was unsafe. But it was a good business investment and he refused to spend money even to provide adequate fire-escapes. Four years have passed; Booile Democrat On Gardiner, Honest Democrat Palibla. and Fusion Reformer Jeru ie linve held the office of District Attorney; Gerry still goes free and poses as a Christian philanthropist and a respectchle gentleman.

ing collapse of 1838. Fordinsky and his agents acted on husiness principles -save expenses now, let human lives take their chances to-morrow. Work-ingmen's lives were the stake and they were lost. But neither Proprietor Fordinsky nor any of his partners in guilt went to the chair for it. Gardiner, went to the chair for it. Gardiner, Philbin, and Jerome, again, are the District Attorneys who have shielded the murderers.

Hemember that "jerry building" did not begin with Fordinsky, as witness the John B. Ireland Building collapse of 1895, in which fifteen men were ernshed to death. The Coroner's Jury found it a plain case of criminal neg-ligence and pointed out the five men whose greed for profit and boodle had caused the disaster. Within two months they were indicted by the Grand Jury, Eight years lacking one month have passed since that indiction the state of the control of the trict Attorney Fellows did nothing; Republican Olcott followed him and did nothing: Democrat Gardiner and then Phillbin and then Jerome followed Olcott in office, and the crime remains unpunished.

These are but a few of the more striking cases in this locality within recent years. We might double the list. We might recite the explosions in coal-mines-absolutely preventable. according to the testimony of expert inspectors—in which many hundreds of workingmen are slaughtered every year, as at Fraterville, Coal Creek, and the Cambria mines within the last few tions of fire-trap teneficits. But it is needless to swell the catalogue of Murder for Profit.

"Murder" the Only Word.

PRICE 2 CENTS.

Is it too severe a phrase-"Murder for Profit"? Not a whit.

The Vanderbilts claim that they are entitled to the dividends and interest as a reward for the labor of superintending its operation. Young and Cus-satt and Crimmins chim that they earn their incomes by directing the operation of the Pennsylvania Rullroad and the North Jersey Street Railway system. Claiming the reward, they cannot be excused from the responsibility. Grade crossings and congested tunnels and imperfect brakes and switches and an insdeanate and over-tasked working force are maintained because these Captains of Industry save expenses and increase profits thereby. He who has power to prevent a fatal diameter and does not prevent it and who profits by the con-ditions which cause the disaster is as guilty of murder as the burglar or highwayman who stays the victing with his own hands.

Murder for Profit is condoned by the officers of the law and protected by the courts of justice.

Why Murderers Go Free.

Why? Because you, workingmenyou whose labor creates all profits, you whose lives and whose chil-dren's lives are endangered—you send Young's kinsman, Alian Machermont, to Congress; you send Vanderbilt's to Congress; you send Vanderbill's valet, Chauncey M. Depew, to the Senate; you olect Cassatt's friends, Low and Jerone, to be your Mayor and your District Attorney; you put power_siternately life the hands of Crimmins' Tammany associates and of terry's philanthropic friends. You, natered of respecting yourselves and your class instead of relying on yourselves. your ciasa, instead of relying on yourselves and your class, bow down to the men whom your labor has clothed in broadcloth and housed in mainslons; at the ballot-box you put your neck under their foot and then you wonder that you are trampled up What is Your Life Worth.

This Chief Justice Gummere, some five years ago, in cutting down the jury's verdict of damages against a railway company, ruled that the life of a workingman's child is not worth more than one dollar. Instead of cirlying him in disgrace from the beach be has polluted, your votes, workingmen of New Jersey, have kept him in power to dispense injustice against your class. You, working men of New York, have put millionaire merchants and corporation lawyers and landlords and railway directors in office to make laws and execute them against your class. While you continue to vote so, your class will go on paying its yearly tribute of blood to the drones of so-ciety and when you ask for judgment they will laugh you to scorn.

TROUBLE IN THE COAL REGIONS.

"The Christian Gentlemen to Whom God Has Given Control of the Propcrty Interests" Are Brazenly Bracking Promises and Locking Mon Out.

The Pennsylvania Coal Kings are not losing any opportunity to demonstrate their had faith and their inten-tion to obey the decisions of the only so long as it shall suit their in mediate pocket-book interests to do so, While men are being laid off at many mines and Haer of the Reading, the Annointed of the Lord, is openly threatening a general shutdown on the verge of winter, to keep prices upand incidentally, no doubt, to give the miners a lesson—the Lehigh Company, operating thirteen colheries, has chosen the same moment to issue an arbitrary order requiring the workers to enter the mines an hour earlier every morning, alleging that it inkes an hour for the men to get to their places and ready for work and that this must be done on their own time.

This order, being at once an imcisions and an intolerable imposition upon the men, whose health already suffers greatly from the length of time they have to pass underground, is very likely to cause serious trouble. employees refused to obey it and several hundred have already been locked in consequence.

While an extensive strike or this season would involve much greater and for the people who need cost, than did that of the summer of 1502, the men are not in the mood to submit tamely to capitalist aggressions and it is ante to say that such a conflict, directly provoked by the arrogance and peridity of the companies, would do even more than did the former one to sway public opinion against the per-ulcious system of private ownership.

The coal companies will probably use dilatory methods to postpone a definite conflict till after Election Days and the best way in which the mine workers can safeguard their interests at the present time is to ensure a good increase of the Socialist vote on Nov. months; or the rearly lists of thousands and killed, tens of thousands crippled, in railway "accidents" due to the imperfect equipment of the roads, the maintenance of grade crossings, and the overwesting of the amployees;

TEACHING CLASS HATRED BY OBJECT-LESSON

This week's news from Colorado is a fitting sequel to the news of a mouth

Then, officials of striking unions at Idaho Springs were arrested on trumped-up charges of having conspired to blow up certain works with dynamite. We say "trumped-up" charges with perfect confidence, because the fact that the accusers did not dare to depend upon courts and furies to try the case is sufficient proof that they had no evidence against the accused. After the men had been hald in confinement for a few days, a mobgens' Alliance, took them from the fall one night and "ran them out town." with a warning that their lives would not be safe if they ever returned to disturb the blessed harmony between Capital and Labor. The unious appealed to Governor Penbody for protection and redress. He answered by referring them to the Sheriff who had deliberately surrendered his prisoners

Now, it is the capitalists of Cripple Creek who have appealed to Govern Peabody for protection, for protection was reported simultaneously with the ldaho Springs affair-biring men from a distance under false pretenses, bringing them in to act as scale without giving them any opportunity to find out the facts, keeping them under guard of thugs armed with Winchesters as they passed from the locked cars that brought them in to the prison-stockade where they were These facts have been re ported in plain words in the "Post," a is for protection in such criminal methods of crushing labor organisagious and so safeguarding profits that leading capitalist paper of Denver. It the mining capitalists appealed to the Governor. And he did not refer the to the Sheriff. He did not hesitate. He saw his "plain duty" before him and he acted stresuously in the service of the great god Profit that his class worships. He straightway sent militia to assist the private army of rafilans enlisted by the company in intimidating the discontented workers and preventing them from communicating with the unconscious and unwilling

And then President Roosevelt tells us that the real line of division is not between the rich and poor, not between the employers and the workers, but between the good employers and workers and the bad ones, and warns the tollers of this prosperous country. where justice is free to all and all are equal before the law, to pay no heed to the agitators who would set class against class. It is not words, but deeds, that count in the long run, Mr. President. You tell us that we enjoy equality and justice. But we see hat workingmen may be kidnapped through fraud and compelled to work as seabs through force and that other workingmen may be taken from the hands of the law by rioters in broadcloth and that you shut your eyes to the fact, that you utter no word of protest though a governor of yourown party nids and abets those crimes. You tell us to turn a deaf ear to the agitators who talk of class interest. But can we remain blind and deaf and dumb when your partizans, sworn to enforce law and equal justice, brazenly pervert law and justice to the service of the capitalist class against the workers, and do it with your tacit con-

"Gentlemen cry, 'Peace, peace!' but there is no peace," said Patrick Henry, a century and a quarter ago; and history justified him. To-day, not all the eloquence of our too wordy President can concent the fact that, will we, nill we, the class war is here and must be fought out-fought out with arguments and ballots, if we Socialists may have our choice; fought out with bayonets and bullets, if the exploiters have their way. Itoosevelt's harmony speech serves but to throw into a more glaring light, by contrast, the bitter facts that the workers of this land must face.

And they are facing them, resolved to master them. A hundred Labor Day platforms this year resounded to the manly tones of resistance to capitalist tyrauny where only a year ago the quibbles and evasious and apologies of old-party politicians were heard.

Could the capitalists and their statesmen but be moderately wise, they would pause in their mad career But wisdom in a ruling class at the height of its power is a moral impossibility. Blind leaders of the blind, the Roosevelta and Peabodys are destined to fall into the same ditch with their patrons and masters.

And the Red Fing moves ever on rard. The Arm of Labor bolds ever higher the Torch of Knowledge to lighten the way. Our triumples are lasting and our very defeats turn into victories. The army of the thinking and self-reliant workers is invincible, Russia, but offer examining their rea-sons carefully it is not difficult to find them merely sentimental. On this ground the conservative Viscount Taul because to its hands are entrusted the highest interests of civilization and the ideal of human brotherhood. It is reported from London that the introduction of Asiatic labor into the South African Rand is now practically assured. Joseph Chamberlain, says the "Evening Post" correspondent, "took a wise course and saved himself from attack by leaving the question to a pit of santimentalism, and they seem local decision" and that "authoritative news comes this week through a leading South African house, one of whom partners is on the Labor Commission, that its report will advocate the importation of Chinese labor as the only way of developing the agricultural as well as the mining resources of the country." Mr. Chamberlain is famous in Eugland as being a politician of the American type. His way of leaving the question to "local decision" is certainly worthy of Mark Hanns, for it is to the decision of the capitalists, not the workers, of South Africa that the question was left. It is stated that the mining and agricultural employers prefer foreign colored labor to cheap white immigration, for colored in dentured labor-that is, inborees under a contract virtually amounting to slavery-"will not affect the political balance." Cheap-workers, unthinking workers, workers who do not "affect the political bulance" are the sort that capitalists of every nation desire. Their patriotism is bounded and inspired solely by their business interests. Whether by disfranchising their own fellow countrymen of the working class or by keeping them divided on lines of race or religion or trade of by importing competitors whose presence is a menace to social order, their one sim is to keep the workers weak and dependent. But the same that has been played so long and so successfully in its various forms is be ginning to react against those who play it. The proposal to bring Chinese into South Africa is uniting the Dutch and the British workingmen against the capitalists of the Rand; and in the United States, the Negroes, the Japanese, and the Mexicans who have been used in the past to depress the condi-

How can you speak of society if you contrive to separate your wel-fare from the welfare of the tramp? If you can anywhere break the line that leads from you to the starveling, from your million to my cent, you have de-stroyed society. There is only one enemy of society. Conversely, these should prevail upon these considerations if upon labor organizations to make even greater efforts to reduce working hours and to protect the older men in their jobs than to get increased wages. Still more emphat-ically, these considerations should pre-vail upon all workingmen to agitate and vote for Socialism; for under Socialism, the public need fisted of private profit being the motive of production, the workday would always be shortened whenever it was found that there was a surplus of able-bodied workers; and also, the workers receiving the full product of their labor, they would be able to provide for their old age without sacrificing all the interests of youth and manhood.

scholar to treat things historically because by this method all becomes do umentary and the whole range of af-fairs is brought within book covers. The labor scholar sits down and trans lates or interprets many documents into his own now-to-be-written new document. The campaign and the strike are transferred from the city or the coal field to the page of chosen words. Each sentence sublivides and analyzes its predecessor and the two vital struggles bearing more or less, to the battles that were fought become essays or editorials. The men that are in the virilities of the movement seldom become their own painters or historians, but remain by themselves as parts of the original subject or experience. As to that other objection that they are less class-conscious than we are on behalf of the whole proletarist, I would say rather that the conscious-ness which they possess is the con-sciousness that we lack; while the consciousness which we possess is that which they lack; that in fact one is complementary of the other, and until they meet and mingle in the same movement we can have no Socialist commonwealth. It has become regrettably common for Socialists and trade unionists to write up and speak up the difference between these two manifestations of the working class movement. The tendency of my own mind is to see them as one great unrest; of which socialism is the political students' activity in the camp of labor, while in the union the workman is struggling with his dally physical disconforts, seeking not be still dangled before us at the not be still daugled before us at the not be still dangted before us at the street corners. It is a radinomatry co-hesiveness which, if largely spread through the projetarint, would mean early death to capitalism. I look upon the trade umon consciousness differing from that of the Socialist class-con-sciousness as one of the land not of lousness as one of kind and not of degree, but of a kind which is bound to develop or evolute into the virile consciousness of the whole proletarian class of all nations, and it is upon that evolution we are all waiting. it be remembered that the few fatten warking delegates who have appeared In some trade unions and whose fall has been blared abroad with delighted exultation and malice by the press trumpeters of the capitalist class are by no means out generis, that it is their rurity sions which affords the cormorants a sensation. On the con-trary, every case of them is the case of a politician fallen from the dirty nest of one of the two old parties into the union. The bad walking delegate has been generally a good Democrat or Republican caught in the net of contaminating with the morals of the Crokers and Quays the clean and simple activities of the trade unions. If we ask ourseives what are the people in the unious, and then proceed to consider them apart from the union-ist phase of their existence, we are face to face with the naked virility of Money and machinery are capital only while cummed in the

If the class represented in the person of the naked man could be im-agened as all falling sick for a week there would not be one dollar of capi-tal in all the world for one entire week; for it is thus, in the net of labor robbery, by setting men to work in or-der to possess themselves of that frac-tion of the product known as retained wages that the capitalist class, with its scepter of surplus value, controls the world. Turning a moment from high capi-

Turning a moment from high capitalism to the various other degrees of that economic species, we have many specimens. But from the man who hires a child out of the orphanage to work on his farm at a few cents a day, producing dollars during certain seasons of the year, to the gentiuman who employs the professional producer of communities in the product featon. who employs the professional producer of commodities in the modern factory all the year round to the tune of dollars by the million it is a question of degree and not of kind. This gentleman is the well dressed maked virility of capitalism and white this Achilles and Agammenmon strive, all the other odds and ends of the two camps have nothing to do but remain scated in awful hush pending the issue of the great conflict which is vicariously theirs. By these odds and ends I mesh, on the capitalists' side, the half denuded middle class in the various branches of trade and politics, the vicms of their own virility. For these the days of initiation are gone, they are as powerless to devise their own business as they are to support a separate party. They are doomed to be Republicans, either in name under Roosevelt or in fact under Cleveland or Bryan. The group which holds the wage plunder that flows back into the daily exploitation of the naked virility of laber is that which economically commands the whole of its own camp of the Philistines, Republican and Democratic, and to that group shall all their interest and loyalty go, for their victory is one. Whosever has economic intelligence chough to get outside of the Republican or Democratic party; or workman's virility enough to be cast outside of the whole existing system of American politics, those refusing to be of either, or of any of those revolving satellites of the live dollar known as reforms, bust of necessity raily around the virility of labor as it stands class-conscious and fighting for its life in the Socialist Party. The weapon of the ballot with which alone he sights, foot to foot with his economic lord, constitutes the ultimate weapon of these two virile giants. The unions very naturally occupy most of the public attention in connec-tion with the struggle between the new aristocracy and the new poverty; new armiteracy and the new poverty; not because they are the largest part of exploited labor; but because they are its most virile part. The weak-lings of the entire class therefore can-not but see expressed in it their own him to subscribe. Then start in on another than the start in on another than the subscribe. Besides these and other artinans with prosperous proclivities who eschew the aspirations of labor and prefer the savings bank, there are large number necessarily unorganized and perhaps indifferent because they do not happen to occupy the very place where the lightning strikes their class. They may be clerks, agents, body secrants, drivers, sailors, fishermen, farmers, hands, etc., who cannot, or perhaps would not organize and fight as the trade unions de; willing and easer to resist they may be but not able to do so on the economic lines of the union.

They formerly a ked with some acerbity: Why should the cause of our deliverance be run in the name and under the flag of the proletarian? Penned up in one great economic enclosure, they looked around in vain for any other section among them whose separate deliverance involved the whole deliverance; and they see that through the proletarian gate alone the belongueed elty must march out in political unity; and so they become class-conscious in the Nochlist way. It is as if a number of persons were being run over and trampled under foot by some gentlemen in a chariot and the crowd menaced could stop the end exceer of these destructive gentlemen only by cutting the traces of the homes—the proletarian horses—with-out which the charlot cannot go.

deterioration engendered by the fac-tory system is afforded by the recently issued "Memorandum by the Director General, Army Medical Service, on the physical unitues of men offering themselves for calistment in the army." When reference has been made to the appalling proportion of rejections among would-be recruits the comforting suggestion has always been made that this fact only shows that the great bulk of the physically fit are too well employed to offer themselves for the army, and it is only wastrels and ne'er-do-wells who do so. Unfortunately, this optimistic conclusion is disposed of by the fact that clusion is disposed of by the fact that it was precisely when mea were throwing up their employment and flocking to the colors that the disproportion between those offering and those accepted was most noticeable. In the memorandum before us we are informed that "every year, a table is published in the Army Madical Depublished, in the Army Medical Department report, which classifies the recruits examined according to their previous occupations." The table for 1900 is given. This shows that of 1500 is given. This shows that of 52,022 "showers, busband-men, etc.," inspected, 15,025 were re-jected, or 288.82 per thousand; of 11,071 manufacturing artisans—weav-ers, ciethworkers, etc.—3,478, or 200,54 were rejected; and the proportion of rejected in 5,950 shopmen and clerks was 1,826, or 300,000 per thousand: while of "mechanics employed in occunations favorable to physical develor ment — smiths, carpenters, masons, etc.—" there were 2,023 rejected out of a total of 11.201, or 200.96 per thousand. These figures show that while the bulk of our soldiers are drawn from the unskilled labor class, it is not that class, but those employed in shops and factories which show the largest percentage of rejections. The whole memorandum makes instructive reading, and should prove to any impartial mind the physical deterioration of the working class of this country and this at a time when, as the says, "the tearning of public health atatistics would appear to show that progressive improvement of the national health has stendily followed the sanitary knowledge and its practical application;" and there are any num ber of "facts which would seem to in ber of "facts which would seem to in-dicate that the physique of the well-to-do classes, at least, is imporving rather than deteriorating." This is un-doubtedly true of the well to-do, but that only shows the evil effects of capitallsm more clearly, and places the de-terioration of the masses of the people in a more startling light.—London Social Democrat. -When you are going to hold

Workers' Gazette, Onadia. The "Workers' Gazette" would like to take this occasion to defond the Omaha Socialists against the charge of employing wrong tactles because of employing wrong tactles because they demand that a respectable mijority of their party be wage-workers. This to the surest way yet suggested to keep the capitalists and their politicians from capturing or controlling the Socialist movement so congummation that the latter are now financing on all over the country. While it is true that some wage-workers under the Influence of capitalists of their politicians may secure membership in the cians may secure membership in the party, and while it is true that some tarmers, business, men and professional men, who are class-conscious, because they know that capitalism does not afford them as much peach and prosperity as Socialism would, may be kept out of the party, it is the aufest policy to pursue. If the class that is most materially interested in the success of Socialism cannot keep the movement clear from the adulterations and intrigues of political teleksters, there is no hope for it. However, there is nothing in such tactics that prevents any farmer, business man or professional man from voten; the Socialist tickets that are nated by the workers. They, as a rule, vote the old party tickets that are nominated by the capitalists, after taking no part in controlling the nur-chinery of the old parties. In this connection it might be advisable for us to say: Keep your eye on the capi-talist or politician who tries to put the Socialists is an unjust light because they want to keep the movement clear from all unboly and entangling alliances.

Saginaw Exponent, Henry Clews, the cronker of Wall Street, seems to think that the recent decline in the value of many trust se-curities pressures the downfad of these great industrial combinations. The truth appears to be that the promoters of the trust, baving got rid of all the inflated stock that the markets could absorb, are now engaged in the cheerful occupation of squeezing the water

Every time this process is repeated it means that hundreds, perhaps thousands of small investors have been separated from their savings, which go to pile still higher the millions of the pintocrais. By shrewd manipulations the prices of stocks are first boosted to the skies, when the suckers rush in to buy; then prices go down and the suckers sall out; but whether they are wying or welling, the capitalist manip ulators win at every turn.

There is nothing in the flurries of the stock market to indicate that the trust is not here to stay. But when all the smoke clears away it will be found that the ownership of the great industries has been concentrated into fewer lands than before, and that the capitalist class has driven one more nail into its coffin." When the workers realize that they must become abject slaves of the trust or the owners of the trust, the choice will be neither difficult to make nor long delayed.

It is a device that originates not with the people but with the judiciary; one which has been adopted contrary to custom, even judicial custom, and without statutory sanction; one which enables induces to anction; one which enables judges to chact special legislation in their own discretion for each case as it comes before them; and one which deprives persons falsely charged with wrong-doing of at least five elementary rights the right to an inquiry by a grand jury, the right to be confronted in open court with hostile witnesses and to cross-examine them, the right to know in advance the penalty they incur, the right to trial by jury, and the right to be tried only once for the same wrong.

Locals are again reminded that Hanford's tour is entirely under the direction of the Na-tional Secretary, Socialist Party, Omaha, Nebraska, and all communica-tions respecting same should be addressed accordingly.

Organizors Are Doing Geo. E. Bigelow reports under date of Ang. 27: "I have found things a little alower and harder than I expected in Kansas. The wet weather has kept the farmers a month behind with their work, and as a result they are for their 'lammediata interest.' Worse than the above also is the fact of their loss of small grain by the constant rain, and the prospect of a very much depleted corn crop. At Scandia, I received a most respectful bearing, three men following me to the hotel to talk it over. Two good meetings at Concordin. The movement here is clear as a bell and will be heard from in the future. Had an audience of about one hundred at Rice, many of them women. I spoke twice at Clyde, and had the best meeting thus far at Clay Center. At Junction City I had to hunt up the Socialists and h meeting on a reacant lot, the Haput-tican streets over which the three thou-and soldlers stationed there walk, be-ing too-sacred to be descrated by a Rocialist speaker. We had a good Recisible speaker. We had a good meeting with at least a dozen of the soldier boys as listeners. IN THE BOOK ROOM.

There is "something doing" in the

Local Scattle sends 'way across the country for literature that will make people think. Local San Francisco, too, sends for a hundred copies of McGrudy's pamphiet, "The Clerical Capitalist". There are more in steek and There are more in stock, an they would do a great deal more good workingmen's bands than on the the German comrades in Fris have taken off their coats and gone to work. The supply of amusualtion they just got from this arsenal includes afty copies each of Liess' "Was let Sozinlismus?", "Valis" "Mission der ar beitenden Klasse," "Bin Wort an die Arbeiter Amerikas," and Schlueter's ple of every nationality or language. He got a supply of Liens' pamphlet, sold them all, and is ready for more. Union County, N. J., has a large German population and the local courades show their appreciation of its needs by getting 350 pamphlets in that lan-guage. Elizabeth is going to show re-sults at the polls and proposes to put Hudson County's leadership to the American comrades, by the way often have a chance to agitate among their German-speaking fellow worksome literature handy for the purpose. A good set of pamphleta can be had for 35 cents. The 16th A. D. of New York is doing something in this direct tion.

Comrade Dennis, formerly of Highland Falls, N. Y., is a Socialist missionary wherever he goes. By his orders for literature we can judge of his tireless activity.

Buffalo is for some reason a har field for Socialists to work in, but need for socialists to work in, but Comrade Fitton has sown a good deal of seed there of late, drawn from this granary—"Labor Politics," "The So-cialist Army," "Rallroading in the United States," and other thinkmakers.
"Labor Politics and Socialist Polltics" is always in demand. the last few days comes Comrade-Dennis of Pennsylvania, asking for twenty, Corarade Winslow of Massa-chusetts for a hundred, Comrade Wel-menbach of Illinois for twenty-eight, Local Richmond for 35 worth (334 copies), and new Local Camden, N. haven't had the chance to hear her. Therefore they send their dimes to the Socialist Literature Company. The sale of emblem buttons indi-rates that not only are many studying Socialism, but many who have studied it want to show their faith before, others and are going to work to spread the light. Two bundred for Massachusetts is the latest big lot.

People want books, as well as pamphlets, showing that there are many who are making more than a super-ficial study of the question, resolved to go to the root of the matter and underat and it in all its phases. Rechanoff's little book on "Bocialism and Anarchism" seems to be in especial demand, and nothing could be more highly commended, not only for the clear distinction it draws between the sophy of Socialism. It deserves place along with the "Communist Manifesto" and "Socialism, Utopian and Scientific" among the classics of the movement. It is pleasing to note that these two little books are being studied by many converts. The comrade in charge of the So-cinlist Literature Company loves work. He ests and sleeps only under protest. Wrapping up bundles of books and pamphiets and sending them all over the country is what he gets fut on. He can stand just a little more of it, though, than he has now, before he gets too prosperous to hold his job.

And what is faith? The anchored trust That at the core of things Health, goodness, animating strength Flow from infinite springs; That no star rolls unguided down The rings of cudless maxe, That no feet tread an aimless nath That Order grows from Chaos, And, that life is born from death; That from the wreck of rending stars, Rebind the storm and scathe. There dwells a heart of central calm And this, and this is faith.

What is the purport of the scheme Toward which all time is gone? What is the great asonian goal? The joy of going on.
And are there any souls so strong,
Such feet with swiftness shod
That they shall reach it, Reach some bourne, the ultimate of God?

But rims a sea of other stars That stretches just as far.
There's no beginning and no end.
As in the ages gone.
The greatest joy of joys shall be The joy of going on.

The work of organizing and sending out speakers in Michigan is hampered by lack of funds, and State Secretary Lamb again appeals to the comrades to contribute generously to the state fund. Dr. Knopfnagle carried the day for Socialism at the Pioneer's picnic in Turner, discountiting the followers of the old parties in debate. A Sociallat picule was held at Somerleyton, a summer resort in Berrier County, on Aug. 25, and reorganization of the county committee effected. Good reports come from young Comrude Heath's meetings in Breckinridge and lay City. Comrade Ira Cross held good meetings at Harbor Beach, Crowell and Port Huron. Dr. S. A. Knopfungel of Peoria, Ill., has closed a very successful tour on Michigan circuits, beginning July 22 and ending Sept. 1, and will next go to Pennsylvania. He is of the opinion that the farmers will make very good Socialists. A So-cialist speaker will be sent to the county fair at Hillsdale.

MUNICIPAL PLATFORM

For Mayor-CHARLES L. FURMAN. For Comptroller-MORRIS BROWN.

Reaftirming its unswerving adherence to the principles of the worldwide Socialist movement as expressed in the national platform of the Sociallst Party of the United States, the Sc cial Democratic Party enters upon the municipal campaign of 1963, as it has entered upon all its previous cam-paigns and as Social Democrats everywhere enter upon electoral campaigns, with a call to the workers, the wealth, producers, to unite politically in their own well-defined and supremely lu-portant class interests. We call upon our fellow workingmen of this great city of New York to face squarely and without flinching the on vitally, important fact which all the old parties are forever trying to hide-that the interests of our class, as the producers of all wealth, are irreconciliably opposed to the interests of the propertied class which dominates these old parties. Whether labelled Republican, Democratic, or Reform, each of these parties is financed, and therefore contrilled and officered, by that class which lives by the exploitation of La-bor. The serving of their own sordid ends, the maintainance of their power to despoil the workers, is the sole of jective point of their effort to necure political power, as it is the objective of the debauchery of our civic life which attends their rule.

As Social Democrats we proclaim that it is the duty of the workers to use all their political powers for the overthrow of the infamous system of class oppression under which city and nation grouns to-day—a system which gives luxury and ease to the idlers and places them in a position of mas-tery over the wealth-producers; which condemns the vast majority of the workers to live in squalid, disease breeding tenements that are unfit for human habitation, while giving to the drones of society, palatial mansions and shameful luxury. Never in the world's history bave these ini-quitous conditions been more glaringly manifest than in this City of New York at the present time; and a sys tem which produces and depends upon tem which produces and depends upon such conditions stands condemned by all sound principles of statesmanship, civic economy, and morals. To end such conditions and to establish in their stend conditions of economic justice and political integrity is the mission to which the Social Demo-cratic Farty calls every workingman. cratic Party calls every workingman.

Alone of political parties the Social Democratic Party upholds the true functions of political government and proclaims that its end should be noth-ing less than the establishment of a sane and just economic system in which every resource of the common life shall be free from private owner-ship and control and in which every child born into the world shall have equal opportunities with every other child. In short, we declare that our aim is the establishment of an Indus-trial Democracy, the Cooperative Commonwealth; and while realizing workers in state and nation, we desire to bring about a working-class ad-ministration of the city, not alone to avail ourselves of its power to telleve, so far as possible, the hardships of our class under existing economic conditions, but siso, and primarily, to take all possible steps toward the realiza-tion of our final goal.

In the past we have had adminis-trations of the city's affairs by Re-publicans and Democrats and by fusions of the malcontents of both parties in the interests of so-called "Reform." The admitted corruption and incompetence of each of the party administrations has made possible the success of such coalitions, and, incidentally, shown the essential identity of interests which exists between the old parties. Were their differences vital and fundamental such coalitions would be impossible. And just as their interests are identical, so have been their performances. All silke have voted to members of the pessessing class, to which they themselves belong, valuable public franchises which have added to the powers of monopely and privilege over the citi-zenry, enabling them to extort many millions each year in profit, while callously indifferent to public needs. The wholesale corruption of our city government is directly traceable to this taproot of private exploitation of public needs. And, as night be ex-pected, as the Social Democratic Party has continually pointed out, in every case of conflict between the common citizens and the privileged class, and in every struggle between the wage-workers and the masters of their bread, all the forces of the city have been used to defeat the common citizens and the wage-workers, and to zens and the wage-workers, and to promote the interests of the exploiters. For two years past the City of New York has been governed by a "Re-form" administration. Never in the history of the city has any administration entered upon its futies with greater opportunities and never was there a more dreary record of failure and incompetence. The one achieve-ment of which they boast is the reduction of taxes upon real estate, some-thing worse than worthless to the work-ing class, whose rents have not been lowered thereby, but, on the contrary, have largely increased. Conditions have not been changed for the better, in any important department of the city government oor has there heen so much as an attempt made to better the conditions of life in the city. The conditions of life in the city. The transportation service is even more outrageously ineffecient than before and the workers engaged therein are subject to worse conditions of labor than ever before. In the crowded senements the almost exclusively probate and income to the unsanitary conditions prevailing there which the people themselves cannot overcome. Science points out the "Esform" admits an exclusively probable themselves cannot overcome. Science points out the "Esform" admits an exclusively probable themselves cannot overcome.

NEW YORK CITY TICKET: For President of the Board of Alder men-PETER J. FLAHAGAH. ministration dare not move in that

evils the "Reform" government has remained silent and insettee.
When they have moved it has been to crush with relentless brutality every-attempt of the workers to protest against tyranny. When the exactions of the Boef Trust forced hunge, mad desed women and children to revolt they were clubbed into submission by the police, and striking tunnel labor-ers were met with the same shameful brutality. Workingmen of New York, brutality. Workingmen of New York, let it not be forgotten that while under Tammany, with Devery at the head of the Police Department, the police force was used to break the strike of the Brooklyn trolley workers, under the "Reform" government, with General Greens at the head of the Police De-partment, police were sent in large numbers to intimidate the workers on the New York and Queens County Railroad who were usersly preparing to strike and could not be accused of any disturbance of the public peace.

ond Company, several citizens, were killed in its antiquated and dangerous tunnel it was not the guilty directors trict Attorney, whose spectacular cam paign consisted so largely of an attack upon great corporations and loudly professed sympathy for Labor. In the milding trades strike, notwithstand ing the fact that for tens of thousands ers had voluntarily offered to continue working on the old terms upon all school buildings pending a settlement of the strike, work was stopped and thousands of children's education interfered with. But no effort was made to enforce the penalties for delayed work provided for in the contracts.

These things, and the granting of the Pennsylvania tonnel franchise without the inclusion of the labor clauses, prove the hostility of the present administration to all the interests of the workers. Therefore we call unite with us and raily to the support of the Social Democratic Party, the only party of Labor, which will if elected to power administer the affairs of the city with proper regard to the comfort and well-being of the working class. It will use all its powers to improve the sanitary conditions of the city and to provide decent and ade-quate homes for the people. A party of the working class, with no other interests to serve, it will support only such legislation and adopt such measures as will benefit the working class,

Especially to our fellow workers in the trade unions would we appeal in this compaign. While recognizing its limitations, the Social Democratic Party has always supported the trade-union movement in all its struggles be-cause it fully recognises the essential justice of Labor's secuggle on the economic field. We point out to all the organized workers of New York the atter futility of expecting any support from capitalist parties of any stripe. Experience with Republicans, Demo rate, and "Refermers" has shown that political friends. Therefore we call upon them to be loyal politically to their own economic principles and interests by supporting the Social Pemotrusted with the administration of the elty, use all the public powers for the protection and benefit of the workers in their conflicts with the capitalists.

Immediate Demands.

In addition to the measures indithe present relief of the workers and directed toward our final goal, we urge the adoption of the following in which we seek the support of all who desire real freedom and econo

Our experience in the labor move ment has taught us—and many others, by the way—that certain great changes have been and are now, taking place in the industrial world, which are of vast alguificance to the working class, for whom we speak and whose interests we try to defend. These changes are caused by the control of the machinery of wealth production by a constantly reasing number of capitalists, and, together with this concentration, has developed the increasing use of military forces, the courts and other powers of government against the

WHRELING, W. Va., Sept. 14.-At last the "Mountain State" is organized. On Sept. 6 a rousing concention was held in Wheeling, as the result of a call issued by six out of seven locals, and a form of organisation drafted, a state platform adopted, and nominations for a permanent State Secretary and head-quarters were made. The constitution contemplates the most extreme measure ure of direct legislation, or govern-ment of the party by rank and file, so all of the proceedings of the convention were submitted to referendum of the whole membership. Of course, the ratification of the proceedings re-quires a vote by locals, but returns have been received from five locals so far, and unanimous ratification is ex-pected. The West Virginia comrades feel a debt of gratitude to the Ohio State Committee, which has given the locals the advantage of the regular circuit speakers, and the organization trip of Courade O'Hara's will take in five towns on the Ohio river which are at present inaccessible to the regular Ohio speakers in return. By Oct. 10 the Ohio Valley, hitherto aimost "trackless forest" from a Socialist point of view, will have a pretty well defined track for the ubiquitous, peri-

The Wheeling, Kim Grove, Benwood and McMechen courades are all high-ly pleased over the "five weeks' cam-putgri" which closed on Labor Day, when Courade O'Hare made the ad-dress at the Ohlo Valley Trades and trees at the Onio variety fraues and Labor Assembly celebration in Wheel-ing. The campaign was a big under-taking for us, but Commde Leeds' in-doubtable energy prevailed to the ex-tent that the necessary was raised, and O'Hare did the rest so effectually that the conduction necess published over that the capitalist press published over a hundred articles about the work, and every time they gave him a "knock cation cards and want more.

TOBACCO TRUST STILL GAINS.

Apparent Opposition in Retail Field Disappears.

Independent Cigar Stores Company Sought Out by United Cigar Stores -That is, the Counter-Trust is Merged in the Real Trun', Once More Confirming Socialist Theory.

A year or more ago there appeared in New York City the sign of the United Cigar Stores Company, which was at once summed and soon ascertified to be nothing more than an agency of the Tolacco Trust, the American. Tolacco Company, which, having won a dominant position in the manufacture of smoking and chewing telucco, snuff, cigars, and cigarettes, began simultaneously to invade the tebucco, suuff, cigars, and cigarettes, began simultaneously to invade the two adjacent fields of tobacco raising tacquiring large tracts of land in Cube, in Connecticut and essewhere) and of retail trade in its products.

One store after another of "The Largest Retail Tobacconists in the World" appeared, radiant with electric lights and liberal with premium certification, so that the number in New York created. York passed lifty some months ago, holding the best focations and, in general, each so placed as to kill the trade of some leading independent store.

The same system was extended to

The same system was extended to many other cities.

The independent retail dealers got scared. They had good reason to be. The Tolsacco Trust agency stanhed prices recklessly, as have other trusts in establishing themselves in their various fields. They tried to organize for resistance. They showed their alarm by being willing even to offer a mutual alliance with the cigarinakers? mutual alliance with the cigarmakers' unions, with whom they had never shown the slightest sympathy before.

Then appeared a vallant champion of the people against the trusts, in the form of the Independent Clear Stores Company, loudly advertised as "Not a Trust," owning a cigar factory and a eigarette factory and, when fully developed, twenty-eight retail stores in different parts of the city.

The Worker predicted some months ago that this apparent conflict was only a sham-battle or, at the best, a "hold-up" worked by smuller capital-"hold-up" worked by smaller capital-ists on the larger onea, as we said also of the fight of the Imperhi Tolacco Company against the American. The latter hight ended some mouths are with the absorption of the counter-trust by the big campany. Now the other part of the Socialist prediction has been verified.

Last week it was amounced that the Independent Cigar Stores Company had been bought out by the United-Cigar Stores Company, stores, fre-tories, and all, and that it will hence forth constitute part of the trust.

Thus one more step is marked in the progress of concentration in the telesco industry and in the most difficult field, that of retail trade. One more evidence is added of the correctness of the Socialist position—that con-solidation of industrial control is an irresistible tendency, that it is futle to try to oppose or hamper the trusts, that the only hope of the workers is in becoming the owners of the trusts whose wealth they create, taking pos-session through the intelligent use of

Far the greater part of our federal and state indres, through out the country, are men whose whole past training has inclined them to the capitalist side, even where they are not personally members of that class, and who would find it impossible, even if they had the wish, to understand the needs and the feelings of the working class. The appointed judges working class. The appointed judges feel little or no responsibility to the people, except as the vote of the peo-ple supports or attacks the executives and senators to whom they owe their appointments. The elected judges appointments. The execute junges have, in many cases—and the custom is becoming ever more prevalent, especially in regard to the higher judge-ships—been jointly nominated by both capitalist parties. With few exceptions, they have long terms of office for ely ten, or more years, if not for For all these reasons, the courts are coming to be depended upon more and more by capitalist interests. Legisla-tures, under pressure of popular senti-ment, may pass and governors may ment, may peas and governors may sign laws really or apparently in the interest of the workers. The Trust mganates and franchise lords who hold the purse-strings of both old par-ties, allow this, is critical moments, knowing that they can rely on "non-partisan" judges either appointed or elected for a long term, to declare these laws unconstitutional, to find some flaw in them making them uneaf-processible, or even—as in the present forceable, or even—as in the present case of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, which has nover yet resulted in the ophysicion of acpitalist, though it has already been made the basis of several minor decisions against organised la-

That is to say, the condition is as bad as it was a year ago, and even worse ter them, these dollar-aristocrats reathan it was two years ago, before the Low administration came in. This offer the Employers' Association rejected. The members of the Employers' Association can afford to send their children to aristocratic priand very probably as many as eighty- vate schools. They do not care if the workers' children go uneducated. Nay, it rather pleases them better, for the more ignorant the coming generation of toliers, the easier it will be to masson. Moreover, they wished to make the "dear public" suffer as much as from the unions.

The action of the Republican and Democratic parties in the state of New Tork in unting to renominate Deals O'Brien for the Court of Appeals—the same Democratic Deals O'Brien who, in 1601 gave the decision dec aring that the Prevailing lists of Wages Law was unconstitutional—is a case in point. Republican or Democrat, O'Brien is just the sort of judge that capitalists of both parties like to have on the beach, just the sort of judge that would help the Anti-Boycoit As-sociation to loot the treasuries of the unions and levy on the scauty property

Another case in point is the fact that Judge Haxeltine, who gave the first Taff Vale decision in this coun-try, awarding the Patch Manufacturing Company damages against the Ma-chinists of Rutland for organizing a strike, is the only Democrat on the bench of that good Republican state.

The humbug of the "non-partizan" judiciary ought to be so apparent to every workingman that every working-man's vote would go to put on the bench either workingmen or lawyers who have kent themselves free from rapitalist influence, have associated themselves with the labor movement and served it faithfully, and who are nominated on a frankly partizan platform pledging them to support the interests of Labor against Capital.

The Socialist Party (the Social Democratic Party of New York) has passed through its second general election. Its growing power is indicated and its specify victory for-slandowed by the great increase of its vote as shown in these figures:

THE MEANING OF BUSINESS PAILURES.

The New York "Times" of Septem ber 13, under the headline "Jersey's Corporation Bubble Is Bursting," reforty-four corporations organized under the laws of New Jersey have gone into the hands of receivers, with capital aggregating over sighty million dollars, imbilities at the time of bankruptcy aggregating over seventeen millions, and known assets of only a little over a million and a half. The writer says: "It is safe to say that in a large majority of the cases the stockholders will not get 10 per cent. on the dollar of their investment." If it had not been for the extraordinary law passed in 1902 for the protection of corporations against dissatisfied or empicious stockhokiers, no doubt the number of swindles exposed would have been still greater.

For this is the aspect in which these figures should be viewed-as illustra hur a system of swindling inecparably connected with the capitalist system and serving a very important function in capitalist development, but not as representing the normal course of capi-

It would be a great mistake to re gard these bankraptcy figures as indicating the unprofitableness of cap talist business. A few of the fartyfour bankrupteies referred to represent real failures in industry; but in the majority of cases the industry has existed on paper only-the capitalization and the assets are imaginary, at the liabilities are very real, showing the amount of money that ignorant (we can hardly say "innocent" investors have put into the hands of the premotors in exchange for stock certifi cates or bends. These lambs generally belong to the "great middle class" of which we have heard so much, being farmers, small business men, or, in a few cases, well said and frugal workingmen, implied with the capitalist graphical Union. It is not necessary deal of success and so eager to rise out of their class on the choulders of thisis fellows that their zeal overcame their discretion. Socialists have little sympathy for victims of this sort and turn a deaf ear to their plea for publicity as a means of regulating corporations-that is, of enforcing "honest" rules for the essentially dishonest game of capitalism.

'Corporations of this type bear about as much resemblance to the real capitalist organizations, such as the Standard Oil, the Steel Trust, or the New York Central Railway Company, as the bogus Italian counts and Polish princes that occasionally figure in our as Kaiser Wilhelm or Tear Nicholas. The glamor of hereditary title dazzles silly beiresses and their sordid parents and when the latter find the titles to be ficiltious they bitterly complain, not of the injustice of hereditary class dis tinctions, but of the fact that low-born adventurers sometimes succeed in passing themselves off as nobles. Revolutionists laugh at the "suckers" that get caught, but aim their blows at the real lords, not at the sham ones. Thus the Secialist is not interested in so regulating capitalism that all investors shall be sure of getting their profits, but in destroying capitalism, so that no one shall get any profits at all. This draws the line, by the way, between Socialism and the Populism of ien years ago or the middle-class Democracy of to-day. It does not follow, however, that the facts we have been discussing have no interest for Bocislists nor that they play no important part in the capitalist system. An important part they do play, that of hastening the concentration of wealth and constantly bringing back into great capitalist bands the wealth that small capitalists and "workingmen with capitalist minds" manage to cave. In every bankruptcy of a bogus or of a genuine but weak corporation, the creditors that get the major share of the assets are the financiers who have known enough to get mortgage bonds or preferred stock, the other financiers who have got their share directly as promoters, and still others who make a profession of acting as receivers and who conscientionaly receive, but seldom do anything else. As for the investors, they get important-looking documents and experience. Their leases are not always limited to the amount of cold cash they have given up, though that is in the year's aggregate a considerable sum transferred from the hands of the middle class to those of the "captains of industry." The small butstill independent farmer or merchant or prosperous artisan who, filled with dreams of quickly becoming a copper king or a railway baron, finds his savings-bank account not quite enough and mortgages his farm, his business, or his home in order to "get in on the ground floor," only to find that he has naid for admission to an air-castle ami that the savings of a lifetime have been swept away, is no uncommon ngure.

The whole matter furnishes on interesting commentary on two theories of the subsidized economists—the one, that the profits of the capitalist class are the legitimate reward of the risks they assume, the other, that profit is the legitimate reward of industry and frugality. In fact, the workingmen practise industry; they and their smaller expluitors practise frugality; then, hypnotized by the spectacle of the great capitalists' success and deceived by the teachings of capitalist professors, journalists, and pulpiteers, they assume a risk through the agency of the corporation promoters; finally, the great capitalists complacently acslike. Then the game begins again; and after it has been played long enough, the victims begin to think and to realize that wealth is produced by labor and that he who gets something for nothing, whether under the form of dividends, of interest, or of rent, must get it out of the labor of someone else; and then they get ready to put an end to, not to mend, the something for nothing system.

The apparent breakdown of Mr. Morgan's Stenmship Trust was not surprising. No more is it surprising to learn that out of the debris will probably grise a new combination, couposed, for the present, of the White Star, Dominion, and American lines. The consolidation of every industry passes similar stages. The first at tempts at combination on a grand scale seldom succeed-or rather, their real failure. In the course of one or more failure, and respectables the small-er capitalists are squeezed dry and thrown out, and then the combination succeeds. So it has been with others, and so we may expect to see a real Stoomship Trust ruling the sees as firmly so the Standard Oli sules its field of industry. The sooner, the better; for the sooner are have that trust the sooner will we have national or international public ownership for pub-De service

Their motives will be easily enough guessed from the eagerness with which editors notorious for their enmity to Labor support the attack. We need only remark that these priests are not alone in their hostility to the labor movement or the ignorance which makes them facile tools of Labor's foes. They have plenty of Pro testant parsons and Jewish rabbis and ministers of other religious to keep them company. The question at issue is not one of Catholicism versus Pro testantism, nor of Christianity versus infidelity (for lack of a better word we use this), nor a question of religion at all, but the elernal question of wagesversus profits, of Freedom versus Capi-

Capitalist papers find it immensely funny, now and then, to give alleged reproductions, verbatim et literatim, of letters written by trade-union officers full of errors in syntax, spelling, punctuation, and the like. They seem to think, not only that this is very amusing, but that it conclusively proves the workingmen to be wrong and the capitalists right in all their conflicts.

If these capitalist editors were really educated men, and not simply instructed spoks, they would know the illiteracy, deplorable as it is, is not necessarily a sign of ignorance or mental inferiority and that a knowledge of the rules of grammar and orthography may and often does serve merely to conceal the shortcomings of a brainless fop. Given two men of equal intelligence and equal knolwedge of the real world the belence in on the side of the one who is well trained in the learning of the schools. But a between thuse who know the world and life as it is and those who know it through its reflection in books, it is on the former that the world depends for its great work and, in the long pun for good or for evil, it is they wise will rule it. In other words, as between a "Sun" editor who clothes wicked lies in excellent language and a- coal heaver or shoveller of dirt who cannot read but can be true to his ideals of right and duty, give us the latter as a friend, as a comrade, as a fellow

We do not undervalue education, nor even the mere instruction that now community passes under that namethe best we can hope for so long as the opportunity for schooling remains the privilege of a class. Just because we realize what it is worth, we find in the attitude of these capitalist editors one thing yet more shocking than their supercilious stupidity-that in, the heartless, brainless, bloodless crucity that can find matter for merriment in stend of sorrow in the ignorance of

Granted that the teamsters and bodcarriers cannot write good English. Granted that they find reading a diffi ult task. Granted that the multiplica tion table is a puzzle to them. Whom fault is that? Whose shame is it? No theirs, but yours, gentlemen of the capitalist class. You for whose profit they went to work when they were little chifdren, you for whose profit they have labored early and late, day in and day out, coming home at night too tired to think and rising in the morning only to go back to their tasks, you for whose profit they must keep on tolling in poverty till you throw thum out, you are the ones who ough to blush if they are ignorant. And not nione to blush. You might well tremble, too. They have not nice manpers as you have, they cannot command such clever phrases, but they can think enough to realise their wrongs and to hate your tyranny. Rough hands, untrained to holding the pen, have pulled down thrones ere thin. Be you think the throne on Wail Street is so much firmer than those of Charles and Louis?

We do not advocate violence. We raise a warning against it-the only sensible warning, addressed, to the masters, not to the rebellions serfs of industry. Every capitalist who draws his dividends from the profits of child labor or who resists the reduction of hours of labor in propertion to its increased productive power is preparing the materials for a social explosion And every capitalist spokssman who morks at the ignorance and rudens of the laborers in lighting a torch of hatred to see society affame. We Suradiete who denoted the shall tion of child labor, who insist on really free and universal education, who advocate the shortening of the workday. who robuke the capitalists for the arrogance and call on our follow week ers to think and full torother and to rally at the ballot-box to overthrocapitalist rule, we alone are foing ou share to avoid a visiont outbreak of the secial aniagonisms that are in-grained in the whole system of profit and wages. If the crisis passes with out wringing the mecks of those wi seasor to-day, they may thank the bold and sober evanuely of the Book joice too soon. The "operators" have appealed to the Suppeme Court and it is dollars to doughouts Judge Hases will get a rebuise and the recalcitrant homes will go free.

Some fifteen or twenty thousand cotton-mill "hands" of Massachusetts and New Hampshire were allowed to go to work again last week, after being shut out for a month, in order that prices might be raised. Wages have not been raised, by the way. Now the operatives will begin to hustle and scrimp in order to pay off the debts they incurred during their enforced idleness and to lay by a few dollars, good luck permitting, against the inevitable "rainy day"-or snowy, blowy, pneumoniac days, bad for the health of underfed and overworked tollers. We have to alter the old proverb and may: "Whatever mischief bosses do, the workers pay the piper" -and will pay, with sweat and tears and blood, till they learn that they can do without bosses.

The New York "Sun" alleges that the Garment Workers' Union is using its influence to destroy the small shops, the so-called "home factories," in the garment-making industry and weeps briny tears over the fate of the poor tenement-house dwellers who are not to be allowed to establish shops in their crowded living rooms. "Sun" hints that the union is in league with the trusts and, being itself, as everyone knows, a hitter enemy of Mr. Morgan and all his works, it inveighs severely against the methods of the labor organization. It is curious how, as our copy-books used to say, "Cir cumstances alter cases." The garmentninking industry is one of several in which the methods of small production in the workers' "homes" best suits the interests of the big exploiters of labor, bringing them the highest profits at the greatest cost to the health and comfort of the workers and keeping the latter disorganized and helpless Therefore it is that the more enlightened workingmen are opposed to the home-shop system in this trade and therefore it is that in this trade the "Sau" favors such a system.

Garroll D. Wright has proved his friendship" for Labor and given the United Mine Workers a practical demonstration of the beauties of arhitration by corporation judges and subsidized bishops. His decision that, under the terms of the settlement, the mine owners may discharge m. . at pleasure for any cause other than that membership in the union-that they may, for instance, discharge men for "pernicions activity" as organizers or agitators-is no surprise to us. The power of the capitalist to allow or forbid other men to work, at his own arbi trary will, is the keystone of capitalist power. It will not be yielded until the miners and other workingmen follow the Bocislists' advice and take the political power of town, state, and untion into their own hands and, through its use, take control of the means of production they have created. Meanwhile, many thanks to Umpire Wright for making the arbitration game clear no noon.

A Paris dispatch informs us that the Isthmus of Panama is crowded with destitute workingmen who have gone there in anticipation of the resumption of work on the canal and who are sufforing extrame misery. The fact that the vage prospects of work in a climate known to be very unhealthful could so attract swarms of immigrants from both continents is a telling comment on the "prosperity" prevailing under capitalism alike in republican America and monarchical Europe, freetrade Britain and protectionist United States. And the wretchedness of those now waiting for work at the Istumus is, if we may judge from the precedent of Sues, but a prelude to the horrors that will develop after work in bogus. There will be fortunes for contractors and jobbers and tradors and broker and capitalist vultures of every sort, but no account will be made of the tollers that sink under the double burden of starvation and overwork.

Another incident is reported from Russis showing the power of the Socialist philesuphy to inspire men to the birthest heroism. The order being given to a body of soldlers to fire on a crowd of strikers, a certain lieutenant refused to transmit the command to his detachment, declaring that any man who would fire on his brother was a cur. Of course he was put under arrest and will almost certainly pay for his noble conduct with his life. His consolution is in knowing that the public example of resistance to tyranny will do more to shake the power of Tentism than a score of exsentions can do to emprest it. Such more frequent, both in the Old World and in the New and augur well for the nors. When the "mastern londs, and reliens in all banks' can be known count on their soldiers to shoot the won the dawn of Freedom draws nigh.

By Peter E. Burrowes.

That which lies aback of the agitator's zeal, which initiates, sustains, and gives energy to his protest against modern capitalism, is the sense of justice. It is the sixth or social sense, depending not at all upon sentimentalism or the emotional constitution of its possessor, for it is by a knowledge of facts alone and organic connection with the past that it is sustained; and by whole human one-bloodedness and its ability to expatiate on hostile facts it makes its manifestation to the world as the agitator and becomes his pe-in order that the race should passes lelsure, knowledge, happiness, comfort, and luxury there is one comittion with which mankind must always comply he must work. Work must be done to

A very large number of persons are complying every day with this primary regulaite for getting leisure, knowledge, happiness, comfort, and luxary; but it s observed, that while the necessary conditions are by them complied with, one class, strange, to say, consists of the very people who have path for them. Another class practically mo-nopolizes these blessings and that other is the class which has done nothing to obtain them.

When a man gets the knowledge of this fact rightly into him it awakeus

intor-a sense of justice. Economic and historic information proveking into activity a social con reience are thus the evening and the morning of the first new day. I have been acquainted with some Socialists who seemed to detest the ethical appeal because they believed their faith to be based on something they called material science alone, and in nowise upon what they deemed to be ethics. Of course they forgot that a science of human affairs excludes nothing essentially human. And of nothing ementially human. course they forgot that a thing can be cenounced only by its antithesis, or a neuse of antithesis—that wrong can be denounced only from a sense of right na the pole of the denouncer.

The huge paradox of the laborer pro ducing all and getting nothing, of the capitalist preducing nothing and get-ting all, which is the sum of Marx' scientific analysis, is nothing until it becomes an irritant to the social col erience and so provokes our sense of justice into revulsion. This thread, this sense of justice through every page of Marx. This human he haugs his facts and makes them

Every man who has come to the point where he is known as a Socialist, started from the point where there became known to him uniters which awakened his became of justice. Whether he became a simple burly egitator or a profound scientific inrestigator, he started from there and, what is more, the thread vibrating was never out of his protest nor out of his

Ethics as the science of morals of morals as the precept of ethics a 80-cialist may never have considered, even though he was planting them and digging about their roots and water-ing and pruning them through the whole period of his agitation for the new environment, the better commonwealth. So near may be the ultra ma terialist in his facts, to the ethic of

To become possessed of leisure, knowledge, happiness, comfort, and tuxury requires labor of an ordinary sort in modern times and not very much of it-three or four hours a day for everybody-yet we all miss the five good things. One-half of us has life crushed out doing too much work, and the other has life crushed out doing none but trying to keep the exproprinted plunder.

This anomaly may be told to the mind in many ways, told in scientific symbols or in cartoon; but it gets its work in only when it reaches the sense of justice. It may be lying elegantly bound in thousands of homes or it may he read by a thousand eyes, but it is a seed in a bottle nutil it ands lodgment and quickening in the-sense of justice. When we learn that for the procuring of the five benefits the labor ing class has paid the whole price and that after the fact these benefits are of his life is merificed to the function of making payment, one-half of inhor-ing life employed in that function he-ing to him wholly unremunerative in-numers as it is unremunerative time to him and for him wholly unnecessary as it is employed in the production of surplus values that immediately pass beyond his control and out of his sphere; and when we reflect that he is potently in relation to these benefits the whole of productive society, yet but a fraction of it as to their possession and enjoyment—then we see he is the victim of a non-necessity; his life is expended in surplus labor for survalues wasted or hoarded by an unaccessary class; and we resent the immorality of this human merifice be-cause along with our ability for scientifically figuring out economic facts we are endowed with the sense of justice.

When it was prophested by the tory wiseacres of the last century that no steamship could ever cross the Atlan-tic because none could be built large chough to carry all the coal that must e consumed in propelling her, they nade a mistake. Ships were built arge enough and fuel sufficient was large enough and fuel sufficient carried and the ships west over. now, when they prophesy that Socialists will never reach the Capitol of the United States became they cannot as weakers ever get the political fuel necessary to take them, they forgot this sense of justice. The world's work is to be done and was always to be done by the mass of society; and as there is no collective eye to aspeciatend each of us, very manage people laive managed to evade their share of it and go skulking through life in broadcloth, casting white share of drive or the shirtlers of ueus otherwise than iz dedging their share of the world's work. True, the capitalist system has so ordered work nowadays that men who have awakened to their idiences or the unnecessary nature of the work they are doing are not by that awakening enabled to take hold of any vital and socially related belows as they would.

Many of the well-to-do, as well as of the B-to-do, after they have received remounds insighe, must needs go on as they were going, because they are ecoremically disarmed and bound in the ranks as at present ordered. They know they are off the socially live way and cannot get on it. Industrially they may know they are atrophied: they may know they are atrophed; yet are they powerless to link thenselves by any organic cord at their command with the essential working life of their times. What then can they do with their sense of justice, they cannot starve? Well, they may think it our, write it out, talk it out; they may toluthey may toluthe dissurfacied and bethey may join the disentialed and be ome in their free hours agitators, reformers, Socialists. This is all they can do; and this is, in fact, the present range of ethical and political Social-

Ethical Socialism-be not afraid of the phrase—is a man's sense of duty as to performing a twentieth cantury mah's share of the workl's work and thereby pormitting the rest of the twentieth-century men to share in the above-named five blessings of civilization in a fair and square twentieth-century democratic way.

Does a knowledge of scientific occupanics leave no room or need for the ethical perception? Does the recognition of the reign of law in history's evolution dispense with spontaneous mural force? No. This force is itself the choicest of evolutionary products. It is in human society what old values are in modern production. New hands, new lives, new experiences lay hold new lives, new experiences lay hold tpon the old othics and transform them into new ideas of rightness. We do not destroy, but a do not destroy, but absorb and re-mould, the moral experiences of nould, the moral experiences of former times. As they have moulded us, we model them again, until all the deformed mentality of other ages rises transformed in the glorious moral symmetry of the new collective sense of Potapenko; "Moderne Bakteriologio," by Dr. Curt Schmidt; to say nothing of the numerous smaller articles, sketches, poems, jokes, and-pictures, beautiful or amusing, the claborate calculars, and tables giving useful information on a multitude of subjects. To readers of German the "Pionier" is worth much more than the price charged—25 cents for single copies, with a discount to agents and organizations. It is to be wished that English-speaking movement could produce as good an annual.

Hi two types of recruits to the Socialist ent, with which it begins, is as timely in itself as it is a fitting intro duction to the consideration of principles which follows and which leads un to this conclusion: "A membership actively participat

bulwark against the ever threstoning political vampires—the trickstors, houses and grafters—seeking a new and vigorous body whose blood they may suck. It has proved its efficience by standing fast in many a storm that the attended to destroy the party and there is no evidence of the incapacity to settle right present and future prolems. There have always been well intentioned men who thought they could do better for the people than the people could do for themselves; but that is the theory of benevolent des-potism—of theorracy, not democracy— and we want none of it. We shall have-we siresdy have-honcet astute. have—we already have—honcel, astute, and masterful men whose influence will intensify the effectiveness of our efforts, but it is a delusion to think that we are sheep without a shepherd, a helpless mass waiting for some Moses to lead us out of the wilderness. The working class must ementpast itself, and while it welcomes the assistance of all those in sympaths, with it, the Socialists at least enterian no dethe Socialists at least entertain no de Insions and must prepare for the work ahead as prudent, practicel men." A. M. Simons continues his examination of "Economic Aspects of Chattel Slavery." Nothing could be more gratifying than this application of the Socialist philosophy to the aconomic history—which evolves the political history—of the United States, for it is a heretothrough life in breadcioth, casting their share of duty on the shoulders of which evolves the political history—which evolves the political history—of the United States, for it is a bereto-chit whole, Mr. Totality, let us call following the street of the United States, for it is a bereto-only whole the call following the content of the great struggle only speakers who would be on the International School of Social Bosnomy. Regarding my motion concerning applications for speakers; I am opposed to any attempt to centralize the author-ity of the National Committee in the office of the National Secretary. J. C. Frost, of the City of Brotherly Love, is in town, and is trying to convert some of the Gothamites to Socialism. He claims that the Philadelphians have woke up and are doing som great things, and he wants to show the New Yerkers how it is done. He thinks every workingman of this me-tropolis should rote for Furman and the rest of the ticket, and in order to make them do it, he will stay in tow until Election Day.

Several of the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers, who are locked out by their bosses, to supply their brother members with something to pass their time away, are giving or selling them Socialist literature. Quite a few mem-bers of the organization will vote our ticket at the next election. Campaign Secretary, Gerber states that comrades who are willing to work will be gladly received and given some-thing to do at the Labor Lycoum; he adds that "work" in this case means, "work" and not "talk."
